Suchow Defenders Slate Withdrawal

Communist Artillery Shelling Only Airfield Linking Nationalists With Nanking; Report Canal On Flank Crossed

By Harold K. MILKS

NANKING, Sunday, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Reliable sources said today the government plans to withdraw its army headquarters from Suchow, the big base around which eddies a decisive battle for China.

Officials quarters were silent on this report, but it was acknowledged that encircling Communist forces were shelling the airfield five miles east of Suchow.

The field is the one remaining link between Suchow and Nanking, 200 miles to the southeast, now that the railway has been cut.

Informants said the government headquarters would be moved 100 miles south to Pengpu. The railway city of Pengpu is 108 miles by rail northwest of Nanking.

The Communist radio asserted the Reds had all but encircled Gen. Huang Po-Tao's Seventh army corps on the eastern flank of the Suchow front, where only two days ago the government claimed a major victory on the Grand canal.

If this is correct, the whole Suchow position is endangered and the government must retreat to Pengpu or risk encirclement. The Grand canal covered the east flank of Suchow.

Waves of government warplanes had been thrown into the battle, but aerial activity had stopped as this was written at dawn. Whether the lapse is due to weather or a change in the military situation is not known.

Chinese officers who were happy two days ago over the news of victory east of Suchow again lapsed into despondency. Their feelings usually are a good barometer of the war's progress.

Late Saturday night dispatches to pro-government papers and to the official central news agency said the nationalists had broken the Communist line at Changchuan village, near the Grand canal some 40 miles east of Suchow, and had recovered two other villages.

Pro-government estimates of Communist casualties in the four days of

End Comes Suddenly From Heart Attack; Funeral Here

James Conway Liner, Jr., 38, died suddenly from a heart attack in a Dallas, Tex., hospital Friday at 11 a. m. He had gone to Dallas a week ago on business and becoming ill in his hotel room, was removed to a hospital on Tuesday. Word was sent to Monroe telling of his serious illness and his wife, Mrs. Melba Liner, and other members of the family rushed to Dallas and were there when death occurred.

Funeral services will be held at the Hixson Brothers Funeral Home chapel at 2:30 p. m. Monday with the Rev. A. M. Serex, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Monroe, officiating. The body will arrive here on an Illinois Central train at 10:30 a. m. today and will be taken directly to the Hixson Brothers Funeral Home.

Mr. Liner was born in Ruston, where his parents resided at the time of his birth. They moved to Monroe only a few days after his birth and he had spent his life here where at the time of his death he was general manager of Liner's Broadcasting Station, Inc.

Mr. Liner was educated in the City High School, now Neville High, and after completing his high school course he attended Soule Business College in New Orleans where he was prepared for a buiness career.

On July 1, 1930, Mr. Liner's father established radio station KMLB which was the only one of the kind outside of the cities of Shreveport and New Orleans in this state. Young Liner went to New Orleans and studied the fundamentals of radio in a school there, returning to become actively identified with his father's station.

FRANKLIN SHERIFF ASKS CALM PUBLIC

Residents Of Winnsboro Jittery Over Possibility Of Slayer In Midst

WINNSBORO, La., Nov. 13.—(Special)—Residents here, still roused by the mysterious Paola murders of nearly two weeks ago, were asked tonight by Franklin Parish Sheriff Hiram Waller to "please calm down and refrain from spreading rumors."

The Winnsboro police force, well aware of the jittery situation, disclosed plans to employ two additional officers for the purpose of "taking every precautionary measure possible in the public interest."

Sheriff Waller told the people that "their rumors were interfering with his investigation" and asked them to please settle back to their routine way of life.

City Marshal George Ferington stated that "due to the acute situation at hand, he had gotten permission from the town council to employ two additional officers, one of whom will be placed in a "prowl car" for duty in residential sections of the town and

Southern Democrats Will Fight First Move To Pass Civil Rights Bill

SOME MEASURES MAY GET SUPPORT OF DIXIE SOLONS

By Jack Bell

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Southern Democrats will filibuster if leaders try to change the senate debate rules to help push any civil rights proposals through congress.

Senator McClellan (D-Ark.), who has taken an active part in such things in the past, made that point clear today.

McClellan told a reporter he has heard that administration lieutenants are thinking of asking the senate to make its cloture (debate limitation) rule apply to any motion, as well as a legislative bill.

Republicans, who lost senate control in the election, had promised to try that maneuver.

Cloture is a procedure under which each senator is limited to an hour's talk on any bill or amendment before the senate.

CITY BUS FARES TO BE INCREASED

10-Cent Rates Or 7½-Cent Tickets Will Be In Use Monday

City bus tickets will be recognized tomorrow when the increased bus fares becomes effective, Frank X. Cline, commissioner of finance and utilities, announced yesterday.

Riders of the city bus who do not purchase tickets which are being sold for thirty cents, at a seven-and-a-half rate, will pay a ten-cent flat rate, the commissioner said.

Bus tickets have been on sale at the downtown bus stops during the past week and will continue to be sold on the streets until the people become accustomed to purchasing the tickets and saving two-and-a-half cents, Commissioner Cline explained.

Bus fares had to be raised, Commissioner Cline pointed out, because of the increased cost of parts, gasoline, oil and maintenance of city buses. He added further that the city has ordered six new buses which are to be delivered in the near future.

The bus fare for children will remain the same, two-and-a-half cents for bus tokens, the commissioner said.

Persons riding the bus can purchase four tickets for 30 cents at the Light and Water office in the city hall at anytime, Commissioner Cline asserted, and a straight ten cent fare will be charged those who ride the bus without tickets.

Present employes of the city bus department are handling the sale of tickets on the street and no tickets will be sold on the bus, Mr. Cline asserted.

The increased rates will not effect transfers. They will be handled in the same manner as they are at present, Commissioner Cline pointed out.

EXPLOSION ON SHIP KILLS 2, HURTS 6

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 13.—(AP)—An unexplained explosion, followed by fire, killed two men and injured at least six others today as the fast new Swedish motorship Los Angeles prepared to sail for Europe.

The body of one man, identified only as F. V. B. Olson, guaranty engineer for the builders, was taken from the engine room after the fire. A refrigeration engineer, Rolph De Floer, died at Tacoma General Hospital. Their home addresses were not available.

Ambulances and every available piece of Tacoma fire equipment rushed to Port Tacoma pier No. 2 when the alarm came in at 10:32 a. m. Bluish smoke poured from the Diesel-driven luxury ship, queen craft of the Swedish Johnson Line and termed by her owners the fastest cargo vessel in the world.

Fire Chief C. J. Eisendacher said tremendous heat seared the spotless white interior of the craft to a mottled black. The blaze was checked in about an hour.

Capt. R. Groenwall of Toethenberg, Sweden, refused to talk to reporters. An unidentified stewardess, however, said her first warning of the blaze came when she noted smoke rising from the engine room. Earlier she had seen several engineers go below to make pre-sailing checkups.

20 Persons Hurt As Reds Riot In Paris

Communist Demonstrators And Police Fight Following Arrest Of Union Members In Suburban 'Red Belt' Section

PARIS, Nov. 13.—(AP)—At least 20 persons were injured today when Communist demonstrators and police clashed in a suburb during a 24-hour general strike in the Paris area.

In another incident in the communist coal strike workers marched on a mine in south central France, kidnapped three police officers and lowered them down the mineshaft with a supply of provisions.

Three of the injured in the Paris riot were reported struck down by police bullets in a clash at Puteaux, a western suburb in the "Red belt." The fight was an outgrowth of the arrest of communist union members who gathered at a factory entrance in the morning. In the afternoon about 500 marched on police headquarters to seek their release.

En route the marchers stopped two buses operating regularly despite the strike and sought to persuade the drivers to leave the job. Police squads arrived and the crowd began throwing paving stones. Police retaliated with pistols, wounding three. Others were reported injured by nightsticks.

Police said 17 of their own number were injured. All but six continued on duty.

The general strike, called by Communist unions as a protest against "police brutality" in handling an Armistice Day demonstration on the Champs Elysees in which 150 persons were injured, was far from the success its leaders had expected.

Transport services continued in many areas on a reduced scale. Most stores and movies were open. Newspapers failed to appear, however, and many factories had only a few workers on duty.

Several fights broke out when strikers tried to stop non-strikers from working. Police made a number of arrests.

The kidnapping of the three police took place at Brassac-Les-Mines, 25 miles southeast of Clermont Ferrand, when 300 miners started marching on a mine. A carload of police appeared on the scene and was surrounded. The police were disarmed, a demonstrator took the wheel of their car

Jes' Ramblin'

"Dear Jes' Ramblin':

"Your column seems to comprise the odds and ends of news—those things that are of real human interest, so I presume to write you. I am troubled with insomnia like lots of folks these teeming days of the atomic era. I have tried and tried to count 100 sheep but that hasn't helped me any. Casting about for ideas, I hit upon the idea of imagining that I was on the causeway leading into Galveston. I saw the deep blue of the waves, the fanciful row boat I was in was rocked by friendly waves. I imagined my hands were in the water and gliding along with the motion of the boat. Oh, it was delightful and I soon fell asleep as sound as I slept when a baby. I can recommend this project for the sleepless. Sincerely.

"A READER OF JES' RAMBLIN."

Sleeplessness may or not be allied with illness and medicine but we heard a good one the other day. A lady called a certain friend by phone and when a child answered, she asked her: "Honey, what are papa and mama doing now?" "They're taking WANT-A-CALL," came back the reply.

A News-Star—World reporter almost got "messed up" Friday noon when he rushed up to Cherokee terrace just as the morning session was breaking up of the Louisiana State Federated Clubs to get the story for the paper. DOCKER'S STRIKE TIES UP OVER 200 SHIPS IN HARBORS

Railroads Place Ban On All Goods Destined For Unloading In Ports

WEEK END MINIMIZES FIRST EFFECTS OF BIG WALKOUT

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The rail embargo on export freight was extended to all major east coast ports today as the dock workers' strike immobilized almost 200 ships.

The Association of American Railroads placed a ban on nearly all goods destined for overseas shipment out of Philadelphia, Baltimore, Wilmington, Del., and Hampton Roads, Va.

This was an extension of the embargo clamped yesterday on freight moving to New York and Boston.

The ordinary week end lull minimized the effects of the strike of some 65,000 longshoremen on its first official day.

But the usually teeming waterfronts were expected to be deserted Monday. Marshall plan shipments as well as ordinary commercial maritime business will be hit drastically if the walkout is a long one.

A survey indicated these ships were tied up by the strike: Baltimore 95, New York 52, Philadelphia 32, Boston 8 and Hampton Roads 3.

Actually 202 vessels were idle in New York's great port but customs officials indicated only 52 of these could be attributed to the stevedores' walkout.

Joseph P. Ryan, president of the A. F. L. International Longshoremen's Association, who called the strike for last midnight, said he expected no developments until Monday when two union meetings are scheduled.

One of the sessions will involve all A. F. L. maritime unions.

Ryan said he was going to play golf over the week end but could be reached in the event Mayor William O'Dwyer wants to talk with him.

The mayor, who has interrupted a

ATTACK ON COMICS OPENED BY WOMEN

State Federation Of Women's Club Passes Number Of Resolutions

The Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs concluding a three-day session in Monroe Saturday heard Helen Ferris, editor of the Junior Literary Guild, and outstanding juvenile authority, launch an attack on the comics, and passed a group of resolutions some of which were of a political nature.

Declaring that "the start of democracy" lies in each home, Mrs. Ferris stated that American parents should provide appropriate books for their children's reading. "There is a sense of kinship in our world from good books," she declared, and if children are provided with proper reading material, their interest in comics will be superceded."

Urging active participation of women in the securing of adequate appropriations for juvenile reading in the various libraries, she was supported by the group which passed a resolution to protest current literature "which frequently offends the good taste and sensibilities of the average reader and tends to lower the moral standards and literary appreciation of our youth."

The convention went on record as endorsing the continuation of the Louisiana Drivers License law and the promotion of a safety campaign.

The convention pledged the federation to support the libraries and to

BIRTH OF ROYALTY KEEPS ISLE ON TOES

LONDON, Sunday, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Sir William Gilliatt, who will deliver Princess Elizabeth's baby, took up an all-night vigil at Buckingham Palace early today in preparation for the birth of the princess' child.

The child is expected this week end.

Sir John Weir, the royal family physician, has not yet been called to the palace. This fact was interpreted as meaning that Sir William's decision to stay overnight after three visits to the princess yesterday was precautionary.

Sir William decided to remain overnight after having been called back to the palace shortly after 10 p. m. last night (5 p. m. eastern standard time). He had paid a previous visit to the 22-year-old princess at 8 p. m.

Crowds of Britons waiting at the palace gates to be near at hand when the royal heir is born dwindled away by midnight to scattered strollers in the misty fog shrouding the broad mall fronting the Buckingham gates. Earlier in the evening the crowds numbered over 1,000.

U.S., USSR Chiefs Given U.N. Appeal

Two Top United Nations Officials Go To Top Executives Of Four Big Powers With Request For Berlin Settlement

By Francis W. Carpenter

PARIS, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Two top United Nations chieftains appealed directly and urgently to the chief executives of the four big powers over the heads of their U. N. delegations today to settle the Berlin dispute for world peace.

The unprecedented action was taken by Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, of Australia, president of the general assembly, and Trygve Lie, U. N. secretary-general, in the midst of a bitter east-west clash over arms reductions.

The new fight took place in the assembly's 58-member political committee, where Deputy Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky shook his pen at the U. S. delegate, Frederick H. Osborn, and shouted:

"You are preparing a Pearl Harbor for the Soviet Union, aren't you?"

The political committee rejected Russia's proposal for a one-third slash in the air, land and sea forces of the big powers within a year and prohibition of the atom bomb. The vote was six for to 36 against, with seven abstentions.

The committee then approved 40 to six a Belgian proposal calling upon the security council's commission for conventional armaments to continue work on the general question of arms reductions.

In another major U. N. development, a seven-nation committee of the security council approved a plan submitted by the acting Palestine mediator, Dr. Ralph Bunche, to repair the broken truce on the Negev front. The plan apparently would demilitarize and place under U. N. control most of the disputed southern desert region.

The Lie-Evatt appeal was transmitted to President Truman, Prime Minister Stalin, Prime Minister Attlee and Premier Queuille in the form of a joint letter handed to the heads of the United States, Russian, British and French delegations here.

It was known by many that Lie and Evatt were in consultation, but few expected them to deliver an appeal above the level of the delegation chiefs.

Lie and Evatt said:

"Every day that the deadlock over Berlin continues, the danger to the peace and security of all nations continues undiminished.

"Fear of another was is crippling the efforts of all nations to repair the damage of the last war and return once more to the ways of peace. The work of the general assembly and of the United Nations as a whole in every field of its endeavor is being delayed and undermined.

"It is within the power of the leaders of the great nations, to which this communication is addressed, to end this danger to the peace."

Evatt and Lie reminded the four great powers they had voted, with everyone else in the U. N., for a Mexican resolution which called on the big powers to try to settle their differences peacefully. They told the big four the world expects them to carry out the assembly's resolution.

Finally, the two U. N. officials offered to give the big powers all possible assistance in ironing out the Berlin crisis.

With that deadlock out of the way, they said, the big powers could resume negotiations on the peace treaties with Germany, Austria and Japan.

Western power delegates reacted cautiously to the letter, saying it was up to higher quarters to make any statement.

British and American delegates said privately the western powers would not negotiate on Berlin under pressure of the Russian blockade.

ROARK BRADFORD EXPIRES IN N. O.

Noted Louisiana Author Of Negro Folk Tales Succumbs To Wartime Disease

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13.— (AP) — Roark Bradford, versatile author of "Old Man Adam and His Chillun" from which the stage hit "Green Pastures" was adapted, died at his French quarter home here today. He was 52.

Bradford, also noted for his other Negro folk tales, had been in ill health for some time.

Mrs. Bradford said that he died from amoebiasis which he contacted while serving with the U. S. navy in French West Africa in 1943.

She said they had been up all night as has been their custom since his early newspaper days.

She said he retired about 6:30 a. m., and that she became alarmed when she noticed that he had not changed his position six hours later.

Mrs. Bradford said the author thought burial archaic and that in accordance with his wishes his body will be cremated and the ashes dropped into his beloved Mississippi river.

At various times Bradford had been a reporter, city editor, soldier, sailor, cowboy, boxer and baseball player.

In his youth, Bradford had tried to sell short stories about China and the South Seas where he had never been and about whaling which he had never done.

One day he saw a Negro fishing in the Mississippi river, a bell tied at the end of his pole to jingle and awaken him when a fish bit. He sold a story

DEFENSE PLANNING OFFICE MAPS 'MISSING LINK' NEEDS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The civil defense planning office presented tonight a minutely detailed blueprint for what it called the "missing link" in national defense—a system of protection for the population at home if an enemy attack comes.

The proposed program for a permanent system of civil defense is the product of a nine-month study by a group of 43 civilians, representative of various segments of national life, assisted by military advisers. The planning group, headed by Russell J. Hopley of Omaha, was created by order of Defense Secretary Forrestal.

Weighing heavily in the report is the possibility that United States cities, which since the War of 1812 never have been beset by a foreign military power, might be subjected to atomic war or other new weapons.

The general proposals of the planning group are these:

1. A national office of civil defense, with a staff of perhaps no more than 200 persons, to furnish guidance for states and municipalities and to help train civil defense workers. Emphasis would be on creation of nucleus structures, capable of quick expansion in event of war. The estimate is that in war-time as high as 15,000,000 persons might be involved in civil defense throughout the states, cities and federal government.

2. Mutual assistance systems under which one city or group of cities would aid another city if the burden of civilian defense became too great. Mobile units which could be shifted quickly to stricken areas are recommended.

3. Maximum use of volunteers and of existing agencies, such as police departments.

4. "Well organized and trained units in communities throughout the United States, its territories and possessions, prepared and equipped to meet the problems of enemy attack, and to be ready against any weapon that an enemy may use."

5. "Intensive planning to meet the particular hazards of atomic or other modern weapons of warfare."

6. A peace-time organization which could be used in natural disasters as well as in war.

7. The two "most appropriate places" for the federal civil defense office would be under either the president or the secretary of defense. The latter might be "preferable" because of constant coordination with

ELABORATE ST. JOSEPH'S HOME TO BE OPEN TO PUBLIC TODAY

A dream of many years, planning, financing and working out details in this troubulous post-war era, will be realized Sunday at 3 p.m., when the magnificent half-million-dollar St. Joseph's Home for the Aged will be formally dedicated and consecrated by Bishop C. P. Greco, of the Alexandria diocese. This great institution was made possible by the hospital sisters of St. Francis Motherhouse and Novitiate in Springfield, Ill. Among the prominent out-of-town guests to be in attendance at the opening will be Reverend Mother Magdalene, provincial.

Taking active participation in the exercises will be officials of city and parish, Mayors George Breece, Monroe, and C. C. Bell, West Monroe; A. E. Montgomery, president of the Ouachita parish police jury; Rabbi F. K. Hirsch, Temple B'Nai Israel; Dr. A. M. Serex, pastor of the First Methodist Church; Mother Magdalene and the most important of all participants, Bishop Greco.

The public of Monroe and surrounding country are cordially invited. The home is reached over the Sterlington road, and special buses are expected to be operated to the grounds from downtown Monroe.

The first shovel of dirt was turned at this site on March 19, 1947, twenty months ago, the progress of construction being slowed down because of delay in getting materials. The building was erected by the Hutter Construction Company of Wisconsin; Henry R. Slaby, architect, Milwaukee, Wis., and H. H. Land, Monroe, supervisory architect.

This great institution is said to be the only one in the entire south and is open to all aged regardless of

VICTORIES COME HARD FOR 4 HIGH-FLYING TEAMS OF U. S.

By Harold Claassen

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Touchdowns were as scarce as diamonds in a junk heap today for Notre Dame, Georgia Tech, Tennessee, Kansas, and Southern Methodist of college football's reigning family but all got enough markers to win except the two southern elevens.

In contrast Michigan, North Carolina, Duke, California, Penn State and Ohio State clicked off seven pointers with the regularity of robots for lopsided victories.

A pair of unknowns brought Notre Dame the touchdown it so desperately needed to subdue Northwestern, 12 to 7. The fourth period score was the result of the combined efforts of Bill Gay and John Landry. The game was the 26th in a row without defeat for Notre Dame but it also proved that the Big Nine team was a worthy Rose Bowl candidate.

Arnold Galiffa's touchdown pass to John Trent with 30 seconds to go permitted Army to continue its unbeaten way with a 26 to 20 verdict over Pennsylvania.

Alabama turned a fumble and an intercepted pass into the two touchdowns it needed to defeat Georgia Tech, 14 to 12, and Mississippi simply outsped Tennessee, 16 to 13, although the decisive points came on a safety.

Southern Methodist's great Doak Walker kicked the two extra points that gave his club a 14 to 12 verdict over Arkansas, whose Clyde Scott was carried from the field in the first quarter. Walker carried the ball seven times and lost 10 yards.

But it was different at other gridirons. Michigan annihilated Indiana, 54 to 0; Ohio State smothered Illinois, 34 to 7; North Carolina, with Charlie Justice held in check on the ground, drubbed Maryland, in the air, 49 to 20; California scalped Washington State, 44 to 14; Duke dumped George Washington, 62 to 0; and Penn State handled Temple, 47 to 0.

In between the two extremes there were such thrillers as Cornell's 27 to 26 victory over Dartmouth; Yale's rugged display before losing to Princeton, 20 to 14; Pittsburgh's 20 to 13, conquest of Purdue; Clemson's 21 to 14 triumph over Wake Forest that kept the Tigers unbeaten and in the bowl forefront.

Clemson has only the Citadel left to play in Southern Conference play and is almost certain to wind up with part of the loop flag. Georgia, with Johnny Rauch doing the passing, spilled Au-

Bus tickets have been on sale at the downtown bus stops during the past week and will continue to be sold on the streets until the people become accustomed to purchasing the tickets and saving two-and-a-half cents, Commissioner Cline explained.

Bus fares had to be raised, Commissioner Cline pointed out, because of the increased cost of parts, gasoline, oil and maintenance of city buses. He added further that the city has ordered six new buses which are to be delivered in the near future.

The bus fare for children will remain the same, two-and-a-half cents for bus tokens, the commissioner said.

Persons riding the bus can purchase four tickets for 30 cents at the Light and Water office in the city hall at anytime, Commissioner Cline asserted, and a straight ten cent fare will be charged those who ride the bus without tickets.

Present employes of the city bus department are handling the sale of tickets on the street and no tickets will be sold on the bus, Mr. Cline asserted.

The increased rates will not effect transfers. They will be handled in the same manner as they are at present, Commissioner Cline pointed out.

FRANKLIN SHERIFF ASKS CALM PUBLIC

Residents Of Winnsboro Jittery Over Possibility Of Slayer In Midst

WINNSBORO, La., Nov. 13.—(Special)—Residents here, still roused by the mysterious Paola murders of nearly two weeks ago, were asked tonight by Franklin Parish Sheriff Hiram Waller to "please calm down and refrain from spreading rumors."

The Winnsboro police force, well aware of the jittery situation, disclosed plans to employ two additional officers for the purpose of "taking every precautionary measure possible in the public interest."

Sheriff Waller told the people that "their rumors were interfering with his investigation" and asked them to please settle back to their routine way of life.

City Marshal George Ferington stated that "due to the acute situation at hand, he had gotten permission from the town council to employ two additional officers, one of whom will be placed in a "prowl car" for duty in residential sections of the town and

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 13.—(AP)—An unexplained explosion, followed by fire, killed two men and injured at least six others today as the fast new Swedish motorship Los Angeles prepared to sail for Europe.

The body of one man, identified only as F. V. B. Olson, guaranty engineer for the builders, was taken from the engine room after the fire. A refrigeration engineer, Rolph De Floer, died at Tacoma General Hospital. Their home addresses were not available.

Ambulances and every available piece of Tacoma fire equipment rushed to Port Tacoma pier No. 2 when the alarm came in at 10:32 a. m. Bluish smoke poured from the Diesel-driven luxury ship, queen craft of the Swedish Johnson Line and termed by her owners the fastest cargo vessel in the world.

Fire Chief C. J. Eisendacher said tremendous heat seared the spotless white interior of the craft to a mottled black. The blaze was checked in about an hour.

Capt. R. Groenwall of Toethenberg, Sweden, refused to talk to reporters. An unidentified stewardess, however, said her first warning of the blaze came when she noted smoke rising from the engine room. Earlier she had seen several engineers go below to make pre-sailing checkups.

20 Persons Hurt As Reds Riot In Paris

Communist Demonstrators And Police Fight Following Arrest Of Union Members In Suburban 'Red Belt' Section

PARIS, Nov. 13.—(AP)—At least 20 persons were injured today when Communist demonstrators and police clashed in a suburb during a 24-hour general strike in the Paris area.

In another incident in the communist coal strike workers marched on a mine in south central France, kidnapped three police officers and lowered them down the mineshaft with a supply of provisions.

Three of the injured in the Paris riot were reported struck down by police bullets in a clash at Puteaux, a western suburb in the "Red belt." The fight was an outgrowth of the arrest of communist union members who gathered at a factory entrance in the morning. In the afternoon about 500 marched on police headquarters to seek their release.

En route the marchers stopped two buses operating regularly despite the strike and sought to persuade the drivers to leave the job. Police squads arrived and the crowd began throwing paving stones. Police retaliated with pistols, wounding three. Others were reported injured by nightsticks.

Police said 17 of their own number were injured. All but six continued on duty.

The general strike, called by Communist unions as a protest against "police brutality" in handling an Armistice Day demonstration on the Champs Elysees in which 150 persons were injured, was far from the success its leaders had expected.

Transport services continued in many areas on a reduced scale. Most stores and movies were open. Newspapers failed to appear, however, and many factories had only a few workers on duty.

Several fights broke out when strikers tried to stop non-strikers from working. Police made a number of arrests.

The kidnapping of the three police took place at Brassac-Les-Mines, 25 miles southeast of Clermont Ferrand, when 350 miners started marching on a mine. A carload of police appeared on the scene and was surrounded. The police were disarmed, a demonstrator took the wheel of their car

"Dear Jes' Ramblin':

"Your column seems to comprise the odds and ends of news—those things that are of real human interest, so I presume to write you. I am troubled with insomnia like lots of folks these teeming days of the atomic era. I have tried and tried to count 100 sheep but that hasn't helped me any. Casting about for ideas, I hit upon the idea of imagining that I was on the causeway leading into Galveston. I saw the deep blue of the waves, the fanciful row boat I was in was rocked by friendly waves. I imagined my hands were in the water and gliding along with the motion of the boat. Oh, it was delightful and I soon fell asleep as sound as I slept when a baby. I can recommend this project for the sleepless. Sincerely.

"A READER OF JES' RAMBLIN."

Sleeplessness may or not be allied with illness and medicine but we heard a good one the other day. A lady called a certain friend by phone and when a child answered, she asked her: "Honey, what are papa and mama doing now?" "They're taking WANT-A-CALL," came back the reply.

A News-Star—World reporter almost got "messed up" Friday noon when he rushed up to Cherokee terrace just as the morning session was breaking up of the Louisiana State Federated Clubs to get the story for the paper. The closing of the session caused 300 women present to make a dart for the elevators. Now 300 women on an eleventh floor and

A dream of many years, planning, financing and working out details in this troubulous post-war era, will be realized Sunday at 3 p.m., when the magnificent half-million-dollar St. Joseph's Home for the Aged will be formally dedicated and consecrated by Bishop C. P. Greco, of the Alexandria diocese. This great institution was made possible by the hospital sisters of St. Francis Motherhouse and Novitiate in Springfield, Ill. Among the prominent out-of-town guests to be in attendance at the opening will be Reverend Mother Magdalene, provincial.

Taking active participation in the exercises will be officials of city and parish, Mayors George Breece, Monroe, and C. C. Bell, West Monroe; A. E. Montgomery, president of the Ouachita parish police jury; Rabbi F. K. Hirsch, Temple B'Nai Israel; Dr. A. M. Serex, pastor of the First Methodist Church; Mother Magdalene and the most important of all participants, Bishop Greco.

The public of Monroe and surrounding country are cordially invited. The home is reached over the Sterlington road, and special buses are expected to be operated to the grounds from downtown Monroe.

The first shovel of dirt was turned at this site on March 19, 1947, twenty months ago, the progress of construction being slowed down because of delay in getting materials. The building was erected by the Hutter Construction Company of Wisconsin; Henry R. Slaby, architect, Milwaukee, Wis., and H. H. Land, Monroe, supervisory architect.

This great institution is said to be the only one in the entire south and is open to all aged regardless of

DOCKER'S STRIKE TIES UP OVER 200 SHIPS IN HARBORS

Railroads Place Ban On All Goods Destined For Unloading In Ports

WEEK END MINIMIZES FIRST EFFECTS OF BIG WALKOUT

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The rail embargo on export freight was extended to all major east coast ports today as the dock workers' strike immobilized almost 200 ships.

The Association of American Railroads placed a ban on nearly all goods destined for overseas shipment out of Philadelphia, Baltimore, Wilmington, Del., and Hampton Roads, Va.

This was an extension of the embargo clamped yesterday on freight moving to New York and Boston.

The ordinary week end lull minimized the effects of the strike of some 65,000 longshoremen on its first official day.

But the usually teeming waterfronts were expected to be deserted Monday. Marshall plan shipments as well as ordinary commercial maritime business will be hit drastically if the walkout is a long one.

A survey indicated these ships were tied up by the strike: Baltimore 95, New York 52, Philadelphia 32, Boston 8 and Hampton Roads 3.

Actually 202 vessels were idle in New York's great port but customs officials indicated only 52 of these could be attributed to the stevedores' walkout.

Joseph P. Ryan, president of the A. F. L. International Longshoremen's Association, who called the strike for last midnight, said he expected no developments until Monday when two union meetings are scheduled.

One of the sessions will involve all A. F. L. maritime unions.

Ryan said he was going to play golf over the week end but could be reached in the event Mayor William O'Dwyer wants to talk with him.

The mayor, who has interrupted a

ATTACK ON COMICS OPENED BY WOMEN

State Federation Of Women's Club Passes Number Of Resolutions

The Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs concluding a three-day session in Monroe Saturday heard Helen Ferris, editor of the Junior Literary Guild, and outstanding juvenile authority, launch an attack on the comics, and passed a group of resolutions some of which were of a political nature.

Declaring that "the start of democracy" lies in each home, Mrs. Ferris stated that American parents should provide appropriate books for their children's reading. "There is a sense of kinship in our world from good books," she declared, and if children are provided with proper reading material, their interest in comics will be superceded."

Urging active participation of women in the securing of adequate appropriations for juvenile reading in the various libraries, she was supported by the group which passed a resolution to protest current literature "which frequently offends the good taste and sensibilities of the average reader and tends to lower the moral standards and literary appreciation of our youth."

The convention went on record as endorsing the continuation of the Louisiana Drivers License law and the promotion of a safety campaign.

The convention pledged the federation to support the libraries and to

BIRTH OF ROYALTY KEEPS ISLE ON TOES

LONDON, Sunday, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Sir William Gilliatt, who will deliver Princess Elizabeth's baby, took up an all-night vigil at Buckingham Palace early today in preparation for the birth of the princess' child.

The child is expected this week end.

Sir John Weir, the royal family physician, has not yet been called to the palace. This fact was interpreted as meaning that Sir William's decision to stay overnight after three visits to the princess yesterday was precautionary.

Sir William decided to remain overnight after having been called back to the palace shortly after 10 p. m. last night (5 p. m. eastern standard time). He had paid a previous visit to the 22-year-old princess at 8 p. m.

Crowds of Britons waiting at the palace gates to be near at hand when the royal heir is born dwindled away by midnight to scattered strollers in the misty fog shrouding the broad mall fronting the Buckingham gates. Earlier in the evening the crowds numbered over 1,000.

U. S., USSR Chiefs Given U. N. Appeal

By Francis W. Carpenter

PARIS, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Two top United Nations chieftains appealed directly and urgently to the chief executives of the four big powers over the heads of their U. N. delegations today to settle the Berlin dispute for world peace.

The unprecedented action was taken by Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, of Australia, president of the general assembly, and Trygve Lie, U. N. secretary-general, in the midst of a bitter east-west clash over arms reductions.

The new fight took place in the assembly's 58-member political committee, where Deputy Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky shook his pen at the U. S. delegate, Frederick H. Osborn, and shouted:

"You are preparing a Pearl Harbor for the Soviet Union, aren't you?"

The political committee rejected Russia's proposal for a one-third slash in the air, land and sea forces of the big powers within a year and prohibition of the atom bomb. The vote was six for to 36 against, with seven abstentions.

The committee then approved 40 to six a Belgian proposal calling upon the security council's commission for conventional armaments to continue work on the general question of arms reductions.

In another major U. N. development, a seven-nation committee of the security council approved a plan submitted by the acting Palestine mediator, Dr. Ralph Bunche, to repair the broken truce on the Negev front. The plan apparently would demilitarize and place under U. N. control most of the disputed southern desert region.

The Lie-Evatt appeal was transmitted to President Truman, Prime Minister Stalin, Prime Minister Attlee and Premier Queuille in the form of a joint letter handed to the heads of the United States, Russian, British and French delegations here.

It was known by many that Lie and Evatt were in consultation, but few expected them to deliver an appeal above the level of the delegation chiefs.

Lie and Evatt said:

"Every day that the deadlock over Berlin continues, the danger to the peace and security of all nations continues undiminished.

"Fear of another was is crippling the efforts of all nations to repair the damage of the last war and return once more to the ways of peace. The work of the general assembly and of the United Nations as a whole in every field of its endeavor is being delayed and undermined.

"It is within the power of the leaders of the great nations, to which this communication is addressed, to end this danger to the peace."

Evatt and Lie reminded the four great powers they had voted, with everyone else in the U. N., for a Mexican resolution which called on the big powers to try to settle their differences peacefully. They told the big four the world expects them to carry out the assembly's resolution.

Finally, the two U. N. officials offered to give the big powers all possible assistance in ironing out the Berlin crisis.

With that deadlock out of the way, they said, the big powers could resume negotiations on the peace treaties with Germany, Austria and Japan.

Western power delegates reacted cautiously to the letter, saying it was up to higher quarters to make any statement.

British and American delegates said privately the western powers would not negotiate on Berlin under pressure of the Russian blockade.

ROARK BRADFORD EXPIRES IN N. O.

Noted Louisiana Author Of Negro Folk Tales Succumbs To Wartime Disease

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Roark Bradford, versatile author of "Old Man Adam and His Chillun" from which the stage hit "Green Pastures" was adapted, died at his French quarter home here today. He was 52.

Bradford, also noted for his other Negro folk tales, had been in ill health for some time.

Mrs. Bradford said that he died from amoebiasis which he contacted while serving with the U. S. navy in French West Africa in 1943.

She said they had been up all night as has been their custom since his early newspaper days.

She said he retired about 6:30 a. m., and that she became alarmed when she noticed that he had not changed his position six hours later.

Mrs. Bradford said the author thought burial archaic and that in accordance with his wishes his body will be cremated and the ashes dropped into his beloved Mississippi river.

At various times Bradford had been a reporter, city editor, soldier, sailor, cowboy, boxer and baseball player.

In his youth, Bradford had tried to sell short stories about China and the South Seas where he had never been and about whaling which he had never done.

One day he saw a Negro fishing in the Mississippi river, a bell tied at the end of his pole to jingle and awaken him when a fish bit. He sold a story

DEFENSE PLANNING OFFICE MAPS 'MISSING LINK' NEEDS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The civil defense planning office presented tonight a minutely detailed blueprint for what it called the "missing link" in national defense—a system of protection for the population at home if an enemy attack comes.

The proposed program for a permanent system of civil defense is the product of a nine-month study by a group of 43 civilians, representative of various segments of national life, assisted by military advisers. The planning group, headed by Russell J. Hopley of Omaha, was created by order of Defense Secretary Forrestal.

Weighing heavily in the report is the possibility that United States cities, which since the War of 1812 never have been beset by a foreign military power, mignt be subjected to atomic war or other new weapons.

The general proposals of the planning group are these:

1. A national office of civil defense, with a staff of perhaps no more than 200 persons, to furnish guidance for states and municipalities and to help train civil defense workers. Emphasis would be on creation of nucleus structures, capable of quick expansion in event of war. The estimate is that in war-time as high as 15,000,000 persons might be involved in civil defense throughout the states, cities and federal government.

2. Mutual assistance systems under which one city or group of cities would aid another city if the burden of civilian defense became too great. Mobile units which could be shifted quickly to stricken areas are recommended.

3. Maximum use of volunteers and of existing agencies, such as police departments.

4. "Well organized and trained units in communities throughout the United States, its territories and possessions, prepared and equipped to meet the problems of enemy attack, and to be ready against any weapon that an enemy may use."

5. "Intensive planning to meet the particular hazards of atomic or other modern weapons of warfare."

6. A peace-time organization which could be used in natural disasters as well as in war.

7. The two "most appropriate places" for the federal civil defense office would be under either the president or the secretary of defense. The latter might be "preferable" because of constant coordination with

VICTORIES COME HARD FOR 4 HIGH-FLYING TEAMS OF U. S.

By Harold Claassen

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Touchdowns were as scarce as diamonds in a junk heap today for Notre Dame, Georgia Tech, Tennessee, Kansas, and Southern Methodist of college football's reigning family but all got enough markers to win except the two southern elevens.

In contrast Michigan, North Carolina, Duke, California, Penn State and Ohio State clicked off seven pointers with the regularity of robots for lopsided victories.

A pair of unknowns brought Notre Dame the touchdown it so desperately needed to subdue Northwestern, 12 to 7. The fourth period score was the result of the combined efforts of Bill Gay and John Landry. The game was the 26th in a row without defeat for Notre Dame but it also proved that the Big Nine team was a worthy Rose Bowl candidate.

Arnold Galiffa's touchdown pass to John Trent with 30 seconds to go permitted Army to continue its unbeaten way with a 26 to 20 verdict over Pennsylvania.

Alabama turned a fumble and an intercepted pass into the two touchdowns it needed to defeat Georgia Tech, 14 to 12, and Mississippi simply outsped Tennessee, 16 to 13, although the decisive points came on a safety.

Southern Methodist's great Doak Walker kicked the two extra points that gave his club a 14 to 12 verdict over Arkansas, whose Clyde Scott was carried from the field in the first quarter. Walker carried the ball seven times and lost 10 yards.

But it was different at other gridirons. Michigan annihilated Indiana, 54 to 0; Ohio State smothered Illinois, 34 to 7; North Carolina, with Charlie Justice held in check on the ground, drubbed Maryland, in the air, 49 to 20; California scalped Washington State, 44 to 14; Duke dumped George Washington, 62 to 0; and Penn State handled Temple, 47 to 0.

In between the two extremes there were such thrillers as Cornell's 27 to 26 victory over Dartmouth; Yale's rugged display before losing to Princeton, 20 to 14; Pittsburgh's 20 to 13, conquest of Purdue; Clemson's 21 to 14 triumph over Wake Forest that kept the Tigers unbeaten and in the bowl forefront.

Clemson has only the Citadel left to play in Southern Conference play and is almost certain to wind up with part of the loop flag. Georgia, with Johnny Rauch doing the passing, spilled Au-

SUPTS. TO HOLD 1-DAY SESSION

Will Meet In Northeast Junior College Next Tuesday

Northeast Louisiana superintendents of public instruction will meet at Northeast Junior College Tuesday, November 16 for their regular monthly session. The organization comprises superintendents of fourteen parishes, with J. B. Thompson, Jr., of Richland Parish Schools president of the group. H. H. Moorman, superintendent of East Carroll parish, is secretary.

Other superintendents from the following parishes are planning to attend Tuesday's meeting: T. L. Johnston, Caldwell; A. L. Brooks, Catahoula; J. S. Burris, Concordia; W. B. Glover, Franklin; J. D. Koonce, Jackson; Morelle Emmons, Lincoln; J. R. Linton, Madison; E. D. Shaw, Morehouse; V. C. Rives, Tensas; C. C. Murphy, Union; O. E. Huey, West Carroll; G. S. Manning, Ouachita; J. M. Boyet, Monroe City Schools, and E. L. Neville, former superintendent of Monroe City Schools.

Meeting with the association will be representatives of the Northeast Junior College faculty who formerly were members of the organization or who were superintendents prior to the formation of the group.

Tuesday morning's business session is scheduled in the Pow Wow office of the library building. Here problems of general interest and discussions pertaining to their solution are to comprise the greater part of the program. Meetings of such nature are designed primarily for the exchange of ideas that will prove beneficial to both groups of superintendents, newcomers in this field of administration and those with several years of experience.

Following the business session, visitors will be guests at a luncheon in the home economics department and prepared by students of that department under supervision of Miss Frances Kelso, assistant professor of home economics.

An inspection of the science building which is nearing completion and any other structures on the campus in which superintendents are interested will complete the day's events.

CONDITION PUTS VALUE ON CROP

Cotton Should Be Delivered To Gin In Best Shape Possible

Ouachita parish growers are finding that the quality of their cotton depends a great deal on the condition in which it was delivered to the gin, says Agricultural Agent J. J. Joyce, Jr. Mr. Joyce pointed out that seed cotton delivered to the gin dry and in good condition otherwise will give a better quality product. He quoted the following recommendations from the United States Gin Labratory at Stoneville, Miss.

1. Start picking when the cotton bolls are wide open and well-matured.
2. Pick cotton free of trash, leaves and other matter.
3. Do not start picking in the morning while the cotton still is wet with dew.
4. Do not start picking after a rain until the cotton is thoroughly dry.

In addition, Mr. Joyce said, the Stoneville laboratory offers the following suggestions for ginners;

1. Operate the drier at a sufficient temperature to dry the cotton, but not higher than 190 degrees Fahrenheit.
2. Do most of the drying before cleaning and extracting.
3. Keep saws and ribs in good condition.
4. Gin with a loose seed roll.
5. Keep an air-blast pressure of 12 to 15 inches, depending on the dampness of the cotton.

The agricultural agent emphasized that cotton delivered in bad condition and improperly ginned might bring as much as $40 a bale less. During the five-year period of 1940-1944, an average of 19.9 per cent of all Louisiana cotton each year was reduced one to two grades by rough preparation, the result of being delivered in bad condition or of improper ginning. If the same proportion of the estimated 700,000-bale 1948 crop should be reduced one grade below middling, Louisiana growers would get $1,000,000 less for their crops than they might get under best conditions.

The ancient Colosseum at Rome is believed to have seated 45 to 50 thousand spectators and to have provided standing room for 20 to 25 thousand more.

5TH AREA HOLDS TEACHER MEET

Classroom Instructors Urged To Attend State Convention

The Fifth District Classroom Teachers Council met in the First Baptist Church and dealt with many school problems currently before the school people of the state. Miss Daisy Mae Jones of Columbia, president, stated that good representation was present and that all took active part in the group discussions.

One of the problems foremost is that of attendance at the annual convention of the Louisiana Educational Association at Lafayette, La., November 21, 22, and 23. Inasmuch as absentee voting is not being carried out this year, as provided in the L. E. A. recently adopted constitution, attendance is especially of importance in the matter of selecting officials for the coming year. In this connection the corresponding secretary was directed to prepare appropriate letters to the school superintendents of this district asking them to urge their teachers to attend the convention.

The matter of carrying out the recent minimum salary law was of great concern and reports from Baton Rouge are not definite as to whether or not the full schedule will be followed throughout the school year.

Among the candidates for various offices of the Louisiana Education Association to be filled by election on Tuesday at the convention, as announced are for president of the L. E. A., Mrs. Pearl Prejean of Abbeville and George U. Jourbert of Lawtell, St. Landry parish. For vice-president, Mrs. Sara Hollingsworth of Ouachita parish schools and J. C. Weswebber of Morehouse parish schools and George Guidroz from Port Sulphur. For classroom teacher member on the Louisiana retirement board of trustees are D. W. Griffith of Monroe, Miss Clara Griggs of Shreveport, Miss Jeanne Castile of Breaux Bridge and Mrs. Ruby Neyland of Lafayette. Mr. Griffith's candidacy has been supported by this organization since first announced and an appropriate complimentary resolution for Mr. Griffith was authorized to be presented at the convention.

Wyoming was the first state in the union to provide for woman suffrage, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

RUSSIANS RAZE HITLER RELICS

Monuments To Stalin And Red Army Are Taking Their Places

By Richard Kasischke

BERLIN, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Russians are tearing down the last reminders of Adolf Hitler in Berlin and even closing the hole in the ground in which he is believed to have died.

Rising in the place of Hitler's buildings and monuments are memorials to Josef Stalin and the Red army.

The Russians are using all the best materials from leftover Hitler structures for memorials of their own.

The last major relic of Hitler, his massive Reichs chancellery, now is being torn down in the Soviet sector of the city.

The unheralded project was undertaken under a program of ruin removal in the bezirk mitte (central district) of Berlin. The order was to tear down or dynamite what remained of the government building which Hitler himself designed with the aid of Albert Speer. Along with it goes the "fuehrer balkon" (fuehrer balcony) from which Hitler used to address admiring crowds.

Long before this was undertaken the chancellery had been gutted by war damage and its fine Italian and Bavarian marbles dismantled by the Russians for use in construct of Soviet army war memorials in this conquered city. The fine woodwork also was taken by the Russians.

Now what's left of the chancellery that can be salvaged will be used as building materials for German purposes. The ultimate residue also will serve a specified purpose.

The Russian-controlled "Berliner Zeitung" said the chancellery debris will be used to fill up the cavity left by the blowing up of Hitler's spacious private air raid shelter in the chancellery garden.

It was in this underground shelter that Hitler and Eva Braun were believed to have committed suicide along with the entire Goebbels family, in the last days of the battle of Berlin.

The shelter was destroyed last year, but it left a hole in the ground in the midst of a garden long gone to ruin. The rubble from the chancellery should be more than sufficient to remove this last trace of unevenness in the soil where Hitler once reigned supreme.

OFFICERS CONDUCT INTENSIVE SEARCH

Authorities here, determined to apprehend the person or persons responsible for the New South Drug Store-Dr. A. G. McHenry office burglary Thursday night, yesterday intensified their investigation with officers, detectives and sheriff deputies working on a 24-hour shift aimed at nabbing the thieves before they leave the city.

Listed by police as stolen by the intruders were ten dollars in cash and a "small amount of narcotics" from the doctor's office and nearly $1,100 in cash from the drug store. Dr. McHenry's office is located directly above the drug establishment on the corner of DeSiard and South Grand streets.

Officers who investigated the "break in" expressed their belief that "whoever did the job definitely knew what they were doing."

Entrance was gained through an upstairs window in the doctor's office. The window opened onto a fire escape.

The two men booked at police headquarters Friday morning, with "suspicion of breaking and entering at night," were not connected with the burglary, officers said.

Police identified the men as A. S. Gentry, 32, Epps, and James L. King, 25, of Tullos.

Will Meet In Northeast Junior College Next Tuesday

Northeast Louisiana superintendents of public instruction will meet at Northeast Junior College Tuesday, November 16 for their regular monthly session. The organization comprises superintendents of fourteen parishes, with J. B. Thompson, Jr., of Richland Parish Schools president of the group. H. H. Moorman, superintendent of East Carroll parish, is secretary.

Other superintendents from the following parishes are planning to attend Tuesday's meeting: T. L. Johnston, Caldwell; A. L. Brooks, Catahoula; J. S. Burris, Concordia; W. B. Glover, Franklin; J. D. Koonce, Jackson; Morelle Emmons, Lincoln; J. R. Linton, Madison; E. D. Shaw, Morehouse; V. C. Rives, Tensas; C. C. Murphy, Union; O. E. Huey, West Carroll; G. S. Manning, Ouachita; J. M. Boyet, Monroe City Schools, and E. L. Neville, former superintendent of Monroe City Schools.

Meeting with the association will be representatives of the Northeast Junior College faculty who formerly were members of the organization or who were superintendents prior to the formation of the group.

Tuesday morning's business session is scheduled in the Pow Wow office of the library building. Here problems of general interest and discussions pertaining to their solution are to comprise the greater part of the program. Meetings of such nature are designed primarily for the exchange of ideas that will prove beneficial to both groups of superintendents, newcomers in this field of administration and those with several years of experience.

Following the business session, visitors will be guests at a luncheon in the home economics department and prepared by students of that department under supervision of Miss Frances Kelso, assistant professor of home economics.

An inspection of the science building which is nearing completion and any other structures on the campus in which superintendents are interested will complete the day's events.

CONDITION PUTS VALUE ON CROP

Cotton Should Be Delivered To Gin In Best Shape Possible

Ouachita parish growers are finding that the quality of their cotton depends a great deal on the condition in which it was delivered to the gin, says Agricultural Agent J. J. Joyce, Jr. Mr. Joyce pointed out that seed cotton delivered to the gin dry and in good condition otherwise will give a better quality product. He quoted the following recommendations from the United States Gin Labratory at Stoneville, Miss.

1. Start picking when the cotton bolls are wide open and well-matured.
2. Pick cotton free of trash, leaves and other matter.
3. Do not start picking in the morning while the cotton still is wet with dew.
4. Do not start picking after a rain until the cotton is thoroughly dry.

In addition, Mr. Joyce said, the Stoneville laboratory offers the following suggestions for ginners:

1. Operate the drier at a sufficient temperature to dry the cotton, but not higher than 190 degrees Fahrenheit.
2. Do most of the drying before cleaning and extracting.
3. Keep saws and ribs in good condition.
4. Gin with a loose seed roll.
5. Keep an air-blast pressure of 12 to 15 inches, depending on the dampness of the cotton.

The agricultural agent emphasized that cotton delivered in bad condition and improperly ginned might bring as much as $40 a bale less. During the five-year period of 1940-1944, an average of 19.9 per cent of all Louisiana cotton each year was reduced one to two grades by rough preparation, the result of being delivered in bad condition or of improper ginning. If the same proportion of the estimated 700,000-bale 1948 crop should be reduced one grade below middling, Louisiana growers would get $1,000,000 less for their crops than they might get under best conditions.

The ancient Colosseum at Rome is believed to have seated 45 to 50 thousand spectators and to have provided standing room for 20 to 25 thousand more.

5TH AREA HOLDS TEACHER MEET

Classroom Instructors Urged To Attend State Convention

The Fifth District Classroom Teachers Council met in the First Baptist Church and dealt with many school problems currently before the school people of the state. Miss Daisy Mae Jones of Columbia, president, stated that good representation was present and that all took active part in the group discussions.

One of the problems foremost is that of attendance at the annual convention of the Louisiana Educational Association at Lafayette, La., November 21, 22, and 23. Inasmuch as absentee voting is not being carried out this year, as provided in the L. E. A. recently adopted constitution, attendance is especially of importance in the matter of selecting officials for the coming year. In this connection the corresponding secretary was directed to prepare appropriate letters to the school superintendents of this district asking them to urge their teachers to attend the convention.

The matter of carrying out the recent minimum salary law was of great concern and reports from Baton Rouge are not definite as to whether or not the full schedule will be followed throughout the school year.

Among the candidates for various offices of the Louisiana Education Association to be filled by election on Tuesday at the convention, as announced are for president of the L. E. A., Mrs. Pearl Prejean of Abbeville and George U. Jourbert of Lawtell, St. Landry parish. For vice-president, Mrs. Sara Hollingsworth of Ouachita parish schools and J. C. Weswebber of Morehouse parish schools and George Guidroz from Port Sulphur. For classroom teacher member on the Louisiana retirement board of trustees are D. W. Griffith of Monroe, Miss Clara Griggs of Shreveport, Miss Jeanne Castile of Breaux Bridge and Mrs. Ruby Neyland of Lafayette. Mr. Griffith's candidacy has been supported by this organization since first announced and an appropriate complimentary resolution for Mr. Griffith was authorized to be presented at the convention.

Wyoming was the first state in the union to provide for woman suffrage, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

RUSSIANS RAZE HITLER RELICS

Monuments To Stalin And Red Army Are Taking Their Places

By Richard Kasischke

BERLIN, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Russians are tearing down the last reminders of Adolf Hitler in Berlin and even closing the hole in the ground in which he is believed to have died.

Rising in the place of Hitler's buildings and monuments are memorials to Josef Stalin and the Red army.

The Russians are using all the best materials from leftover Hitler structures for memorials of their own.

The last major relic of Hitler, his massive Reichs chancellery, now is being torn down in the Soviet sector of the city.

The unheralded project was undertaken under a program of ruin removal in the bezirk mitte (central district) of Berlin. The order was to tear down or dynamite what remained of the government building which Hitler himself designed with the aid of Albert Speer. Along with it goes the "fuehrer balkon" (fuehrer balcony) from which Hitler used to address admiring crowds.

Long before this was undertaken the chancellery had been gutted by war damage and its fine Italian and Bavarian marbles dismantled by the Russians for use in construct of Soviet army war memorials in this conquered city. The fine woodwork also was taken by the Russians.

Now what's left of the chancellery that can be salvaged will be used as building materials for German purposes. The ultimate residue also will serve a specified purpose.

The Russian-controlled "Berliner Zeitung" said the chancellery debris will be used to fill up the cavity left by the blowing up of Hitler's spacious private air raid shelter in the chancellery garden.

It was in this underground shelter that Hitler and Eva Braun were believed to have committed suicide along with the entire Goebbels family, in the last days of the battle of Berlin.

The shelter was destroyed last year, but it left a hole in the ground in the midst of a garden long gone to ruin. The rubble from the chancellery should be more than sufficient to remove this last trace of unevenness in the soil where Hitler once reigned supreme.

OFFICERS CONDUCT INTENSIVE SEARCH

Authorities here, determined to apprehend the person or persons responsible for the New South Drug Store-Dr. A. G. McHenry office burglary Thursday night, yesterday intensified their investigation with officers, detectives and sheriff deputies working on a 24-hour shift aimed at nabbing the thieves before they leave the city.

Listed by police as stolen by the intruders were ten dollars in cash and a "small amount of narcotics" from the doctor's office and nearly $1,100 in cash from the drug store. Dr. McHenry's office is located directly above the drug establishment on the corner of DeSiard and South Grand streets.

Officers who investigated the "break in" expressed their belief that "whoever did the job definitely knew what they were doing."

Entrance was gained through an upstairs window in the doctor's office. The window opened onto a fire escape.

The two men booked at police headquarters Friday morning, with "suspicion of breaking and entering at night," were not connected with the burglary, officers said.

Police identified the men as A. S. Gentry, 32, Epps, and James L. King, 25, of Tullos.

Don't Count Opinion Polls Out

Polls and pollsters have been reaping a post-election harvest of scorn and ridicule for pinning the blue ribbon on the wrong entry. But we think the opinion surveys deserve a calmer and fairer appraisal than they have been getting before the public decides to consign Gallup, Roper and Crossley to the limbo of Funk and Wagnalls.

Several leading politicians—all Democrats, oddly enough—have complained of a lack of fairness in the election polls. One of them said something about the opinion samplers hitting a "new low" in deceiving the public.

But deliberate deception would have been silly. After all, the poll-takers are in business the year round. All they have to sell is accuracy. Besides, it is pretty clear that the Republicans and not the Democrats were the ones who suffered from the polls' wrong conclusions.

Maybe there was carelessness or lack of thoroughness in taking the 1948 political polls. Maybe emotion or bias crept in somewhere. We don't know. Something was wrong. But that doesn't mean that people must cease believing in opinion surveys.

Opinion sampling is a science—maybe a developing and still inexact science, but a science nevertheless. Its techniques are the result of sound reasoning, trial, error and correction. A sampling, correctly taken, is not unlike a scale model or pilot plant of a full-size industrial operation.

Opinion surveys are not only highly valuable in manufacturing, marketing and other lines of business. They are important, for instance, in the conduct of our democratic government. Stuart Chase in his new book, "The Proper Study of Mankind," recalls that, in 1941, congressional mail was 90 per cent against the draft law. But the polls showed a majority of all Americans in favor of the draft. And the draft bill won by only a single vote.

The famous Literary Digest post card poll of 1936 was not scientific. Mr. Chase explains what happened: "The Digest based its conclusions on a sample which was 'biased' statistically, that is, it did not represent the people who would actually go to the polls. The post cards came from telephone book names in considerable part, which gave an upper bracket bias. Poor people have votes but not always telephones.

"The Digest also depended on people who had the clerical habit strongly enough to mail a post card. . . . So the Digest accumulated a second bias . . . toward the more educated, conservative and prosperous. . . . The prosperous are traditionally skewed in the direction of the Republican party. Thus the Digest easily won the election for Landon."

The 1948 poll results certainly show that the operation of a survey is far from foolproof. The pollsters are now checking back on themselves to see where they made their errors. Those errors cost them a lot of prestige. They probably also did a lot to swing the elections. Maybe it was an expensive lesson for Messrs. Roper, Crossley and Gallup, but undoubtedly they will profit by it.

Meanwhile we think the public might do well to think twice before branding the whole science of poll-taking as crooked or stupid or pointless and refusing to put any faith in it ever again.

LITERARY TREASURE

For years one of the favorite plots for novels and mystery stories has been the discovery of valuable manuscripts. As fiction this plot has been worn threadbare, but in real life the literary adventure is perennially bright with promise, exciting, thrilling and always new.

Strange as it may seem in a world devoted to destruction, scholars are still fiercely devoted to preserving the tangible evidences of culture, and theirs is a universe in which the pen will forever be mightier than the sword.

It is reassuring—contagious, too—to read of the enthusiasm of the audience invited to view the private exhibition of new Boswell manuscripts held at the Grolier Club in New York City. The learned gentlemen, the majority professors of English at large universities, were as fascinated, awe-struck and humble in the presence of this treasure as the archeologists who uncover buried cities.

The story of the tremendous find—tremendous not only in the value of the material, but in its physical bulk—is stuff to put the movies to shame. Servants in cleaning out the loft of an outbuilding used for storing furniture at the Scotland seat of the Boswell family turned up the manuscripts. The habit of thrift, applied to saving old papers, has driven many a neat housewife frantic and four times out of five the accumulation is worthless. The fifth time, it shakes the scholar's world.

Only last September, a man in Pittsfield, Mass., a recognized collector of Americana, announced that he had identified 14 hitherto "unknown" short stories as by Nathaniel Hawthorne. He had found the book on which he based the announcement in a private library of 150 volumes he had bought in one of the Berkshire towns. It is this possibility—rare, too often disappointing—that beckons the collector on and leads him frequently into spending more than he can afford.

In the midst of their excitement and eagerness, the professors made another discovery, one that is probably commonly experienced by all whose concern is with voices so long stilled and the famous so long dust. Among the papers is Boswell's account of a dream he had six weeks before Johnson died. The account is now being studied by a psychiatrist—the ultimate fate, it is likely, of all disclosures of a man's emotion—but that cannot detract from its appeal as the record of a faithful heart.

In this dream Boswell relates he begged Dr. Johnson, if he had any influence where he now abode, to pray for him.

While the whole world is in pain and the country in danger, minor politicians merely squabble for petty patronage. —Adolf A. Berle, Jr., chairman, Liberal party of New York.

One of the outstanding dramatic offerings of the year and a sure-fire contender for Academy honors. . . . RECOMMENDED: 20th Century-Fox's "When My Baby Smiles at Me" (Betty Grable-Dan Dailey-Jack Oakie-June Havoc). A filmusical breeze that will leave everyone smiling. . . . GOOD: Universal-International's "The Countess of Monte Cristo" (Sonja Henie-Olga San Juan-Dorothy Hart-Michael Kirby). The ice queen, in fine form, cuts figures that will look like dollar signs to theater-owners. . . . United Artists' "High Fury" (Madeleine Carroll-Ian Hunter Michael Rennie). Satisfactory drama, filmed against an Alpine background that will thrill mountain lovers. . . . SUB-PAR: Columbia's "Racing Luck" (Gloria Henry-Stanley Clements-David Bruce). The luck might have been better if they'd started with a story. . . . BEST PERFORMANCE: Olivia de Havilland in "The Snake Pit."

I'm told that the M. P. P. A. has decided to boycott any fan magazine which dares to publish a story "detrimental" to the movie industry, and, from past observations for a considerable period of time, I judge that all stories offering criticism of stars, studios or pictures will be judged "detrimental." Someday, perhaps, the M. P. P. A. ostriches will awaken to the facts of life. When, and if, that occurs, they'll discover that their avowed purpose of protecting the movie industry would be better served by a boycott of the screen celebrities whose misbehavior furnishes the material for "detrimental" articles.

There's been much publicity about a new plastic skin perfected by an RKO make-up expert named Gordon Bau. It's being used for the first time in "The Set-up" to give Robert Ryan, who plays the role of a battered, punch drunk boxer, realistic facial scars. Far more interesting than its application to movie make-up, however, is its potential value to the millions of people throughout the world whose lives are being marred by unsightly scars and blemishes. Bau states flatly that his plastic skin can be 100 per cent effective in covering up most superficial disfigurments. He says that the material looks like skin, feels like skin and can be put on, or taken off, as easily as you'd don a glove.

Speaking of Robert Ryan, I'm ready to give him high rank among the real-life heroes of Hollywood. A couple of days before he finished "The Set-Up," he sold the family car, bought a brand new station wagon, and decided on a month-long vacation tour of the Pacific Northwest. The evening before the trip was to start, his wife took the station wagon out for a spin and wrecked it so completely that the vacation jaunt had to be canceled for want of transportation. Why does all this make Ryan a hero? Well, I have Mrs. R's word for it that Bob never gave her one single word of criticism or advice about her driving.

The other day I asked the veteran publicist who had much to do with Charlie Chaplin's one time reputation as a philosopher whether he'd founded his publicity on Charlie's pictures or on his private life utterances. "Neither," he replied. "I simply figured he must be a philosopher because he spent so much time sitting on a curb and spitting reflectively at a crack."

Pitching Horseshoes

There's a gent in this town named Avian Peppermill who writes a column for gourmets (a gourmet, Junior, is a pig in an Ascot tie), and since the pronouncements of Avian on the pap and pablum of the privileged are widely read and followed, there's hardly a swank restaurant in Manhattan where he doesn't have free entre, not to mention dessert.

I dropped around to see Avian the other day. "Reviewed any good omelettes lately?" I asked.

Peppermill smiled like Dracula when he sees a lily white neck. "I see you haven't been following my column lately," he said.

"I don't dare," I said. "Just reading your prose makes me put on poundage. Did you discover a new restaurant?"

"Two restaurants," Avian said proudly. "The first is a little French place in the upper Sixties known as Anatole's. I happened to pass it recently, so I stopped in and introduced myself to the proprietor, and he, in turn, introduced me to cassoulet, an Algerian concoction made of two small chickens, pork, garlic sausage, chicken livers and diced tongue, cooked with flagellot beans, tomatoes, butter and Algerian wine."

"Just like Escoffier's mother used to make," I said, drooling politely.

"A simple dish, but not without interest," said the George Jean Nathan of the nosebags. 'I returned to my office and, between sips of my favorite beverage—bicarbonate and essence of peppermint—I wrote my review, giving Anatole three and a half stars.

"The day after my column appeared, I received a letter informing me that Anatole was a Marseilles mountebank who couldn't peel a parsnip without cutting himself, and that if I really wanted to sample la vraie cuisine Francaise, I should hurry to a snail shack known as Louis' Bijou de Gironde—right across the street from Anatole's—and sample their paupiettes de veau Fontagnes—veal prepared with liver, white mushrooms, sweetbreads, puree of petit pois, and fine sherry. That evening I spent a fascinating two hours over this masterpiece and then hustled back to my typewriter to peck out its praises.

"A few hours after my paper hit the street, Anatole himself was in my office with the news that Louis was a Bordeaux bum who didn't know a scallion from a skillet. He protested that I had caught him on my first visit 'with his pans downs,' and promised that if I would drop in that evening he would offer me a repast worthy of my palate—pate de langouste, escargots Antibes, cotelettes de volaille Vicomtesse, topped by mousse au chocolat and a drop of Vielle Cure.

"Well, from that day on, my column became a feuding ground for these two masters of the culinary art. As the battle for my praises became more intense, each proprietor instructed his doorman to be on the lookout for me, and no sooner would I emerge from Anatole's filled with, say, moules a la poulette a la mode de Foyot—mussels bathed in sherry and cream—than I would be buttonholed by the rival lookout and asked to taste the homard a la Barante—a lobster-cheese-capers-mushroom-Burgundy casserole.

"Well, Billy, it was the most exciting two weeks of my life, and few men, not excepting the illustrious Brillat-Savarin himself, have had so many gastronomic thrills in so short a time. The duel might still be going on if . . . ."

Just then a girl in a crisp, white dress came in. "Visiting hours are over," she said, sticking a thermometer in Avian Peppermill's mouth.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

The late Dr. George A. Gordon, of the Old South Church in Boston, whom the late Dr. Cadman, himself a notable preacher, considered the greatest of all American preachers, once remarked that it is the quality of all great prophecy that it bursts into song.

The truth of that is at least evidenced in the prophecy and poetry of the Old Testament. The prophecy and poetry alike came out of the religiously heroic era of Israel. They are intermingled. The poetry of the Psalms frequently expresses the noblest prophecy, and in the great prophecies are passages of such lyrical beauty that are in the realm of poetry.

One thinks of such outstanding passages as Isaiah 35 and Isiah 62, Amos 3, and Jeremiah 51. Also, great portions of the prophecies are cast in forms of symbolism, more characteristic of poetry than of prose.

What, however, specifically characterized Hebrew poetry as distinguished from Hebrew prose? It is a question to which an intelligent answer can be given at a time when, in our modern literary world, poetry is less conceived in terms of the rhyming of similar word endings.

Rhythm is not identified with rhyme, but the rhythm that in our typical poetry is associated with the rising and falling of accents, in Hebrew poetry is associated with forms of parallel statements. These are of three sorts. Sometimes the parallel statements express the same idea in different or repetitive ways. Sometimes the parallel expresses contrast. And sometimes the second statement is an expanding, or carrying on, of the thought expressed in the first statement of the poetic verse.

Specific examples will make the nature of these three forms of parallelism plain. The poetic parallelism of the same thought is expressed in such a verse as in Psalm 5:1, "Give ear to my words, O Lord; consider my meditation."

The poetic parallelism of contrast is expressed in Proverbs 15:13, "A merry heart maketh a cheerful countenance: but by sorrow of the heart the spirit is broken."

And the poetic development of the initial thought is illustrated in the famous "Shepherd Psalm," the 23rd, in which the forms of both parallel statement and developing thought seem to be combined. That Psalm, which has gained such a hold wherever the Bible is known, stands as the perfect example of Hebrew poetry.

To understand the forms is to catch the rhythm and beauty of expression of the poetry of the Bible; but it must not be forgotten that Hebrew poetry is more notable and importantly instructive for what it says than for the way it says it.

It is a part of the expression of God's truth for man's life. "Strength and beauty are in His sanctuary."

FEDERAL PROSE

Do you want to laugh?

Do you want to forget the election?

Read "Federal Prose," by James R. Masterson and Wendell Brooks Phillips, published by the University of North Carolina Press, Chapel Hill, N. C.

This is a book of instructions on how to write the new English which nobody understands, not even those who write it. It is the prose that instructs you how to live, what to do, when to pay taxes, how to run a farm, what's good in marriage and how to raise bees. It is the prose which more and more is running our lives.

Here is a perfect example:

"English—

Too many cooks spoil the broth.

Federal Prose—

Undue multiplicity of personnel assigned either concurrently or consecutively to a single function involves deterioration of quality in the resultant product as compared with the product of the labor of an exact sufficiency of personnel."

Did you ever write a letter about something simple to a Washington bureau and get a reply that drove you nuts? Well, get this book of instructions telling the officeholder how to write. This next one will make it all clear to you. In English, it is simply:

"Hickory, dickory, dock.
A mouse ran up the clock,
The princess hopped, the fiddlers stopped,
Not knowing what to do."

In federal prose, the doggerel becomes:

"A sound suggestive of but distinguishable from striking issued from a tall clock in a ballroom in which a princess was but the most distinguished of the gay multitude that whirled in unison to the strains of a corps of violinists. Startled by the sudden and discordant plangency, the beauteous scion of royalty stumbled to an abrupt halt in her graceful evolutions; the orchestra, confused by this cessation of movement, subsided into silence; and only after investigation had divulged the origin of the perturbing phenomena in the hitherto unsuspected ascent, within the clock, of a rodent that had in some manner not ascertained effected adit thereto, were the festivities resumed."

You can learn a lot from this book. In fact, if you copy its style, your business will improve. Your customers will be so astounded that they will engage in constant correspondence with you to find out what has happened to you. Their solicitude will bring them closer to you and you to them. Out of their deep sympathy, they might buy your product. Then again they might not. It is one of those "on the one hand—on the other hand" situations which explains everything.

Just think, how you can perfect your style if you follow the instructions in this book. Take, for instance, the preposition "of." I don't know if you ever use the preposition "of." Maybe you don't like prepositions. Now, in federal prose, "if" is apparently not very popular. They dislike "of." The writers of this immortal style, which I am told originated in the Harvard Law School, eschew "of." So, here is what federal prose does to "of":

"Never to be used as part of the title of an agency or administrative unit. Wrong: 'The minutes of the board on investigation of potentialities of instrumentalities looking toward the liquidation of noxious reptilians in the mountains of the moon.' Right: 'The moon mountains noxious reptilians liquidation instrumentalities investigation board minutes,' or, for typist-hour economy, 'The MMNRLIB minutes.' In all other contexts, when possible, attributive nouns are to be substituted for adjectival prepositional phrases. Bad: 'The study of history.' Good: 'History study.'"

And to cap the climax, read this one:

"English—

Red tape.

Federal prose—

Substitute through channels. Unpardonable: 'Red tape is the curse of government work.' Correct: 'Regularization of procedure through channels is conducive to uniformity of product, distribution of responsibility, and non-abruptness of terminability.'"

Try this on Junior! He may be hep to it.

BIBLE THOUGHTS

Say unto the king and to the queen, Humble yourselves, sit down; for your principalities shall come down, even the crown of your glory.—Jeremiah 13:18.

The high mountains are barren, but the low valleys are covered over with corn; and accordingly the showers of God's grace fall into lowly hearts and humble souls.—Worthington.

REMEMBER THE ALAMO!

"Remember the Alamo" is one of the great battlecries of American history, because some distinguished Americans fought there to the last against insuperable odds. Sometimes it is better to die fighting than to surrender—and that was the decision of these patriots in this fight.

One of the heroes of this epic struggle was the famous Tennessean, David Crockett. He has been a congressman from Tennessee in the nation's capitol, but becoming disgusted with some of the petty quarelling among the politicians of his day, which convinced him they were more interested in getting votes than they were in the welfare of their country, he pulled up stakes with the statement, "You all can go to hell; I'm going to Texas!"

I think David Crockett, along with his fellow Tennessean, Sam Houston, and all the others, set the keynote for the spirit of freedom and independence and self-reliance which still characterize the people of Texas. As great as are the natural resources of Texas and as great as is its land area, it is still the spirit of the people more than anything else that has brought that state its amazing progress. One does not have to be in Texas long to sense it. They do not believe that the world is finished. They do not believe that people's wants are satisfied. They do not believe that there is no longer any place for the spirit of enterprise among the people and that therefore the only thing left is for the government to take over.

Of course, this spirit of individual freedom, with all its initiative and ingenuity and incentive, is the foundation of the American way of life. It is the keynote to our philosophy of government; it is the password to the prosperity we have attained. It has brought our nation to a position of preeminence among the nations of the world in the comparatively short period of 160 years; it has brought our people the highest standard of living the world has ever known. If it now seems to have its greatest stronghold among the people of Texas, so much more to their credit! There is one thing certain: it must be retained if we are to preserve the form of government under which we have lived and prospered. It will be a sad day, a fatal day, when and if it is lost to the American people.

We are seeing this fact now tragically demonstrated in Great Britain. Often thought of and referred to as our "Mother Country," the spirit of freedom upon which our government is based had its birth there. King John was forced to sign the Magna Charta by men who preferred to die rather than surrender. The Bill of Rights was attained by men of the same spirit. That spirit came on over into the colonies. The Revolutionary War was fought, the fundamental documents under which we had lived were written, the United States of America was founded by men who preferred to die for principles rather than live in spiritual slavery.

But we are now having impressed upon us as never before the truth that "the price of liberty is eternal vigilance." Because a people have once been inculcated with the spirit of freedom does not mean that it is theirs forever. We are seeing the pages of history written before our eyes stating that the people of Britain have lost their spirit. They have lost their independence and their self-reliance. They want a high standard of living and they want security, but rather than attain these things through their own efforts—which history tells us is the only way they can be attained—they are ignoring the lessons of history and are leaving their welfare and their future in the hands of a socialist government. Just one illustration will show how well this government is succeeding: under nationalization, the government sustained a deficit last year of $80,000,000 in the operation of their railroads. Now they are proposing nationalization of the steel industry!

Of course, deficits must be paid by somebody. Since the United States has poured more than $5 billion into Great Britain since the end of the war, it is possible—no, it is probable—no, it is a fact that the people of the United States are paying for the failures of the Socialist government of Great Britain. To say nothing of providing the means whereby it stays in power!

The people of the United States would do well to study this history as it is written. It could happen here! It is a sad thing to see a people lose their spirit. It would be better for mankind, in the eternal quest for freedom, if they had died fighting at "The Alamo."

What Others Say
Editors' Roundtable

PUBLIC OPINION POLLS

Survey of editorials selected from 100 leading dailies—Democratic, Republican and Independent—indicates that a large majority of editors simply feel that public opinion polls are not yet scientific enough to predict a close division of popular vote, and its distribution by States; many doubt they ever will be. Oppositely, however, a considerable number feel that the accuracy of the polls was their own undoing—by inspiring a complacent Republican campaign and lack of Republican voting. Satisfaction is rather general that the spell of poll infallibility, unduly influencing legislation, has been broken.

Wichita Falls (Texas) Record News (Dem.): "Dr. Gallup . . explains that there was an upsurge right at the last that elected Truman. . . But some folks seem to think he ought to have detected signs of the upsurge in time to have said something about it."

Augusta, (Ga.) Chronicle (Dem.): "It seems to us that the most important thing that the professional samplers of public opinion should learn, if they can, is what makes human beings change their minds. That's what we believe happened in this presidential election. Millions of them just didn't vote as they said they were going to vote."

Fort Worth (Texas) Star-Telegram (Independent-Democrat): "The very fact that all the dopesters were so sure that President Truman was running a hopeless race may well have been an important factor in the upset. It apparently made Republicans over-confident, and this feeling was reflected in the type of campaign Governor Dewey conducted."

San Diego (Calif.) Tribune-Sun (Rep.): "A final job for their craft the pollsters might attempt to learn the extent of their own responsibility in upsetting the election. . . . The Republicans, feeling certain that the election was in the bag, didn't turn out to vote. Democrats, prodded by a sense of desperation, did cast their ballots. . . . As a service to their nation the pollsters might make this a joint project."

Chattanooga (Tenn.) News-Free Press (Ind.): "On the whole, the poll figures were reasonably accurate. They were simply interpreted badly. The election was so close in many states that no poll could be expected to indicate which side would have a majority. The trouble was that the pollsters gave Dewey many states that should have been listed as doubtful—especially in view of the undecided vote."

New York Herald Tribune (Ind.-Rep.): "If a poll-taker predicts a candidate's percentage as 58.5 and it turns out to be 54.1, he will say that the percentage of error was 4.4. This is very misleading. Thus, Dr. George Gallup claims that his percentage of error . . . on the basis of a four party vote was only 2.5 per cent. Yet the vote President Truman actually got was more than 10 per cent greater than could have been expected on the basis of the Gallup prediction, while Governor Dewey's vote was more than 10 per cent smaller. It is apparent, then, that the poll-takers have laid claim to a degree of accuracy they do not achieve."

Austin (Texas) Statesman (Dem.): "It probably would be a good thing for the country if these polls were polls to end polls. The idea of a small and select group of individuals claiming to represent the broad tempers of the country and its millions is an odious one in any event. It suggests polls instead of elections."

Tuscaloosa (Ala.) News (Ind.-Dem.): "Other polls on mercantile items and the like certainly have their places in American economy. But political polls will have no place, unless the pollsters will tell the truth and give the number of people polled. Unless they realize this important fact, and live with it, we are 'off' of them for life."

Indianapolis (Ind.) Star (Ind.-Rep.): "We still have high regard for the ability of Dr. George Gallup, Elmo Roper, A. M. Crossley and others who have tried to make an exact science of sample polling. . . However, we must confess to a feeling of genuine relief at learning in this election that no polling method can infallibly gauge the American temper. We sincerely believe it would weaken our democracy if these learned gentlemen could feel a political pulse here and another there and then report with consistent accuracy how the majority of us are going to vote."

Chicago Tribune (Ind.): "Having been bitten as badly as the next one, we hope that we will have the courage to swear off these sessions with the crystal ball in the future."

Don't Count Opinion Polls Out

Polls and pollsters have been reaping a post-election harvest of scorn and ridicule for pinning the blue ribbon on the wrong entry. But we think the opinion surveys deserve a calmer and fairer appraisal than they have been getting before the public decides to consign Gallup, Roper and Crossley to the limbo of Funk and Wagnalls.

Several leading politicians—all Democrats, oddly enough—have complained of a lack of fairness in the election polls. One of them said something about the opinion samplers hitting a "new low" in deceiving the public.

But deliberate deception would have been silly. After all, the poll-takers are in business the year round. All they have to sell is accuracy. Besides, it is pretty clear that the Republicans and not the Democrats were the ones who suffered from the polls' wrong conclusions.

Maybe there was carelessness or lack of thoroughness in taking the 1948 political polls. Maybe emotion or bias crept in somewhere. We don't know. Something was wrong. But that doesn't mean that people must cease believing in opinion surveys.

Opinion sampling is a science—maybe a developing and still inexact science, but a science nevertheless. Its techniques are the result of sound reasoning, trial, error and correction. A sampling, correctly taken, is not unlike a scale model or pilot plant of a full-size industrial operation.

Opinion surveys are not only highly valuable in manufacturing, marketing and other lines of business. They are important, for instance, in the conduct of our democratic government. Stuart Chase in his new book, "The Proper Study of Mankind," recalls that, in 1941, congressional mail was 90 per cent against the draft law. But the polls showed a majority of all Americans in favor of the draft. And the draft bill won by only a single vote.

The famous Literary Digest post card poll of 1936 was not scientific. Mr. Chase explains what happened: "The Digest based its conclusions on a sample which was 'biased' statistically, that is, it did not represent the people who would actually go to the polls. The post cards came from telephone book names in considerable part, which gave an upper bracket bias. Poor people have votes but not always telephones.

"The Digest also depended on people who had the clerical habit strongly enough to mail a post card. . . . So the Digest accumulated a second bias . . . toward the more educated, conservative and prosperous. . . . The prosperous are traditionally skewed in the direction of the Republican party. Thus the Digest easily won the election for Landon."

The 1948 poll results certainly show that the operation of a survey is far from foolproof. The pollsters are now checking back on themselves to see where they made their errors. Those errors cost them a lot of prestige. They probably also did a lot to swing the elections. Maybe it was an expensive lesson for Messrs. Roper, Crossley and Gallup, but undoubtedly they will profit by it.

Meanwhile we think the public might do well to think twice before branding the whole science of poll-taking as crooked or stupid or pointless and refusing to put any faith in it ever again.

LITERARY TREASURE

For years one of the favorite plots for novels and mystery stories has been the discovery of valuable manuscripts. As fiction this plot has been worn threadbare, but in real life the literary adventure is perennially bright with promise, exciting, thrilling and always new.

Strange as it may seem in a world devoted to destruction, scholars are still fiercely devoted to preserving the tangible evidences of culture, and theirs is a universe in which the pen will forever be mightier than the sword.

It is reassuring—contagious, too—to read of the enthusiasm of the audience invited to view the private exhibition of new Boswell manuscripts held at the Grolier Club in New York City. The learned gentlemen, the majority professors of English at large universities, were as fascinated, awe-struck and humble in the presence of this treasure as the archeologists who uncover buried cities.

The story of the tremendous find—tremendous not only in the value of the material, but in its physical bulk—is stuff to put the movies to shame. Servants in cleaning out the loft of an outbuilding used for storing furniture at the Scotland seat of the Boswell family turned up the manuscripts. The habit of thrift, applied to saving old papers, has driven many a neat housewife frantic and four times out of five the accumulation is worthless. The fifth time, it shakes the scholar's world.

Only last September, a man in Pittsfield, Mass., a recognized collector of Americana, announced that he had identified 14 hitherto "unknown" short stories as by Nathaniel Hawthorne. He had found the book on which he based the announcement in a private library of 150 volumes he had bought in one of the Berkshire towns. It is this possibility—rare, too often disappointing—that beckons the collector on and leads him frequently into spending more than he can afford.

In the midst of their excitement and eagerness, the professors made another discovery, one that is probably commonly experienced by all whose concern is with voices so long stilled and the famous so long dust. Among the papers is Boswell's account of a dream he had six weeks before Johnson died. The account is now being studied by a psychiatrist—the ultimate fate, it is likely, of all disclosures of a man's emotion—but that cannot detract from its appeal as the record of a faithful heart.

In this dream Boswell relates he begged Dr. Johnson, if he had any influence where he now abode, to pray for him.

While the whole world is in pain and the country in danger, minor politicians merely squabble for petty patronage. —Adolf A. Berle, Jr., chairman, Liberal party of New York.

IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 13.—(AP)—With Attorney-for-the-Defense Jerry Geisler still hors' de combat as the result of his traffic crash, looks like the Bob Mitchum trial may be postponed until 1949. . . . Carol Ann Beery, whose act clicked big with service men overseas, is being offered a theatrical tour in the U. S. A. . . . Despite the recurring efforts of certain columnists to treat Rita Johnson's case as a dark mystery, L. A. police are completely satisfied that her injuries were inflicted, accidentally, by a heavy hair dryer. . . . Singer Jo Stafford and her long-time beau, Paul Weston, have chilled.

Jane Russell had to have eight stitches taken in her wrist the other day as the result of a set accident. . . . Dorothy Lamour will be the model for the National Safety Council's propaganda pictures in 1949. . . . On Doc Stork's list: Larry Parks and Betty Garrett—for May. . . . As if a mysterious San Francisco admirer weren't enough to keep her name in the gossip columns, Hedy Lamarr is now getting daily phone calls from a business tycoon down Florida way. . . . Mrs. Irving Berlin will be the new chairwoman of the public relations committee of the Girl Scouts of America.

Franchot Tone and Jean Wallace, who separated in Hollywood and reconciled in Paris, have called it quits again. . . . Ha! Warner Baxter, watching his pal Leroy Prinz being operated on for gall stones, fainted dead away during the carving and nurses had to take time out to revive him. . . . Cary Grant and Betsy Drake have shelved wedding plans.

PREVIEW NIGHTS: Pic of the week: 20th Century-Fox's "The Snake Pit" (Olivia de Havilland-Mark Stevens-Leo Genn). One of the outstanding dramatic offerings of the year and a sure-fire contender for Academy honors. . . . RECOMMENDED: 20th Century-Fox's "When My Baby Smiles at Me" (Betty Grable-Dan Dailey-Jack Oakie-June Havoc). A filmusical breeze that will leave everyone smiling. . . . GOOD: Universal-International's "The Countess of Monte Cristo" (Sonja Henie-Olga San Juan-Dorothy Hart-Michael Kirby). The ice queen, in fine form, cuts figures that will look like dollar signs to theater-owners. . . . United Artists' "High Fury" (Madeleine Carroll-Ian Hunter Michael Rennie). Satisfactory drama, filmed against an Alpine background that will thrill mountain lovers. . . . SUB-PAR: Columbia's "Racing Luck" (Gloria Henry-Stanley Clements-David Bruce). The luck might have been better if they'd started with a story. . . . BEST PERFORMANCE: Olivia de Havilland in "The Snake Pit."

I'm told that the M. P. P. A. has decided to boycott any fan magazine which dares to publish a story "detrimental" to the movie industry, and, from past observations for a considerable period of time, I judge that all stories offering criticism of stars, studios or pictures will be judged "detrimental." Someday, perhaps, the M. P. P. A. ostriches will awaken to the facts of life. When, and if, that occurs, they'll discover that their avowed purpose of protecting the movie industry would be better served by a boycott of the screen celebrities whose misbehavior furnishes the material for "detrimental" articles.

There's been much publicity about a new plastic skin perfected by an RKO make-up expert named Gordon Bau. It's being used for the first time in "The Set-up" to give Robert Ryan, who plays the role of a battered, punch drunk boxer, realistic facial scars. Far more interesting than its application to movie make-up, however, is its potential value to the millions of people throughout the world whose lives are being marred by unsightly scars and blemishes. Bau states flatly that his plastic skin can be 100 per cent effective in covering up most superficial disfigurments. He says that the material looks like skin, feels like skin and can be put on, or taken off, as easily as you'd don a glove.

Speaking of Robert Ryan, I'm ready to give him high rank among the real-life heroes of Hollywood. A couple of days before he finished "The Set-Up," he sold the family car, bought a brand new station wagon, and decided on a month-long vacation tour of the Pacific Northwest. The evening before the trip was to start, his wife took the station wagon out for a spin and wrecked it so completely that the vacation jaunt had to be canceled for want of transportation. Why does all this make Ryan a hero? Well, I have Mrs. R's word for it that Bob never gave her one single word of criticism or advice about her driving.

The other day I asked the veteran publicist who had much to do with Charlie Chaplin's one time reputation as a philosopher whether he'd founded his publicity on Charlie's pictures or on his private life utterances. "Neither," he replied. "I simply figured he must be a philosopher because he spent so much time sitting on a curb and spitting reflectively at a crack."

Pitching Horseshoes
By Billy Rose

Billy Rose

There's a gent in this town named Avian Peppermill who writes a column for gourmets (a gourmet, Junior, is a pig in an Ascot tie), and since the pronouncements of Avian on the pap and pablum of the privileged are widely read and followed, there's hardly a swank restaurant in Manhattan where he doesn't have free entre, not to mention dessert.

I dropped around to see Avian the other day. "Reviewed any good omelettes lately?" I asked.

Peppermill smiled like Dracula when he sees a lily white neck. "I see you haven't been following my column lately," he said.

"I don't dare," I said. "Just reading your prose makes me put on poundage. Did you discover a new restaurant?"

"Two restaurants," Avian said proudly. "The first is a little French place in the upper Sixties known as Anatole's. I happened to pass it recently, so I stopped in and introduced myself to the proprietor, and he, in turn, introduced me to cassoulet, an Algerian concoction made of two small chickens, pork, garlic sausage, chicken livers and diced tongue, cooked with flagellot beans, tomatoes, butter and Algerian wine."

"Just like Escoffier's mother used to make," I said, drooling politely.

"A simple dish, but not without interest," said the George Jean Nathan of the nosebags. 'I returned to my office and, between sips of my favorite beverage—bicarbonate and essence of peppermint—I wrote my review, giving Anatole three and a half stars.

"The day after my column appeared, I received a letter informing me that Anatole was a Marseilles mountebank who couldn't peel a parsnip without cutting himself, and that if I really wanted to sample la vraie cuisine Francaise, I should hurry to a snail shack known as Louis' Bijou de Gironde—right across the street from Anatole's—and sample their paupiettes de veau Fontagnes—veal prepared with liver, white mushrooms, sweetbreads, puree of petit pois, and fine sherry. That evening I spent a fascinating two hours over this masterpiece and then hustled back to my typewriter to peck out its praises.

"A few hours after my paper hit the street, Anatole himself was in my office with the news that Louis was a Bordeaux bum who didn't know a scallion from a skillet. He protested that I had caught him on my first visit 'with his pans downs,' and promised that if I would drop in that evening he would offer me a repast worthy of my palate—pate de langouste, escargots Antibes, cotelettes de volaille Vicomtesse, topped by mousse au chocolat and a drop of Vielle Cure.

"Well, from that day on, my column became a feuding ground for these two masters of the culinary art. As the battle for my praises became more intense, each proprietor instructed his doorman to be on the lookout for me, and no sooner would I emerge from Anatole's filled with, say, moules a la poulette a la mode de Foyot—mussels bathed in sherry and cream—than I would be buttonholed by the rival lookout and asked to taste the homard a la Barante—a lobster-cheese-capers-mushroom-Burgundy casserole.

"Well, Billy, it was the most exciting two weeks of my life, and few men, not excepting the illustrious Brillat-Savarin himself, have had so many gastronomic thrills in so short a time. The duel might still be going on if . . ."

Just then a girl in a crisp, white dress came in. "Visiting hours are over," she said, sticking a thermometer in Avian Peppermill's mouth.

FEDERAL PROSE

Do you want to laugh?

Do you want to forget the election?

Read "Federal Prose," by James R. Masterson and Wendell Brooks Phillips, published by the University of North Carolina Press, Chapel Hill, N. C.

This is a book of instructions on how to write the new English which nobody understands, not even those who write it. It is the prose that instructs you how to live, what to do, when to pay taxes, how to run a farm, what's good in marriage and how to raise bees. It is the prose which more and more is running our lives.

Here is a perfect example:

"English—

Too many cooks spoil the broth.

Federal Prose—

Undue multiplicity of personnel assigned either concurrently or consecutively to a single function involves deterioration of quality in the resultant product as compared with the product of the labor of an exact sufficiency of personnel."

Did you ever write a letter about something simple to a Washington bureau and get a reply that drove you nuts? Well, get this book of instructions telling the officeholder how to write. This next one will make it all clear to you. In English, it is simply:

"Hickory, dickory, dock.
A mouse ran up the clock,
The princess hopped, the fiddlers stopped,
Not knowing what to do."

In federal prose, the doggerel becomes:

"A sound suggestive of but distinguishable from striking issued from a tall clock in a ballroom in which a princess was but the most distinguished of the gay multitude that whirled in unison to the strains of a corps of violinists. Startled by the sudden and discordant plangency, the beauteous scion of royalty stumbled to an abrupt halt in her graceful evolutions; the orchestra, confused by this cessation of movement, subsided into silence; and only after investigation had divulged the origin of the perturbing phenomena in the hitherto unsuspected ascent, within the clock, of a rodent that had in some manner not ascertained effected adit thereto, were the festivities resumed."

You can learn a lot from this book. In fact, if you copy its style, your business will improve. Your customers will be so astounded that they will engage in constant correspondence with you to find out what has happened to you. Their solicitude will bring them closer to you and you to them. Out of their deep sympathy, they might buy your product. Then again they might not. It is one of those "on the one hand—on the other hand" situations which explains everything.

Just think, how you can perfect your style if you follow the instructions in this book. Take, for instance, the preposition "of." I don't know if you ever use the preposition "of." Maybe you don't like prepositions. Now, in federal prose, "if" is apparently not very popular. They dislike "of." The writers of this immortal style, which I am told originated in the Harvard Law School, eschew "of." So, here is what federal prose does to "of":

"Never to be used as part of the title of an agency or administrative unit. Wrong: 'The minutes of the board on investigation of potentialities of instrumentalities looking toward the liquidation of noxious reptilians in the mountains of the moon.' Right: 'The moon mountains noxious reptilians liquidation instrumentalities investigation board minutes,' or, for typist-hour economy, 'The MMNRLIB minutes.' In all other contexts, when possible, attributive nouns are to be substituted for adjectival prepositional phrases. Bad: 'The study of history.' Good: 'History study.'"

And to cap the climax, read this one:

"English—

Red tape.

Federal prose—

Substitute through channels. Unpardonable: 'Red tape is the curse of government work.' Correct: 'Regularization of procedure through channels is conducive to uniformity of product, distribution of responsibility, and non-abruptness of terminability.'"

Try this on Junior! He may be hep to it.

BIBLE THOUGHTS

Say unto the king and to the queen, Humble yourselves, sit down; for your principalities shall come down, even the crown of your glory.—Jeremiah 13:18.

The high mountains are barren, but the low valleys are covered over with corn; and accordingly the showers of God's grace fall into lowly hearts and humble souls.—Worthington.

PRE-SCHOOL CHILD WILL BE STUDIED

The Sherrouse P.-T. A. pre-school discussion group will meet Monday, November 15, at 10 a.m. in the home of Mrs. James Kelly, 4119 DeSiard street. Mrs. Kelly is chairman of the group.

This group is the first one of the kind in the Twin Cities and there are only a few in the state. The theme discussed will be "The Psychology of the Pre-School Child." Everyday problems of directing a child of pre-school age will be discussed.

How to build and maintain good feeling between brothers and sisters will be the topic of the next meeting.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

The late Dr. George A. Gordon, of the Old South Church in Boston, whom the late Dr. Cadman, himself a notable preacher, considered the greatest of all American preachers, once remarked that it is the quality of all great prophecy that it bursts into song.

The truth of that is at least evidenced in the prophecy and poetry of the Old Testament. The prophecy and poetry alike came out of the religiously heroic era of Israel. They are intermingled. The poetry of the Psalms frequently expresses the noblest prophecy, and in the great prophecies are passages of such lyrical beauty that are in the realm of poetry.

One thinks of such outstanding passages as Isaiah 35 and Isiah 62, Amos 3, and Jeremiah 51. Also, great portions of the prophecies are cast in forms of symbolism, more characteristic of poetry than of prose.

What, however, specifically characterized Hebrew poetry as distinguished from Hebrew prose? It is a question to which an intelligent answer can be given at a time when, in our modern literary world, poetry is less conceived in terms of the rhyming of similar word endings.

Rhythm is not identified with rhyme, but the rhythm that in our typical poetry is associated with the rising and falling of accents, in Hebrew poetry is associated with forms of parallel statements. These are of three sorts. Sometimes the parallel statements express the same idea in different or repetitive ways. Sometimes the parallel expresses contrast. And sometimes the second statement is an expanding, or carrying on, of the thought expressed in the first statement of the poetic verse.

Specific examples will make the nature of these three forms of parallelism plain. The poetic parallelism of the same thought is expressed in such a verse as in Psalm 5:1, "Give ear to my words, O Lord; consider my meditation."

The poetic parallelism of contrast is expressed in Proverbs 15:13, "A merry heart maketh a cheerful countenance: but by sorrow of the heart the spirit is broken."

And the poetic development of the initial thought is illustrated in the famous "Shepherd Psalm," the 23rd, in which the forms of both parallel statement and developing thought seem to be combined. That Psalm, which has gained such a hold wherever the Bible is known, stands as the perfect example of Hebrew poetry.

To understand the forms is to catch the rhythm and beauty of expression of the poetry of the Bible; but it must not be forgotten that Hebrew poetry is more notable and importantly instructive for what it says than for the way it says it.

It is a part of the expression of God's truth for man's life. "Strength and beauty are in His sanctuary."

REMEMBER THE ALAMO!

"Remember the Alamo" is one of the great battlecries of American history, because some distinguished Americans fought there to the last against insuperable odds. Sometimes it is better to die fighting than to surrender—and that was the decision of these patriots in this fight.

One of the heroes of this epic struggle was the famous Tennessean, David Crockett. He has been a congressman from Tennessee in the nation's capitol, but becoming disgusted with some of the petty quarelling among the politicians of his day, which convinced him they were more interested in getting votes than they were in the welfare of their country, he pulled up stakes with the statement, "You all can go to hell; I'm going to Texas!"

I think David Crockett, along with his fellow Tennessean, Sam Houston, and all the others, set the keynote for the spirit of freedom and independence and self-reliance which still characterize the people of Texas. As great as are the natural resources of Texas and as great as is its land area, it is still the spirit of the people more than anything else that has brought that state its amazing progress. One does not have to be in Texas long to sense it. They do not believe that the world is finished. They do not believe that people's wants are satisfied. They do not believe that there is no longer any place for the spirit of enterprise among the people and that therefore the only thing left is for the government to take over.

Of course, this spirit of individual freedom, with all its initiative and ingenuity and incentive, is the foundation of the American way of life. It is the keynote to our philosophy of government; it is the password to the prosperity we have attained. It has brought our nation to a position of preeminence among the nations of the world in the comparatively short period of 160 years; it has brought our people the highest standard of living the world has ever known. If it now seems to have its greatest stronghold among the people of Texas, so much more to their credit! There is one thing certain: it must be retained if we are to preserve the form of government under which we have lived and prospered. It will be a sad day, a fatal day, when and if it is lost to the American people.

We are seeing this fact now tragically demonstrated in Great Britain. Often thought of and referred to as our "Mother Country," the spirit of freedom upon which our government is based had its birth there. King John was forced to sign the Magna Charta by men who preferred to die rather than surrender. The Bill of Rights was attained by men of the same spirit. That spirit came on over into the colonies. The Revolutionary War was fought, the fundamental documents under which we had lived were written, the United States of America was founded by men who preferred to die for principles rather than live in spiritual slavery.

But we are now having impressed upon us as never before the truth that "the price of liberty is eternal vigilance." Because a people have once been inculcated with the spirit of freedom does not mean that it is theirs forever. We are seeing the pages of history written before our eyes stating that the people of Britain have lost their spirit. They have lost their independence and their self-reliance. They want a high standard of living and they want security, but rather than attain these things through their own efforts—which history tells us is the only way they can be attained—they are ignoring the lessons of history and are leaving their welfare and their future in the hands of a socialist government. Just one illustration will show how well this government is succeeding: under nationalization, the government sustained a deficit last year of $80,000,000 in the operation of their railroads. Now they are proposing nationalization of the steel industry!

Of course, deficits must be paid by somebody. Since the United States has poured more than $5 billion into Great Britain since the end of the war, it is possible—no, it is probable—no, it is a fact that the people of the United States are paying for the failures of the Socialist government of Great Britain. To say nothing of providing the means whereby it stays in power!

The people of the United States would do well to study this history as it is written. It could happen here! It is a sad thing to see a people lose their spirit. It would be better for mankind, in the eternal quest for freedom, if they had died fighting at "The Alamo."

What Others Say

PUBLIC OPINION POLLS

Survey of editorials selected from 100 leading dailies—Democratic, Republican and Independent—indicates that a large majority of editors simply feel that public opinion polls are not yet scientific enough to predict a close division of popular vote, and its distribution by States; many doubt they ever will be. Oppositely, however, a considerable number feel that the accuracy of the polls was their own undoing—by inspiring a complacent Republican campaign and lack of Republican voting. Satisfaction is rather general that the spell of poll infallibility, unduly influencing legislation, has been broken.

Wichita Falls (Texas) Record News (Dem.): "Dr. Gallup . . explains that there was an upsurge right at the last that elected Truman. . . But some folks seem to think he ought to have detected signs of the upsurge in time to have said something about it."

Augusta, (Ga.) Chronicle (Dem.): "It seems to us that the most important thing that the professional samplers of public opinion should learn, if they can, is what makes human beings change their minds. That's what we believe happened in this presidential election. Millions of them just didn't vote as they said they were going to vote."

Fort Worth (Texas) Star-Telegram (Independent-Democrat): "The very fact that all the dopesters were so sure that President Truman was running a hopeless race may well have been an important factor in the upset. It apparently made Republicans over-confident, and this feeling was reflected in the type of campaign Governor Dewey conducted."

San Diego (Calif.) Tribune-Sun (Rep.): "A a final job for their craft the pollsters might attempt to learn the extent of their own responsibility in upsetting the election. . . . The Republicans, feeling certain that the election was in the bag, didn't turn out to vote. Democrats, prodded by a sense of desperation, did cast their ballots. . . . As a service to their nation the pollsters might make this a joint project."

Chattanooga (Tenn.) News-Free Press (Ind.): "On the whole, the poll figures were reasonably accurate. They were simply interpreted badly. The election was so close in many states that no poll could be expected to indicate which side would have a majority. The trouble was that the pollsters gave Dewey many states that should have been listed as doubtful—especially in view of the undecided vote."

New York Herald Tribune (Ind.-Rep.): "If a poll-taker predicts a candidate's percentage as 58.5 and it turns out to be 54.1, he will say that the percentage of error was 4.4. This is very misleading. Thus, Dr. George Gallup claims that his percentage of error . . . on the basis of a four party vote was only 2.5 per cent. Yet the vote President Truman actually got was more than 10 per cent greater than could have been expected on the basis of the Gallup prediction, while Governor Dewey's vote was more than 10 per cent smaller. It is apparent, then, that the poll-takers have laid claim to a degree of accuracy they do not achieve."

Austin (Texas) Statesman (Dem.): "It probably would be a good thing for the country if these polls were polls to end polls. The idea of a small and select group of individuals claiming to represent the broad tempers of the country and its millions is an odious one in any event. It suggests polls instead of elections."

Tuscaloosa (Ala.) News (Ind.-Dem.): "Other polls on mercantile items and the like certainly have their places in American economy. But political polls will have no place, unless the pollsters will tell the truth and give the number of people polled. Unless they realize this important fact, and live with it, we are 'off' of them for life."

Indianapolis (Ind.) Star (Ind.-Rep.): "We still have high regard for the ability of Dr. George Gallup, Elmo Roper, A. M. Crossley and others who have tried to make an exact science of sample polling. . . However, we must confess to a feeling of genuine relief at learning in this election that no polling method can infallibly gauge the American temper. We sincerely believe it would weaken our democracy if these learned gentlemen could feel a political pulse here and another there and then report with consistent accuracy how the majority of us are going to vote."

Chicago Tribune (Ind.): "Having been bitten as badly as the next one, we hope that we will have the courage to swear off these sessions with the crystal ball in the future."

SUBMARINE TO BE EXHIBITED

Will Be Shown 2 Days This Week In Downtown Monroe

The Navy Club of U. S. A. will have on exhibition in Monroe a German midget submarine on Thursday, November 18, and Friday, November 19. This exhibit will be docked and can be boarded at North Second and DeSiard streets between the hours of 10:00 a.m. and 10:00 p.m. There is no admission charge. However, voluntary donations are gratefully accepted, and funds so raised help the Navy Club of U. S. A. carry on their extensive welfare and rehabilitation program. The midget submarine was known as the "Seehund," and was one of the secret weapons the Nazis developed in their futile efforts to conquer the world. The Seehund is 39 feet long, and weighs 21 tons, carrying two fullsized torpedoes, each being 22 feet long.

The submarine, having a speed of eight knots on the surface, and four knots submerged, was operated by two men. This is the only one in this country and as far as known there are only 2 left in the world, all the rest having been destroyed by the Germans so that the existence of the secret weapon would not be known. This U-boat is mounted on the original trailer used by the Germans to transport this submarine overland. This submarine was launched from this very same trailer along with others of the same type and kind, at desired location for attack upon our ships. They always attasked in a pack the same as wolves and from this method of attack came the well known expression of being attacked by a wolf pack. This is one of the types of submarines the Germans gambled with and which was most vital in their war plans.

The failure of the submarine campaign was due to our effective counter measures, and was one of the deciding factors in the outcome of the war. This submarine was under test observation and study by the navy department. This exhibit is being toured nationally by the Navy Club of U. S. A., a veterans' organization, incorporated by act of congress in 1940. The Navy Club of U. S. A. is the only exclusive national organization of naval veterans, and is strictly a non-profit organization, dedicated to the welfare and rehabilitation of all United States naval personnel. If you are now or have been a sailor, a member of the naval reserve, coast guard, marine corps reserves, a Wave, a Spar, or a woman marine, be sure and register in our visitor's log, after viewing this exhibit.

heavy fighting around Suchow were raised to 50,000.

Raising some doubts of the government claims of more than holding its own against the Communist onslaught, one press report told of an unidentified village changing hands three times on Saturday alone.

A central press report mentioned fighting on both sides of the Grand canal. It was at that ancient waterway that the government was credited Friday with repulsing more than 20 Communist attempts to cross.

(The Communist radio, heard in San Francisco, continued to claim successes. It said another army headquarters and two divisions of "encircled" government troops had been wiped out" east of Suchow on Friday.

(The Communists also announced capture of Hulutao, south Manchurian report which the government yesterday said it had abandoned.

(A further Communist broadcast reported capture of Gen. Liao Yao-Hsing in Manchuria. He was the commander of 12 divisions which the Communists said they had annihilated in October. The government had listed him as slain in battle, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek praised his heroism.)

How do you feel at the end of a day? Is that old time pep and drive lacking? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Thousands now regaining glowing good looks and vitality through the release of vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a general run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special blood potent activating ingredients.

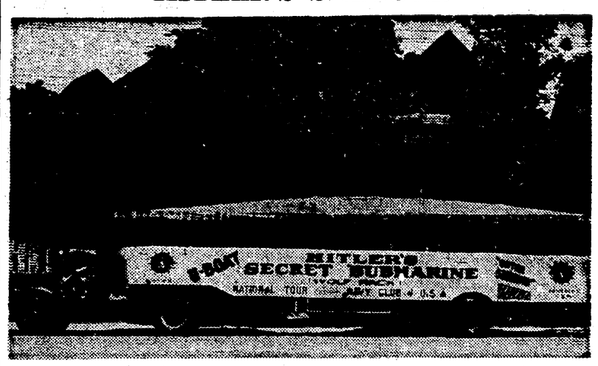
HITLER'S 'SEEHUND'



A midget German submarine, developed in the last stages of Hitler's attempt to dominate the world, will be displayed here Thursday and Friday at the intersection of North Second and DeSiard streets. The small craft will be displayed so as to allow public inspection of the inside. Under sponsorship of the Navy Club, the submarine is touring the country.

CIVIC CHEST IS 70 PCT. FILLED

Still Needs Much Money To Complete The Job, Jordan States

The Community Chest campaign in Monroe is at the 70 per cent mark of its goal at the end of the fifth week of campaigning with a total of $36,059.91 in the coffers.

The big gifts division has reached approximately 89 per cent of the quota set for them. Advance gifts are lagging with only 75 per cent of their cards in. The general business and employe group have completed only sixty-five per cent of their solicitations.

Ivy C. Jordan, general chairman of the drive issued this statement at the end of the fifth week:

"It is to be hoped that we can get every report in during the coming week. I especially urge all firm organizations which have not as yet completed the canvass of their employes to get this job done early this week and see that their reports reach the chest office either through the worker or by calling the chest office at number 3270.

"There will be no neighborhood solicitation and these people who will not be reached through places of employment are urged to mail in their contributions or call the chest office.

"Come on folks, lets dig deep and bust that goal."

ROARK BRADFORD

on the incident to the New York World and from then on drew on his background—his boyhood on the family plantation near Lauderdale, Tenn., for Negro tales.

"Old Man Adam and His Chillun," first a series of Negro Bible stories for the New York World, were issued in book form in 1931. Marc Connelly adopted the book into "Green Pastures" which became a Broadway stage hit and later was made into a movie.

Bradford also wrote other novels, including "John Henry" and "The Three-Headed Angel." His short story, "Child of God" won him the O. Henry Memorial award as the best short story of 1927.

He was a frequent contributor to the country's leading fiction magazines, building many of his stories around "Little Bee Bend Plantation" fictional counterpart of a plantation Bradford owned near Vanceville, La., until last year.

Before turning to fiction he worked at various times on the Atlanta Georgian, the Macon, Ga., Telegraph, the Lafayette, La., Daily Advertiser, and the New Orleans Times Picayune where he was city editor.

He was named consultant in English composition at Tulane University last March. But he disliked formal classes and conducted informal discussion groups on various phases of writing "to give the youngsters the benefit of experiences I have had."

Besides the widow, the former Mary Rose Himler, who also acted as his literary agent, Bradford is survived by a son, Richard, 16.

ALERTNESS PLEDGED

ALEXANDRIA, La., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Gov. Earl K. Long has promised that he will "keep on the alert" for any recurrence of the reprieve of any game law violator.

In a letter to the Rapides Parish Wildlife Association, Long declared that Wildlife Commissioner Ernest Clements has his backing in full enforcement of the law.

The Rapides organization had protested the reprieve granted Charles Edwards last month after his conviction of a game law violation involving a truckload of white perch.

DOCKER'S STRIKE

California vacation because of the tieup, is due here tomorrow morning by plane.

Ryan said yesterday the necessity for the walkout was a "national calamity." He called it after I. L. A. members had voted by a large margin to reject a wage settlement negotiated with shipping operators by the union's leaders.

Federal mediators got the parties together after the union vote was announced, but the employers said they would not raise their 10-cents-an-hour increase offer turned down by the ballots of the rank-and-file longshoremen.

The shutdown in U. S. Atlantic coast ports made a boom town out of Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Several transatlantic liners were diverted there including the Mauretania and the Britannic of the Cuanrd White Star Line and the Veendam of the Holland-American Line.

U. S. customs officers were flown there to expedite handling of passengers. Special trains took travelers to and from New York.

Foreign mail was piling up in New York. Postmaster Albert Goldman said 15 ships scheduled to take mail overseas had been held up.

The agreement rejected by the dock workers called for a hike in day shift straight-time pay from $1.75 to $1.85 an hour, and in the night and week end overtime rate from $2.62 1/2 to $2.77 1/2.

Ryan said the union now was going back to its original demand of a 50 cents an hour raise.

The walkout began in New York unofficially Wednesday after several I. L. A. locals had announced they would not accept the settlement. Ryan had helped negotiate the agreement but he backed the union members in their refusal to accept it.

It originally had been indicated the strike would be extended to south Atlantic and gulf coast ports but union leaders said the men would stay at work there for the present.

REWARDS SPUR HUNT FOR KILLER

Rape-Slayer Of Colorado University Coed Object Of All-Out Manhunt

BOULDER, Colo., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Rewards totalling $11,200 spurred the search for the rape-slayer of 18-year-old Theresa Foster tonight.

Colorado University's board of regents announced they would give $10,000 to the person who provided information leading to the killer's arrest. Boulder's newspaper, The Camera, has collected $1,200 in contributions from residents of this college town. This will be added to the reward jackpot.

Miss Foster, a freshman engineering student, disappeared Tuesday night while returning to her rooming house from a meeting of a Catholic students' organization.

Her body was found Thursday on the snow-covered bank of a creek nine miles south of here. A coroner's inquest stated that she apparently was driven to the spot after having been killed, then thrown over the railing of the bridge to the ground below.

Sheriff Arthur Everson said that there was "no indication of any link" between Miss Foster's death and the Nov. 1 disappearance of another coed. Lillian Debell vanished from the Colorado State campus at Greeley, leaving this note in her dormitory room: "I may be walking into a trap, but I think I know what I am doing."

Lillian's mother, Mrs. John Debell, said that "my husband and I have been so upset over newspaper and radio stories about Miss Foster we don't know what to think about Lillian. But we don't really believe anything bad's happened to her. She took a packed suitcase with her."

Meantime the Denver Post hired Mystery Writer Erle Stanley Gardner to do a series of stories for the paper. Gardner will "interpret the evidence" in the Foster rape-slaying case.

The paper also has employed Criminologist Dr. Lemoyne Snyder, borrowing him from the Michigan crime detection laboratory. Snyder and Gardner offered their services to Boulder county law officers, the Post said.

At Boulder officers today were checking recent activities of known sex offenders. Student absentees who did not attend classes Wednesday, particularly those absentees with cars, were being quizzed.

SUBMARINE TO BE EXHIBITED

Will Be Shown 2 Days This Week In Downtown Monroe

The Navy Club of U. S. A. will have on exhibition in Monroe a German midget submarine on Thursday, November 18, and Friday, November 19. This exhibit will be docked and can be boarded at North Second and DeSiard streets between the hours of 10:00 a.m. and 10:00 p.m. There is no admission charge. However, voluntary donations are gratefully accepted, and funds so raised help the Navy Club of U. S. A. carry on their extensive welfare and rehabilitation program. The midget submarine was known as the "Seehund," and was one of the secret weapons the Nazis developed in their futile efforts to conquer the world. The Seehund is 39 feet long, and weighs 21 tons, carrying two fullsized torpedoes, each being 22 feet long.

The submarine, having a speed of eight knots on the surface, and four knots submerged, was operated by two men. This is the only one in this country and as far as known there are only 2 left in the world, all the rest having been destroyed by the Germans so that the existence of the secret weapon would not be known. This U-boat is mounted on the original trailer used by the Germans to transport this submarine overland. This submarine was launched from this very same trailer along with others of the same type and kind, at desired location for attack upon our ships. They always attasked in a pack the same as wolves and from this method of attack came the well known expression of being attacked by a wolf pack. This is one of the types of submarines the Germans gambled with and which was most vital in their war plans.

The failure of the submarine campaign was due to our effective counter measures, and was one of the deciding factors in the outcome of the war. This submarine was under test observation and study by the navy department. This exhibit is being toured nationally by the Navy Club of U. S. A., a veterans' organization, incorporated by act of congress in 1940. The Navy Club of U. S. A. is the only exclusive national organization of naval veterans, and is strictly a non-profit organization, dedicated to the welfare and rehabilitation of all United States naval personnel. If you are now or have been a sailor, a member of the naval reserve, coast guard, marine corps reserves, a Wave, a Spar, or a woman marine, be sure and register in our visitor's log, after viewing this exhibit.

HITLER'S 'SEEHUND'

A midget German submarine, developed in the last stages of Hitler's attempt to dominate the world, will be displayed here Thursday and Friday at the intersection of North Second and DeSiard streets. The small craft will be displayed so as to allow public inspection of the inside. Under sponsorship of the Navy Club, the submarine is touring the country.

SUCHOW

heavy fighting around Suchow were raised to 50,000.

Raising some doubts of the government claims of more than holding its own against the Communist onslaught, one press report told of an unidentified village changing hands three times on Saturday alone.

A central press report mentioned fighting on both sides of the Grand canal. It was at that ancient waterway that the government was credited Friday with repulsing more than 20 Communist attempts to cross.

(The Communist radio, heard in San Francisco, continued to claim successes. It said another army headquarters and two divisions of "encircled" government troops had been "wiped out" east of Suchow on Friday.

(The Communists also announced capture of Hulutao, south Manchurian report which the government yesterday said it had abandoned.

(A further Communist broadcast reported capture of Gen. Liao Yao-Hsing in Manchuria. He was the commander of 12 divisions which the Communists said they had annihilated in October. The government had listed him as slain in battle, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek praised his heroism.)

Weak, Watery Blood Blamed for Making Men and Women Look and Feel Older

THAN THEIR YEARS

How do you feel at the end of a day? Is that old time pep and drive lacking? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Thousands now regaining glowing good looks and vitality through the release of vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a general run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

CIVIC CHEST IS 70 PCT. FILLED

Still Needs Much Money To Complete The Job, Jordan States

The Community Chest campaign in Monroe is at the 70 per cent mark of its goal at the end of the fifth week of campaigning with a total of $36,059.91 in the coffers.

The big gifts division has reached approximately 89 per cent of the quota set for them. Advance gifts are lagging with only 75 per cent of their cards in. The general business and employe group have completed only sixty-five per cent of their solicitations.

Ivy C. Jordan, general chairman of the drive issued this statement at the end of the fifth week:

"It is to be hoped that we can get every report in during the coming week. I especially urge all firm organizations which have not as yet completed the canvass of their employes to get this job done early this week and see that their reports reach the chest office either through the worker or by calling the chest office at number 3270.

"There will be no neighborhood solicitation and these people who will not be reached through places of employment are urged to mail in their contributions or call the chest office.

"Come on folks, lets dig deep and bust that goal."

ROARK BRADFORD

on the incident to the New York World and from then on drew on his background—his boyhood on the family plantation near Lauderdale, Tenn., for Negro tales.

"Old Man Adam and His Chillun," first a series of Negro Bible stories for the New York World, were issued in book form in 1931. Marc Connelly adopted the book into "Green Pastures" which became a Broadway stage hit and later was made into a movie.

Bradford also wrote other novels, including "John Henry" and "The Three-Headed Angel." His short story, "Child of God" won him the O. Henry Memorial award as the best short story of 1927.

He was a frequent contributor to the country's leading fiction magazines, building many of his stories around "Little Bee Bend Plantation" fictional counterpart of a plantation Bradford owned near Vanceville, La., until last year.

Before turning to fiction he worked at various times on the Atlanta Georgian, the Macon, Ga., Telegraph, the Lafayette, La., Daily Advertiser, and the New Orleans Times Picayune where he was city editor.

He was named consultant in English composition at Tulane University last March. But he disliked formal classes and conducted informal discussion groups on various phases of writing "to give the youngsters the benefit of experiences I have had."

Besides the widow, the former Mary Rose Himler, who also acted as his literary agent, Bradford is survived by a son, Richard, 16.

ALERTNESS PLEDGED

ALEXANDRIA, La., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Gov. Earl K. Long has promised that he will "keep on the alert" for any recurrence of the reprieve of any game law violator.

In a letter to the Rapides Parish Wildlife Association, Long declared that Wildlife Commissioner Ernest Clements has his backing in full enforcement of the law.

The Rapides organization had protested the reprieve granted Charles Edwards last month after his conviction of a game law violation involving a truckload of white perch.

DOCKER'S STRIKE

California vacation because of the tieup, is due here tomorrow morning by plane.

Ryan said yesterday the necessity for the walkout was a "national calamity." He called it after I. L. A. members had voted by a large margin to reject a wage settlement negotiated with shipping operators by the union's leaders.

Federal mediators got the parties together after the union vote was announced, but the employers said they would not raise their 10-cents-an-hour increase offer turned down by the ballots of the rank-and-file longshoremen.

The shutdown in U. S. Atlantic coast ports made a boom town out of Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Several transatlantic liners were diverted there including the Mauretania and the Britannic of the Cunard White Star Line and the Veendam of the Holland-American Line.

U. S. customs officers were flown there to expedite handling of passengers. Special trains took travelers to and from New York.

Foreign mail was piling up in New York. Postmaster Albert Goldman said 15 ships scheduled to take mail overseas had been held up.

The agreement rejected by the dock workers called for a hike in day shift straight-time pay from $1.75 to $1.85 an hour, and in the night and week end overtime rate from $2.62 1/2 to $2.77 1/2.

Ryan said the union now was going back to its original demand of a 50 cents an hour raise.

The walkout began in New York unofficially Wednesday after several I. L. A. locals had announced they would not accept the settlement. Ryan had helped negotiate the agreement but he backed the union members in their refusal to accept it.

It originally had been indicated the strike would be extended to south Atlantic and gulf coast ports but union leaders said the men would stay at work there for the present.

REWARDS SPUR HUNT FOR KILLER

Rape-Slayer Of Colorado University Coed Object Of All-Out Manhunt

BOULDER, Colo., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Rewards totalling $11,200 spurred the search for the rape-slayer of 18-year-old Theresa Foster tonight.

Colorado University's board of regents announced they would give $10,000 to the person who provided information leading to the killer's arrest. Boulder's newspaper, The Camera, has collected $1,200 in contributions from residents of this college town. This will be added to the reward jackpot.

Miss Foster, a freshman engineering student, disappeared Tuesday night while returning to her rooming house from a meeting of a Catholic students' organization.

Her body was found Thursday on the snow-covered bank of a creek nine miles south of here. A coroner's inquest stated that she apparently was driven to the spot after having been killed, then thrown over the railing of the bridge to the ground below.

Sheriff Arthur Everson said that there was "no indication of any link" between Miss Foster's death and the Nov. 1 disappearance of another coed, Lillian Debell vanished from the Colorado State campus at Greeley, leaving this note in her dormitory room: "I may be walking into a trap, but I think I know what I am doing."

Lillian's mother, Mrs. John Debell, said that "my husband and I have been so upset over newspaper and radio stories about Miss Foster we don't know what to think about Lillian. But we don't really believe anything bad's happened to her. She took a packed suitcase with her."

Meantime the Denver Post hired Mystery Writer Erle Stanley Gardner to do a series of stories for the paper. Gardner will "interpret the evidence" in the Foster rape-slaying case.

The paper also has employed Criminologist Dr. Lemoyne Snyder, borrowing him from the Michigan crime detection laboratory. Snyder and Gardner offered their services to Boulder county law officers, the Post said.

At Boulder officers today were checking recent activities of known sex offenders. Student absentees who did not attend classes Wednesday, particularly those absentees with cars, were being quizzed.

HEAT OF EARTH TOLD BY SHELL

Thunderstone Reveals Temperature Of Formations Years Ago, Geologists Say

By Howard W. Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Editor)

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—A sea shell the size and shape of a cigar, known as the thunderstone, tells the temperature of the earth 60,000,000 years ago, the Geological Society of America reported.

Discovery of this method of telling how warm the earth was long ago apparently can be used to read temperatures almost back to the time when life began.

The thunderstone is the first in which the "thermometer" has been found, but the same record exists in many kinds of sea shells, and these shells in fossil form are the earliest remains of life.

The thermometer is an oxygen compound, which is part of the calcium carbonate that forms all sea shells. It was discovered by Dr. Harold C. Urey and Samuel Epstein, Charles McKinney and John McCrea of the Institute for Nuclear Studies, University of Chicago. The geological society made the report public tonight.

Dr. Urey, a Nobel winner in chemistry, found that two different weights of oxygen atoms go into making sea shells. The weights are 16 and 18. How much 18 there is depends on the temperature of the water in which the shell grows. For every change of one degree, Centigrade, there is a small but measurable change in the amount of oxygen 18.

This makes shells that have fossilized a permanent thermometer for the past, unless chemical changes have occurred over the millions of years. Dr. Urey showed that in some shells there have been no important oxygen changes.

Thunderstones are part of the skeleton of ancestors of present-day squids. They are found often on dry land, and got their name from a superstition that they showed up only during thunderstorms. They were once a magic medicine.

ORDERS AFFECTING OIL OPERATIONS ARE ISSUED

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 3.—(AP)—S. L. Digby, state commissioner of conservation, today issued orders affecting operations in the Cretta and Anse La Butte fields.

The Oretta order granted the Magnolia Petroleum Co. permission to convert its Musser-Davis No. B-1 well to a salt water disposal well in the Cockfield formation.

The Anse La Butte order granted application of Skelly Oil Co. for reallocation of upper Martin "B" sand productive acreage underlying its lease in that field.

VETERAN IS AWARDED 1948 SCHOLARSHIP

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 13.—Robert A. Cunningham, senior mechanical engineering student at Rice Institute, has been awarded the American Petroleum Institute, Houston Chapter scholarship for 1948.

Selection of the most outstanding engineering student at Rice for the annual award is based upon scholarship, character, leadership and ability. Professor L. B. Ryan of Rice Institute headed the Scholarship committee. T. J. Fuson, Humble Oil & Refining Company, chairman of the Houston Chapter, made the award.

Cunningham, son of a retired Presbyterian minister, was a Navy flier during World War II, spending most of his two-years' active duty in the Central Pacific with a patrol-bomber squadron.

An honor student ever since he started his education, he was valedictorian of his graduating class at the high school division of Schreiner Institute at Kerrville, Texas.

He continued his studies at Schreiner in the college division from 1941 to 1943, and again was selected valedictorian of the graduating class. He entered the engineering school at Rice Institute in March, 1946, and was elected to Tau Bata Pi, honorary engineering society in April, 1948.

He also was awarded the Franklin scholarship at Rice for outstanding scholastic standing in his class. During the summer of 1947 he worked for the Republic Natural Gas Company in its Corpus Christi district.

In some past geologic times, it is believed, there was little difference between the types of plants which grew in widely separated parts of the world.

NO OIL SHORTAGE IN UNITED STATES

Increase Of Petroleum From Natural Sources Will Be Available In Few Years

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The United States—contrary to "periodic rumors"—is not running out of oil, a committee of the American Petroleum Institute reported.

L. F. McCollum, chairman of the A. P. I.'s committee on long-term petroleum availability, said the group has found that "substantially increased amounts of petroleum from natural sources" will be available in the United States in the next few years.

McCollum, in a prepared address, at a general session of the A. P. I.'s 28th annual meeting said that after a study of the nation's petroleum resources the committee forecast this outlook for 1949-53:

"By 1953 the availability of natural petroleum produced in the United States is estimated to reach an upper range of 7,300,000 barrels a day. That figure would be 2,300,000 barrels a day more than actual production in the peak war year of 1945.

"And, related to population, the availability for all of 1953 would be equal to almost 800 gallons for each person—about 80 per cent higher than it was in 1941."

McCollum, president of the Continental Oil Co., Ponca City, Okla., said in a speech based on the committee's report:

"It is still impossible to foresee definitely the probable trends beyond 1953. From the best data now obtainable, no significant decline from that year's estimated rates is anticipated during the following five years."

He said that if a decline were indicated, supplementary sources—such as large reserves of natural gas, oil shale and coal—could be synthesized into liquid fuels.

The committee's report, he said was made on the assumption that there would be no government regulation of the industry's activities, no serious interruptions in event of war, an adequate supply of materials and favorable economic conditions.

OIL PLANS LAID FOR LAKE PONTCHARTRAIN

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Plans to develop oil and gas production in Lake Pontchartrain were announced here today by Temple Hargrove and the Lynn Oil Company.

Hargrove, an independent oil producer, said he had paid the Atlantic Refining Co. $600,000 for a three quarters interest in a shut in well on a 5,000 acre tract in the lake. The Lynn Company has purchased two thirds of his interest, Hargrove said.

Hargrove said they plan to drill two wells in the Big Point area of St. Tammany parish.

They will attempt to market the gas to industries along the north shore of the lake, and possibly in New Orleans. First of the new wells will be started in a week or two, Hargrove added.

The present well, completed by Atlantic about two years ago, is the only commercial producer in the lake. It is about three miles off the mouth of Bayou Lacombe.

CONSERVATION OF NATURAL GAS WILL BE DISCUSSED

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 13.—Legislative trends affecting conservation of natural gas will be discussed by Congressman Ross Rizley of Oklahoma at the interstate oil compact commission's annual meeting in Wichita, Kans., December 10-11, Gov. Beauford H. Jester, compact chairman, announced today.

Congressman Rizley was author of the Rizley bill, introduced in the last session of congress, to define the powers of the federal power commission. He is a practicing attorney at Guymon, Okla., which is located in the heart of the Hugoton gas field.

"Because of his active interest in state and federal legislation affecting the conservation of natural gas, Mr. Rizley is exceptionally well qualified to present the subject to the compact commission," Governor Jester said.

"The subject which Mr. Rizley will discuss fits perfectly into the general theme of the Wichita meeting—Conservation of Natural Gas—and his views of legislative trends will be of exceptional interest to those attending the meeting," it was pointed out by Governor Jester.

DRIVE-IN THEATER OPENS WEDNESDAY

The first drive-in theater for Monroe will be formally opened Wednesday with the first show at 6:30 p. m. and the second show at 8:45 p. m. These show hours will be the ones which will comprise the schedule each day, states the owner, B. D. Bright.

Mr. Bright came to Monroe from his native South Carolina and selected the location for his theatre here. His location is a mile south of the city limits on highway 165.

All new equipment is being used and pictures that appeal to the family and family life will be the ones shown. Children in cars under 12 years of age will be admitted free of charge.

The drive-in theater has facilities to accommodate 250 automobiles, Mr. Bright stated.

RECIPROCAL TRADE

WASHINGTON—Look for the administration to ask the next congress to repeal the Gearhart act on world trade.

The act extended U. S. reciprocal trade agreements with 41 nations for only one year and passed administration of the program to the tariff commission.

FLYING BOAT PICKS UP CRASH VICTIMS

GUAM, Nov. 13.—(AP)—A navy flying boat late today picked up the ten crew members of an air force B-29 forced down on little Fais island 400 miles southwest of Guam.

The men were all reported in good condition. They were being taken to Saipan, the flying boat's base, for return to Guam.

Another B-29 with 12 men aboard remained missing after a week of search. It disappeared on a routine flight from Okinawa to Guam.

The plane whose crew was rescued today was engaging in the search when it ran out of fuel.

(The Spokane, Wash., air base Friday night listed eight of the men on Fais as:

Lt. Christopher P. Dixon, Capt. Kenneth Blood, M/Sgt. Eugene G. Hogan, Cpl. John Minion and S/Sgt. Harlyn G. Turner, all of Spokane; Capt. Charles B. Hodges of Natural Bridge, Va., S/Sgt. Elroy C. Foley of Milwaukee, Wis.; and Sgt. Michael D. Scrima of Boston, Mass.)

MUSICIANS CAN'T LAUGH AT JOKES

Union Rules Say Players Must Be Paid More To Be Used On Radio Program

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Anybody that wants to can laugh at radio comedian Arthur Godfrey's jokes—except the musicians on his program.

He won't let them, he says, because it costs too much under union rules.

Godfrey was asked today to explain why he kept telling his musicians last night they couldn't laugh.

Under union rules, Godfrey said, if the musicians laugh or sing, they will come under the American Federation of Radio Artists (A. F. R. A.), instead of just the A. F. of L. Musicians unions.

And that, Godfrey said, would cost him nearly extra $3,000 in weekly pay for that bit of laughter or singing.

"For three years," the comedian said, "the six boys in my band and I have been having all kinds of fun. They'd sing chorouses and we'd kid each other.

"Then all of a sudden A. F. R. A. begins to squawk and says they can't do it. If they open their mouths to sing they come under A. F. R. A.'s jurisdiction. That adds the extra salary."

George Heller, national executive secretary of A. F. R. A., said in New York:

"We feel that if musicians sing on a program they should be paid the A. F. R. A. scale for singers. There is a good deal of unemployment among singers and the ruling is for their protection."

He said nothing about any ban on laughing.

Heller said there was no intention of singling out Godfrey's program.

"The rule applies to all programs where a similar situation exists," he added.

As for the ribbing Godfrey gave the union ruling on his program last night, Heller said:

"If he wants to poke fun at a legitimate union ruling that will protect singers that's his privilege."

Godfrey belongs to four unions—two musicians locals in Washington and New York, plus Equity and A. F. R. A.

STRONG DEODORANT IS SCIENTIST'S PRIZE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Your kitchen may never reek of garlic or dead fish but a Washington scientist reported today he has a compound capable of overcoming them.

Dr. Lowell B. Kilgore said his new compound, sprayed in the air in the form of a mist, will "completely deodorize" all common household odors.

The smell of tobacco smoke, cooked cabbage, peeled onions, etc., will vanish in from 10 to 30 seconds, after a five-second application, he told reporters.

The whiff of garlic and dead fish, Kilgore said, takes about two minutes to overcome and that while the original smell is eliminated, a secondary but inoffensive odor remains for a while.

He said the substance has been under successful test for more than a year and might be made available to the public around the first of next year.

VICE-PRESIDENT WILL GET NEW COAT OF ARMS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—When Senator Barkley takes office as vice-president he will have a new coat of arms, seal and flag.

President Truman issued an executive order today redesigning the heraldic emblems assigned the vice-president in 1936 to bring them more in line with the new presidential coat of arms designed in October, 1945.

The main difference between the president's and vice-president's shield will be in coloring. The president's is on a blue background with 48 encircling white stars. The vice-president's will be on a white background surrounded by 13 blue stars.

The American eagle will be in natural colors instead of blue on the present flag of the second highest officer of the land. It was white on the president's seal before it was changed to natural three years ago.

Also to conform to the general pattern of the president's seal, the vice-president's eagle will face to its right and toward the olive branches of peace which it holds on its right talon. Formerly the eagle faced toward the left talon holding arrows, symbolic of war.

KOREAN REDS

WASHINGTON—Harry F. Weber, former American chancellor of Korean schools under the military government, says Korean teachers are so thoroughly sown with Communist—or Japanese—doctrines that it is almost impossible to change them.

CERTAIN GRAPES THRIVE HERE

Muscadines Are Among Those That Are Recommended By Joyce

It is time now to make plans for propagating grapes for future plantings.

Muscadine grapes can be grown successfully in Louisiana and should be included in home gardens instead of the bunch-type grapes.

These grapes are not injured to any extent by insects and diseases and with proper care they rarely fail to produce a bountiful crop. They produce fruit suitable for making jellies, unfermented juice, wine and for eating fresh.

In early winter make cuttings of short-jointed, medium sized, well-ripened wood. They should be from 15 to 18 inches in length. Store these cuttings in a callusing mound of coarse sand until early spring, or around April 1. These cuttings are kept cool and moist, and the cup places heal over well before spring.

You do not necessarily need a fancy cutting bed to root grape cuttings. After they have callused, or healed well over winter, plant them in a nursery row out in the garden. Leave one or two buds above the ground when you plant them. The soil in which they are planted should be well prepared. Organic matter should be plentiful in this soil, to increase its water-holding capacity. Keep the soil moist to get the maximum number rooted.

The Thomas variety roots readily, whereas the James develops roots slowly and the scuppernong is very difficult to root. The most successful method of propagating muscadines is layering. This is done in summer by bending canes of current season's growth down to the ground and covering all except the growing tip with earth. Since it is too late now to use the layering method, you should take advantage of the method described above and root as many cuttings as you need by starting as soon as the vines are dormant.

BACHELORHOOD HAS ITS PROBLEMS TOO

TOWSON, Md., Nov. 13.—(AP)—A 33-year-old bachelor has figured out a problem that might have stumped the advice-to-the-lovelorn experts:

How to clear up a double involvement with two women, each of whom has borne him three children?

Attorney Bennett B. Cockey said in Baltimore county circuit court yesterday that his client proposed to marry the mother of the three of the children, divorce her, and marry the mother of the other three.

The defendant, William C. Cranston, was up for violation of probation, after it was reported he struck one of the women. The probation was ordered in September when he was convicted of assaulting a policeman.

Not mentioned was which woman Cranston would marry first and divorce, or whether he would prefer to divorce the second one as well. However he must serve 18 months in jail before crossing that bridge.

SWAMI SANTHA'S CEREMONIAL SET

An elaborate ceremonial of Swami Santha No. 102, Nomads of Avrudaka, is set for next Saturday night when approximately 15 will be initiated. Montez Baur, Rani, seeks to notify all Nomads that they are invited. Street work starts at 3 p. m. and Ethel Lancaster will be master of ceremonies. Supper is set for 6:30 p. m. and there will be a short darbar.

The real number eight order will proceed and also a three-act play called "Lessons of Loyalty." A large representation of Santhas from other cities will be present.

Stonewall Lodge No. 8, Knights of Pythias, conferred the second rank at the Thursday night meeting. The third rank will be conferred at the meeting held next Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

CLAIBORNE P.-T. A. PLANS ON MEETING

The Claiborne P.-T. A. will hold its monthly meeting November 19 in the fifth grade room. An interesting program has been prepared by Mrs. M. L. De Freese, program chairman.

"Rethinking Education in Louisiana" will be the title of the talk by Mrs. Chrissie Williams, parish supervisor.

Carrying out the observance of book week, Miss Rockett, assistant parish librarian, will discuss: "Services Available for Patrons for Ouachita Parish Through the Bookmobile Library."

A Thanksgiving program will be rendered by the fourth grade.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The stock market coasted through a slow session today with only minor variation in prices.

Gains had a slight edge over losses but turnover was too meager to indicate a decisive trend. The general undertone, though, was steady.

HEAT OF EARTH TOLD BY SHELL

Thunderstone Reveals Temperature Of Formations Years Ago, Geologists Say

By Howard W. Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Editor)

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—A sea shell the size and shape of a cigar, known as the thunderstone, tells the temperature of the earth 60,000,000 years ago, the Geological Society of America reported.

Discovery of this method of telling how warm the earth was long ago apparently can be used to read temperatures almost back to the time when life began.

The thunderstone is the first in which the "thermometer" has been found, but the same record exists in many kinds of sea shells, and these shells in fossil form are the earliest remains of life.

The thermometer is an oxygen compound, which is part of the calcium carbonate that forms all sea shells. It was discovered by Dr. Harold C. Urey and Samuel Epstein, Charles McKinney and John McCrea of the Institute for Nuclear Studies, University of Chicago. The geological society made the report public tonight.

Dr. Urey, a Nobel winner in chemistry, found that two different weights of oxygen atoms go into making sea shells. The weights are 16 and 18. How much 18 there is depends on the temperature of the water in which the shell grows. For every change of one degree, Centigrade, there is a small but measurable change in the amount of oxygen 18.

This makes shells that have fossilized a permanent thermometer for the past, unless chemical changes have occurred over the millions of years. Dr. Urey showed that in some shells there have been no important oxygen changes.

Thunderstones are part of the skeleton of ancestors of present-day squids. They are found often on dry land, and got their name from a superstition that they showed up only during thunderstorms. They were once a magic medicine.

ORDERS AFFECTING OIL OPERATIONS ARE ISSUED

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 3.—(AP)—S. L. Digby, state commissioner of conservation, today issued orders affecting operations in the Cretta and Anse La Butte fields.

The Oretta order granted the Magnolia Petroleum Co. permission to convert its Musser-Davis No. B-1 well to a salt water disposal well in the Cockfield formation.

The Anse La Butte order granted application of Skelly Oil Co. for reallocation of upper Martin "B" sand productive acreage underlying its lease in that field.

VETERAN IS AWARDED 1948 SCHOLARSHIP

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 13.—Robert A. Cunningham, senior mechanical engineering student at Rice Institute, has been awarded the American Petroleum Institute, Houston Chapter scholarship for 1948.

Selection of the most outstanding engineering student at Rice for the annual award is based upon scholarship, character, leadership and ability. Professor L. B. Ryan of Rice Institute headed the Scholarship committee. T. J. Fuson, Humble Oil & Refining Company, chairman of the Houston Chapter, made the award.

Cunningham, son of a retired Presbyterian minister, was a Navy flier during World War II, spending most of his two-years' active duty in the Central Pacific with a patrol-bomber squadron.

An honor student ever since he started his education, he was valedictorian of his graduating class at the high school division of Schreiner Institute at Kerrville, Texas.

He continued his studies at Schreiner in the college division from 1941 to 1943, and again was selected valedictorian of the graduating class. He entered the engineering school at Rice Institute in March, 1946, and was elected to Tau Bata Pi, honorary engineering society in April, 1948.

He also was awarded the Franklin scholarship at Rice for outstanding scholastic standing in his class. During the summer of 1947 he worked for the Republic Natural Gas Company in its Corpus Christi district.

In some past geologic times, it is believed, there was little difference between the types of plants which grew in widely separated parts of the world.

NO OIL SHORTAGE IN UNITED STATES

Increase Of Petroleum From Natural Sources Will Be Available In Few Years

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The United States—contrary to "periodic rumors"—is not running out of oil, a committee of the American Petroleum Institute reported.

L. F. McCollum, chairman of the A. P. I.'s committee on long-term petroleum availability, said the group has found that "substantially increased amounts of petroleum from natural sources" will be available in the United States in the next few years.

McCollum, in a prepared address, at a general session of the A. P. I.'s 28th annual meeting said that after a study of the nation's petroleum resources the committee forecast this outlook for 1949-53:

"By 1953 the availability of natural petroleum produced in the United States is estimated to reach an upper range of 7,300,000 barrels a day. That figure would be 2,200,000 barrels a day more than actual production in the peak war year of 1945.

"And, related to population, the availability for all of 1953 would be equal to almost 800 gallons for each person—about 80 per cent higher than it was in 1941."

McCollum, president of the Continental Oil Co., Ponca City, Okla., said in a speech based on the committee's report:

"It is still impossible to foresee definitely the probable trends beyond 1953. From the best data now obtainable, no significant decline from that year's estimated rates is anticipated during the following five years."

He said that if a decline were indicated, supplementary sources—such as large reserves of natural gas, oil shale and coal—could be synthesized into liquid fuels.

The committee's report, he said was made on the assumption that there would be no government regulation of the industry's activities, no serious interruptions in event of war, an adequate supply of materials and favorable economic conditions.

OIL PLANS LAID FOR LAKE PONTCHARTRAIN

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Plans to develop oil and gas production in Lake Pontchartrain were announced here today by Temple Hargrove and the Lynn Oil Company.

Hargrove, an independent oil producer, said he had paid the Atlantic Refining Co. $600,000 for a three quarters interest in a shut in well on a 5,000 acre tract in the lake. The Lynn Company has purchased two thirds of his interest, Hargrove said.

Hargrove said they plan to drill two wells in the Big Point area of St. Tammany parish.

They will attempt to market the gas to industries along the north shore of the lake, and possibly in New Orleans. First of the new wells will be started in a week or two, Hargrove added.

The present well, completed by Atlantic about two years ago, is the only commercial producer in the lake. It is about three miles off the mouth of Bayou Lacombe.

CONSERVATION OF NATURAL GAS WILL BE DISCUSSED

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 13.—Legislative trends affecting conservation of natural gas will be discussed by Congressman Ross Rizley of Oklahoma at the interstate oil compact commission's annual meeting in Wichita, Kans., December 10-11, Gov. Beauford H. Jester, compact chairman, announced today.

Congressman Rizley was author of the Rizley bill, introduced in the last session of congress, to define the powers of the federal power commission. He is a practicing attorney at Guymon, Okla., which is located in the heart of the Hugoton gas field.

"Because of his active interest in state and federal legislation affecting the conservation of natural gas, Mr. Rizley is exceptionally well qualified to present the subject to the compact commission," Governor Jester said.

"The subject which Mr. Rizley will discuss fits perfectly into the general theme of the Wichita meeting—Conservation of Natural Gas—and his views of legislative trends will be of exceptional interest to those attending the meeting," it was pointed out by Governor Jester.

DRIVE-IN THEATER OPENS WEDNESDAY

The first drive-in theater for Monroe will be formally opened Wednesday with the first show at 6:30 p. m. and the second show at 8:45 p. m. These show hours will be the ones which will comprise the schedule each day, states the owner, B. D. Bright.

Mr. Bright came to Monroe from his native South Carolina and selected the location for his theatre here. His location is a mile south of the city limits on highway 165.

All new equipment is being used and pictures that appeal to the family and family life will be the ones shown. Children in cars under 12 years of age will be admitted free of charge.

The drive-in theater has facilities to accommodate 250 automobiles, Mr. Bright stated.

RECIPROCAL TRADE

WASHINGTON—Look for the administration to ask the next congress to repeal the Gearhart act on world trade.

The act extended U. S. reciprocal trade agreements with 41 nations for only one year and passed administration of the program to the tariff commission.

FLYING BOAT PICKS UP CRASH VICTIMS

GUAM, Nov. 13.—(AP)—A navy flying boat late today picked up the ten crew members of an air force B-29 forced down on little Fais island 400 miles southwest of Guam.

The men were all reported in good condition. They were being taken to Saipan, the flying boat's base, for return to Guam.

Another B-29 with 12 men aboard remained missing after a week of search. It disappeared on a routine flight from Okinawa to Guam.

The plane whose crew was rescued today was engaging in the search when it ran out of fuel.

Lt. Christopher P. Dixon, Capt. Kenneth Blood, M/Sgt. Eugene G. Hogan, Cpl. John Minion and S/Sgt. Harlyn G. Turner, all of Spokane; Capt. Charles B. Hodges of Natural Bridge, Va., S/Sgt. Elroy C. Foley of Milwaukee, Wis.; and Sgt. Michael D. Scrima of Boston, Mass.)

MUSICIANS CAN'T LAUGH AT JOKES

Union Rules Say Players Must Be Paid More To Be Used On Radio Program

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Anybody that wants to can laugh at radio comedian Arthur Godfrey's jokes—except the musicians on his program.

He won't let them, he says, because it costs too much under union rules.

Godfrey was asked today to explain why he kept telling his musicians last night they couldn't laugh.

Under union rules, Godfrey said, if the musicians laugh or sing, they will come under the American Federation of Radio Artists (A. F. R. A.), instead of just the A. F. of L. Musicians unions.

And that, Godfrey said, would cost him nearly extra $3,000 in weekly pay for that bit of laughter or singing.

"For three years," the comedian said, "the six boys in my band and I have been having all kinds of fun. They'd sing chorouses and we'd kid each other.

"Then all of a sudden A. F. R. A. begins to squawk and says they can't do it. If they open their mouths to sing they come under A. F. R. A.'s jurisdiction. That adds the extra salary."

George Heller, national executive secretary of A. F. R. A., said in New York:

"We feel that if musicians sing on a program they should be paid the A. F. R. A. scale for singers. There is a good deal of unemployment among singers and the ruling is for their protection."

He said nothing about any ban on laughing.

Heller said there was no intention of singling out Godfrey's program.

"The rule applies to all programs where a similar situation exists," he added.

As for the ribbing Godfrey gave the union ruling on his program last night, Heller said:

"If he wants to poke fun at a legitimate union ruling that will protect singers that's his privilege."

Godfrey belongs to four unions—two musicians locals in Washington and New York, plus Equity and A. F. R. A.

STRONG DEODORANT IS SCIENTIST'S PRIZE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Your kitchen may never reek of garlic or dead fish but a Washington scientist reported today he has a compound capable of overcoming them.

Dr. Lowell B. Kilgore said his new compound, sprayed in the air in the form of a mist, will "completely deodorize" all common household odors.

The smell of tobacco smoke, cooked cabbage, peeled onions, etc., will vanish in from 10 to 30 seconds, after a five-second application, he told reporters.

The whiff of garlic and dead fish, Kilgore said, takes about two minutes to overcome and that while the original smell is eliminated, a secondary but inoffensive odor remains for a while.

He said the substance has been under successful test for more than a year and might be made available to the public around the first of next year.

VICE-PRESIDENT WILL GET NEW COAT OF ARMS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—When Senator Barkley takes office as vice-president he will have a new coat of arms, seal and flag.

President Truman issued an executive order today redesigning the heraldic emblems assigned the vice-president in 1936 to bring them more in line with the new presidential coat of arms designed in October, 1945.

The main difference between the president's and vice-president's shield will be in coloring. The president's is on a blue background with 48 encircling white stars. The vice-president's will be on a white background surrounded by 13 blue stars.

The American eagle will be in natural colors instead of blue on the present flag of the second highest officer of the land. It was white on the president's seal before it was changed to natural three years ago.

Also to conform to the general pattern of the president's seal, the vice-president's eagle will face to its right and toward the olive branches of peace which it holds on its right talon. Formerly the eagle faced toward the left talon holding arrows, symbolic of war.

KOREAN REDS

WASHINGTON—Harry F. Weber, former American chancellor of Korean schools under the military government, says Korean teachers are so thoroughly sown with Communist—or Japanese—doctrines that it is almost impossible to change them.

CERTAIN GRAPES THRIVE HERE

Muscadines Are Among Those That Are Recommended By Joyce

It is time now to make plans for propagating grapes for future plantings.

Muscadine grapes can be grown successfully in Louisiana and should be included in home gardens instead of the bunch-type grapes.

These grapes are not injured to any extent by insects and diseases and with proper care they rarely fail to produce a bountiful crop. They produce fruit suitable for making jellies, unfermented juice, wine and for eating fresh.

In early winter make cuttings of short-jointed, medium sized, well-ripened wood. They should be from 15 to 18 inches in length. Store these cuttings in a callusing mound of coarse sand until early spring, or around April 1. These cuttings are kept cool and moist, and the cup places heal over well before spring.

You do not necessarily need a fancy cutting bed to root grape cuttings. After they have callused, or healed well over winter, plant them in a nursery row out in the garden. Leave one or two buds above the ground when you plant them. The soil in which they are planted should be well prepared. Organic matter should be plentiful in this soil, to increase its water-holding capacity. Keep the soil moist to get the maximum number rooted.

The Thomas variety roots readily, whereas the James develops roots slowly and the scuppernong is very difficult to root. The most successful method of propagating muscadines is layering. This is done in summer by bending canes of current season's growth down to the ground and covering all except the growing tip with earth. Since it is too late now to use the layering method, you should take advantage of the method described above and root as many cuttings as you need by starting as soon as the vines are dormant.

BACHELORHOOD HAS ITS PROBLEMS TOO

TOWSON, Md., Nov. 13.—(AP)—A 33-year-old bachelor has figured out a problem that might have stumped the advice-to-the-lovelorn experts:

How to clear up a double involvement with two women, each of whom has borne him three children?

Attorney Bennett B. Cockey said in Baltimore county circuit court yesterday that his client proposed to marry the mother of the three of the children, divorce her, and marry the mother of the other three.

The defendant, William C. Cranston, was up for violation of probation, after it was reported he struck one of the women. The probation was ordered in September when he was convicted of assaulting a policeman.

Not mentioned was which woman Cranston would marry first and divorce, or whether he would prefer to divorce the second one as well. However he must serve 18 months in jail before crossing that bridge.

SWAMI SANTHA'S CEREMONIAL SET

An elaborate ceremonial of Swami Santha No. 102, Nomads of Avrudaka, is set for next Saturday night when approximately 15 will be initiated. Montez Baur, Rani, seeks to notify all Nomads that they are invited. Street work starts at 3 p. m. and Ethel Lancaster will be master of ceremonies. Supper is set for 6:30 p. m. and there will be a short darbar.

The real number eight order will proceed and also a three-act play called "Lessons of Loyalty." A large representation of Santhas from other cities will be present.

Stonewall Lodge No. 8, Knights of Pythias, conferred the second rank at the Thursday night meeting. The third rank will be conferred at the meeting held next Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

CLAIBORNE P.-T. A. PLANS ON MEETING

The Claiborne P.-T. A. will hold its monthly meeting November 19 in the fifth grade room. An interesting program has been prepared by Mrs. M. L. De Freese, program chairman.

"Rethinking Education in Louisiana" will be the title of the talk by Mrs. Chrissie Williams, parish supervisor.

Carrying out the observance of book week, Miss Rockett, assistant parish librarian, will discuss: "Services Available for Patrons for Ouachita Parish Through the Bookmobile Library."

A Thanksgiving program will be rendered by the fourth grade.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The stock market coasted through a slow session today with only minor variation in prices.

Gains had a slight edge over losses but turnover was too meager to indicate a decisive trend. The general undertone, though, was steady.

denomination or race. There will be facilities for 100 persons. Already the inmates and staff from the temporary home for the aged on Hart street have been removed to the new home.

Each resident's room is 13 by 15 feet in size with toilet facilities immediately adjacent. Suitable closet space has been provided. As occupants will spend considerable time in their rooms, ample window areas are installed. Resident's meals will be served in rooms so that there will be no need for large dining rooms.

Each floor possesses a social room wherein the residents can spend their leisure hours. Galleries are located off these areas.

The principal nurses' stations are so located on the floors that they may serve with the most efficiency at the juncture of corridors. The stations also serve the social rooms as they are in close proximity.

A central service area, comprising a cleaning room, work space, sterilizing and sterile supply room, is on the first floor, adjacent to a minor surgery room.

Laboratary, pharmacy and X-ray rooms are well provided in the layout. An administrative office, doctors' and clergy room and chaplain quarters are located on the first floor.

Meals will be served in a modern, sanitary kitchen equipped and planned in a functional manner. Walls and floors are of glazed tile. Equipment is of stainless steel. Walk-in refrigerators for meat, vegetables and dairy products are built-in features.

The laundry has glazed tile walls and floors. Kitchen, laundry and boiler room are housed in a separate wing so as to minimize the transmission of noise, odors and traffic from residents' rooms.

The chapel, heart of the sisters' community lift, is temporarily located on the second floor. Later another wing for the building is planned for chapel and sisters' quarters. At present the sisters will occupy quarters on the second floor.

The sisters insisted that the building be firesafe; therefore, fire resisting constrcution with reinforced concrete floors and supporting columns have been used. The roof is supported by structural steel to which masonry roof planks are attached.

Reverend Mother Magdalene and the sisters were impressed by the traditional architectural style of the south with its impressive, yet simple, features. It was found unnecessary to follow blindly all details of the past, but rather to give the old a new and contemporary application; yet in general capturing its original beauty. The exterior is of red-faced brick with Indiana limestone trim. The main entrance portico has the traditional colonade, but of stone rather than of wood for maintenance reasons. This portico is flanked by two bays, adding dignity to the structure, and the completed building possesses a residential air.

The pitched roofs are of hard burned tile in a moss green textured finish. The central feature of the roof immediately above the portico is graced with a tower. Windows, frames and sash are of aluminum. While the cost of these items are above normal, again it was the maintenance that was the governing factor. All windows are provided with screens.

Galleries so sensibly and beautifully applied in the south, are incorporated in the design. Galleries are semi-circular, with ornamental iron grills. Floors are of terrazzo. Toilet rooms are of glazed tile.

The central heating plant is provided by means of a low pressure two-pipe steam heating system, using recessed convectors.

Elevators will render it easy for occupants to get to the upper floor.

This great project is regarded as most timely. The community of sisters is taking a forward step in erecting this structure as all studies being made regarding the social well-being of the advanced age group, indicate need to provide shelter for those who have no adequate homes elsewhere.

Statistics disclose that similar projects are not necessarily remunerative. Revenues derived are insufficient to induce private groups to invest in similar enterprises. But this outlook in no way deterred the sisters in carrying out their plans of essential helpfulness.

Above the main entrance is inscribed the coat-of-arms of the community. If a study is made as to the symbolic representations thereon, it becomes understandable why it is possible for a group of sisters to have the courage and determination to embark on a project of so great magnitude. It is sufficient to state but one inspiration represented on the shield—"The Charity of Christ Conquers All."

burn 42 to 14, for its fifth Southeast Conference victory and the leadership in that circuit.

Texas, which is in the southwest circuit race with Baylor and S. M. U., crept past Texas Christian, 14 to 7, to keep the pennant drive a three-way affair.

Baylor, beaten for the first time last week, was humbled in a non-league affair by Tulane, 35 to 13. The ease of the triumph kept the New Orleans club in the bowl limelight—possibly in the Sugar Bowl.

Kansas almost bowed to Kansas State, a team that hasn't won a big seven game since 1944. Kansas State came within six yards of the touchdown that would have meant either a tie or a possible victory. As it was, the team lost, 20 to 14. Oklahoma boiled over Nebraska, 41 to 14, and Missouri conquered Colorado, 27 to 13.

Michigan State larrupped Iowa State, 48 to 7, in one intersectional fray while another, that between William and Mary and Boston College, ended in a 14 to 14 deadlock.

California won its ninth game of the season by crushing Washington State and continues to hold the Rose Bowl spotlight with Oregon, which last night crushed U. C. L. A. Southern California stopped Washington, 28 to 7.

the national defense establishment.

The planning group submitted two suggested legislative forms: One a bill setting up the organization for the federal government; the other a model bill for states which they might use as a general pattern.

In issuing the report, the planning group sought to steer a cautious course which would tell the people the facts of life and death in the age of atomic warfare while at the same time seeking to avoid a frightening picture. But the report is frank about what could be expected.

"If attack should come," it says, "it might be by bomber squadrons dropping atomic bombs, incendiaries or gas bombs, or super-explosives, on one or a score of our major centers. It might come via guided missiles from distant points, or from submarines off the American shores. Or it might come from within the borders of the United States, through saboteurs and fifth columnists.

"However it came, it could mean devastation and death at many points on such a scale that the tasks of rescue and restoration would be far beyond the present capabilities of the people and the communities attacked.

"It is sometimes stated that there is no defense against the atomic bomb, or against other modern weapons which might be used. * * * When and if an American city is attacked, civil defense must be ready. * * *

"Civil defense would tell survivors of an atomic attack to avoid contaminated areas until the danger is passed—and the civil defense would know the areas. It would tell them how to dispose of contaminated clothing, to be careful what they touch and eat and to take other preventive measures. If they were ill from radiation (of an A-bomb burst), it would furnish blood to restore their health. And it would move about in stricken areas restoring calm, reassuring the frightened, removing the ill or the homeless."

The planners take a dim view of the protective shelters against A-bombs.

"Experience abroad in World War II, even prior to the advent of the atomic bomb, indicated it was not practicable considering costs, materials and manpower involved, to provide shelters that would give effective protection from all kinds of bombing, particularly if direct hits of large bombs were to be considered," they said. "With the much greater destructive power that has been demonstrated by the atomic bomb to be taken into account, it now seems clearer than ever that only partial protection would be feasible."

The report spells out details of how civilian defense would work. It recommends the organization of evacuation systems, using all available forms of transportation and involving a listing of all vehicles in a raid warden's block. It proposes a listing of the young, the old or the ill who would have priority on evacuation. It discusses the problems of mass feeding and shelter for thousands who might be forced to flee a city.

The possibility of panic and methods to prevent it are considered.

"There are few factors which can exert more influence on the fate of a nation at war than the mental attitudes of its people," said the report. "Wide-scale apathy, mental depression, hysteria or panic, on the part of its civilians, can defeat its military forces. Neglect of these factors is an open bid for disaster.

"In order to avoid possible adverse psychological effects, the mental hygiene section (of the civil defense office) should review bulletins, literature and plans of other sections and divisions of the civil defense organization.

"Plans should be initiated during peace-time for the war-time care of mental casualties. Undoubtedly there will be many."

At another point, the group asserts: "No previous type of warfare has offered such rich opportunities to exploit fear of the unseen and the unknown. It is, therefore, obvious that the primary objective of a program of education of the public in respect to atomic warfare should be to dispel the current unjustified fear of the radiological hazards involved in such warfare and to develop a wholesome understanding and respect for the potentials of atomic weapons."

It uses previously published figures to measure out the effects of atomic attack on a large city, based on studies made of the attacks on Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The estimate is 100,000 casualties, of which 40,000 would die instantly in the blast or within the first week from injuries and radiation. Death by radiation of neutrons from an air-burst bomb would come to all persons within 1,000 yards, with radiation hazard extending in diminishing degree to 3,000 yards.

But, says the report, injuries caused by exposure to residual radioactivity (deposited by fission particles of a bomb burst under water) "can very often be either prevented or mitigated through detection and avoidance of those hazards." This detection would be made by trained crews of "Geiger counter" men.

The report also takes into account the possibility that gas, not used in World War II, might be a weapon of attack on populations in another war.

"War gases, if used in enemy attack, could mean agonizing suffering and death to entire populations. In preparing its civil defenses this nation must include every possible means of protecting against such a possibility. This field presents complex problems because of the variety and deadliness of the chemicals which might be used, the speed with which they would take effect on people, the hazardous contamination of areas, buildings and objects."

But, it adds, "a population well trained and well informed on anti-chemical measures will largely nullify the effectiveness of enemy war gas attacks.

Without going into any explanation, the report contains this cryptic reference:

"There are other known unconventional weapons of modern warfare (beside the atomic bomb and gas), and the future will undoubtedly see still others developed. They have been and will continue to be studied since they will create special problems of defense."

be forwarded to President Truman on vacation at Key West, Fla.

An American delegation spokesman said the reply will be given by Marshall after consultation with Mr. Truman and with Britain and France. He said it might be some time before the reply was ready because of the various consultations.

Western delegates made these points concerning the letter:

There is some danger of too many mediators being involved, the note seems to suggest that disagreement over Berlin's currency is the root of the trouble whereas it is the blockade, and it tends to leave out of account that the case is still before the security council.

Juan Bramuglia, of Argentina, who has led the six neutrals of the security council in efforts to negotiate a compromise, said he had declined signing the Lie-Evatt letter because it emanated from the general assembly and had no connection with the council.

Nevertheless, he praised the move, saying it "vigorously ratifies" efforts made in the council.

He continued his own efforts, talking with the six neutral council members today and arranging to see them again tomorrow.

French sources said there would be no immediate statement from their government. The Lie-Evatt letter, they commented, seemed addressed more to Stalin than to the other three executives. Otherwise, they said, it added little or nothing new to the Berlin situation and seemed at first glance to be just a sort of "moral gesture."

The Russians merely said it would have to be studied.

Dr. Luis Padilla Nervo of Mexico, sponsor of the proposal for big power cooperation, told a reporter it was up to the four governments to carry out what they had unanimously supported in the assembly.

Lie has been greatly worried about Berlin since last June, when the blockade went into effect. Evatt has taken the initiative within the U. N. to promote conciliation of the Greek problem, the India-Pakistan dispute and the Indonesian question. Recently he has been working long hours behind the scene on the Berlin dispute.

Today was the first time Lie or Evatt had moved in the open to conciliate the Berlin crisis. They held a final consultation in the office of the assembly president this morning and then started the machinery moving to get the letter in the hands of the Big Four leaders.

In their communication, they mentioned the efforts being made by Bramuglia and asked the big powers to cooperate.

The arms reduction proposal, which was rejected by the political committee, was the principal Soviet project launched at the present session of the assembly.

The Soviet delegation is expected to make a final battle for the measure in the full assembly when the question comes up there, but one-sided committee vote doomed the Soviet efforts in advance.

Majority delegates, led by the United States, have insisted there must be adequate controls and safeguards before they could agree to any arms cuts.

In the debate preceding the committee vote, Vishinsky thumped the table vigorously as he replied to yesterday's charges by Osborn that Russia is using propaganda to "prepare her people for war" and still aims at world revolution.

Vishinsky's charge that the U. S. was preparing a Pearl Harbor for Russia was made after he had quoted Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of the U. S. strategic air command, as saying in Newsweek Magazine last May 17 the U. S. had a plan to use the atom bomb against Moscow and other Soviet cities.

(Kenney was quoted in an article in Newsweek May 17 which reported what it said was military thinking then current in Washington and Moscow. Kenney did not, however, make the remark in the article attributed to him by Vishinsky.)

Vishinsky quoted Kenney as saying planes, carrying atom bombs, could take off from British bases and flying at 35,000 feet could strike at Moscow and other key Russian cities.

"The European part of Russia—the heart of Russia," Vishinsky said, "is being aimed at."

He then asked:

"Do we say that our airplanes will slip in over the United States with their objective New York?"

Turning to the U. S. and British delegations, Vishinsky said:

"You are instigating this war and now you are trying to shift the blame on us."

He said Russia has demobilized everyone called to arms in wartime and the Russian army now consists of "only the two basic classes of 1926-27." He said he would "neither confirm or deny" Osborn's estimate that Russia had 4,000,000 men under arms.

"This is none of your business," Vishinsky said.

FILIBUSTER

Truman promised voters he will try to put through congress.

But under present rules there are two catches in cloture:

1. Two-thirds of those voting have to approve before it can go into effect.

2. It can't be used to stop talk about a motion.

Southern Democrats always start filibustering when a motion is made to bring up a civil rights measure, several of which have been passed by the house in previous congresses.

Rule changes—which require only a majority vote of the senate—might wipe out the Dixie advantage on both counts.

So, McClellan said that to protect their rights, the southerners will have to filibuster against a rule change unless some compromise can be reached in advance.

Emphasizing that he was speaking for himself on the compromise phase, the Arkansas senator said that if an agreement could be reached not to push a measure for establishment of a fair employment practices commission (FEPC) or an anti-segregation proposals, Dixie senators might agree not to filibuster some other bills.

He mentioned anti-poll tax and anti-lynching bills in the latter connection.

But Senator Stennis (D-Miss.) said he doubts that any such measures could be drawn in constitutional forms.

He said Senator Fulbright (D-Ark.) agreed in separate interviews that there will be a last-ditch fight by the southerners against FEPC.

Depending on how tough the leadership gets in calling around-the-clock sessions, a southern filibuster could run into weeks. For practical purposes it would be broken only when physical exhaustion overtook the more than a score of Dixie senators likely to participate.

In the meantime, the senate probably couldn't dispose of any other business.

So administration leaders may have to choose between a back-breaking marathon or falling down on Mr. Truman's civil rights promises.

the other to patrol a beat in the business district."

Commenting on the affect the murders have had on the people, Ferrington stated tonight that "the streets are deserted by nine o'clock at night and that comparatively few of the residents turned out for the annual Winnsboro-Tallulah football game Friday night." The game was the homecoming affair for Winnsboro.

The marshal added that hardware stores here were sold out of night latches, bolts and window latches, and that the population were very definitely "turning in unusually early at nights, leaving the business district practically deserted.

A five hundred dollar reward announced Tuesday by Sheriff Waller, has so far failed to render any new leads, the sheriff stated.

Reports indicated that many of the jittery residents were arming themselves for protection.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Paola were found dead in their Taylor Addition home here. Acting Coroner Dr. J. D. Rogers stated that the two had been dead over 24 hours before their bullet riddled bodies were discovered.

only two elevators means trouble for a reporter with a deadline to make. This reporter sought to find the freight elevator, but in vain, and fearful lest he proceed into rooms that are strictly for feminine occupancy, he halted the search. But then Mrs. J. Norman Coon approached. "You want to get out of here and back to your paper?" she asked consolingly.

When he answered in the afirmative, she volunteered to search for the well-hidden freight elevator. Through devious passageways and other hiding places she led the way for the reporter and at last they sure enough found the "lift" as they say in New York language. Quite happily they both descended and beat the ladies who were awaiting their turns on the floors above.

Bing Miller is off again. The Saturday morning train took him on his way to Charleston, W. Va., where another Ford, Bacon and Davis job awaits coupled with pay in excess of what is paid in Monroe, so he says. He was there during the war and is to return baited on by the larger financial remuneration. When he was criticized for his leaving Monroe again he said: "I just can't help it. I am a tramp by nature. My great-great-grandfather trekked from Virginia to Kentucky to build the first house in that state. My dad was a portable sawmill man and he went everywhere, I guess it's in my blood, too," he explained.

Mrs. R. J. Wills, 1907 South Grand street, and her three sons and two daughters all agree that they have the nicest pet possible. Six weeks ago, they found in their yard a sick squirrel. It was bleeding at the nose and seemed to need medical attention. Mrs. Wills, a motherly woman, took the neglected, ailing little fellow into her house and saw that it was given proper care. She fed it through a medicine dropper and it responded amazingly. Today, a little over a month later, it is sleek and happy although in danger of being spoiled by so much attention.

First it ate peanuts but when it was later provided with a pecan, it refused to have anything more to do with peanuts, eating pecans in preference. It also eats ham and bits of pork, and is extravagantly fond of pop. Mrs. Wills has only to lift a soda pop bottle and it will dart toward it and beg to be given a drink. It jumps from person to person; plays with Black Boy, the big family alley cat, and with the dog, who also are household pets and all have the run of the place, which also includes the grocery store which is in connection with the house.

When night comes, Frisky (almost forgot to tell the name of the squirrel) goes to a doll buggy and curls up under a small quilt. She sleeps there every night, but rises early in the morning. She is fearful of no one and seems to enjoy her new home and associations. Mrs. Wills asserts that the little creature learns something every day of her life and the family wonders how they ever got along without her so long.

"There are few factors which can exert more influence on the fate of a nation at war than the mental attitudes of its people," said the report. "Wide-scale apathy, mental depression, hysteria or panic, on the part of its civilians, can defeat its military forces. Neglect of these factors is an open bid for disaster.

"In order to avoid possible adverse psychological effects, the mental hygiene section (of the civil defense office) should review bulletins, literature and plans of other sections and divisions of the civil defense organization.

"Plans should be initiated during peace-time for the war-time care of mental casualties. Undoubtedly there will be many."

At another point, the group asserts:

"No previous type of warfare has offered such rich opportunities to exploit fear of the unseen and the unknown. It is, therefore, obvious that the primary objective of a program of education of the public in respect to atomic warfare should be to dispel the current unjustified fear of the radiological hazards involved in such warfare and to develop a wholesome understanding and respect for the potentials of atomic weapons."

It uses previously published figures to measure out the effects of atomic attack on a large city, based on studies made of the attacks on Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The estimate is 100,000 casualties, of which 40,000 would die instantly in the blast or within the first week from injuries and radiation. Death by radiation of neutrons from an air-burst bomb would come to all persons within 1,000 yards, with radiation hazard extending in diminishing degree to 3,000 yards.

But, says the report, injuries caused by exposure to residual radioactivity (deposited by fission particles of a bomb burst under water) "can very often be either prevented or mitigated through detection and avoidance of those hazards." This detection would be made by trained crews of "Geiger counter" men.

The report also takes into account the possibility that gas, not used in World War II, might be a weapon of attack on populations in another war.

"War gases, if used in enemy attack, could mean agonizing suffering and death to entire populations. In preparing its civil defenses this nation must include every possible means of protecting against such a possibility. This field presents complex problems because of the variety and deadliness of the chemicals which might be used, the speed with which they would take effect on people, the hazardous contamination of areas, buildings and objects."

But, it adds, "a population well trained and well informed on anti-chemical measures will largely nullify the effectiveness of enemy war gas attacks.

Without going into any explanation, the report contains this cryptic reference:

"There are other known unconventional weapons of modern warfare (beside the atomic bomb and gas), and the future will undoubtedly see still others developed. They have been and will continue to be studied since they will create special problems of defense."

CHIEFS

be forwarded to President Truman on vacation at Key West, Fla.

An American delegation spokesman said the reply will be given by Marshall after consultation with Mr. Truman and with Britain and France. He said it might be some time before the reply was ready because of the various consultations.

Western delegates made these points concerning the letter:

There is some danger of too many mediators being involved, the note seems to suggest that disagreement over Berlin's currency is the root of the trouble whereas it is the blockade, and it tends to leave out of account that the case is still before the security council.

Juan Bramuglia, of Argentina, who has led the six neutrals of the security council in efforts to negotiate a compromise, said he had declined signing the Lie-Evatt letter because it emanated from the general assembly and had no connection with the council.

Nevertheless, he praised the move, saying it "vigorously ratifies" efforts made in the council.

He continued his own efforts, talking with the six neutral council members today and arranging to see them again tomorrow.

French sources said there would be no immediate statement from their government. The Lie-Evatt letter, they commented, seemed addressed more to Stalin than to the other three executives. Otherwise, they said, it added little or nothing new to the Berlin situation and seemed at first glance to be just a sort of "moral gesture."

The Russians merely said it would have to be studied.

Dr. Luis Padilla Nervo of Mexico, sponsor of the proposal for big power cooperation, told a reporter it was up to the four governments to carry out what they had unanimously supported in the assembly.

Lie has been greatly worried about Berlin since last June, when the blockade went into effect. Evatt has taken the initiative within the U. N. to promote conciliation of the Greek problem, the India-Pakistan dispute and the Indonesian question. Recently he has been working long hours behind the scene on the Berlin dispute.

Today was the first time Lie or Evatt had moved in the open to conciliate the Berlin crisis. They held a final consultation in the office of the assembly president this morning and then started the machinery moving to get the letter in the hands of the Big Four leaders.

In their communication, they mentioned the efforts being made by Bramuglia and asked the big powers to cooperate.

The arms reduction proposal, which was rejected by the political committee, was the principal Soviet project launched at the present session of the assembly.

The Soviet delegation is expected to make a final battle for the measure in the full assembly when the question comes up there, but one-sided committee vote doomed the Soviet efforts in advance.

Majority delegates, led by the United States, have insisted there must be adequate controls and safeguards before they could agree to any arms cuts.

In the debate preceding the committee vote, Vishinsky thumped the table vigorously as he replied to yesterday's charges by Osborn that Russia is using propaganda to "prepare her people for war" and still aims at world revolution.

Vishinsky's charge that the U. S. was preparing a Pearl Harbor for Russia was made after he had quoted Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of the U. S. strategic air command, as saying in Newsweek Magazine last May 17 the U. S. had a plan to use the atom bomb against Moscow and other Soviet cities.

(Kenney was quoted in an article in Newsweek May 17 which reported what it said was military thinking then current in Washington and Moscow. Kenney did not, however, make the remark in the article attributed to him by Vishinsky.)

Vishinsky quoted Kenney as saying planes, carrying atom bombs, could take off from British bases and flying at 35,000 feet could strike at Moscow and other key Russian cities.

"The European part of Russia—the heart of Russia," Vishinsky said, "is being aimed at."

He then asked:

"Do we say that our airplanes will slip in over the United States with their objective New York?"

Turning to the U. S. and British delegations, Vishinsky said:

"You are instigating this war and now you are trying to shift the blame on us."

He said Russia has demobilized everyone called to arms in wartime and the Russian army now consists of "only the two basic classes of 1926-27." He said he would "neither confirm or deny" Osborn's estimate that Russia had 4,000,000 men under arms.

"This is none of your business," Vishinsky said.

Truman promised voters he will try to put through congress.

But under present rules there are two catches in cloture:

1. Two-thirds of those voting have to approve before it can go into effect.

2. It can't be used to stop talk about a motion.

Southern Democrats always start filibustering when a motion is made to bring up a civil rights measure, several of which have been passed by the house in previous congresses.

Rule changes—which require only a majority vote of the senate—might wipe out the Dixie advantage on both counts.

So, McClellan said that to protect their rights, the southerners will have to filibuster against a rule change unless some compromise can be reached in advance.

Emphasizing that he was speaking for himself on the compromise phase, the Arkansas senator said that if an agreement could be reached not to push a measure for establishment of a fair employment practices commission (FEPC) or an anti-segregation proposals, Dixie senators might agree not to filibuster some other bills.

He mentioned anti-poll tax and anti-lynching bills in the latter connection.

But Senator Stennis (D-Miss.) said he doubts that any such measures could be drawn in constitutional forms.

He said Senator Fulbright (D-Ark.) agreed in separate interviews that there will be a last-ditch fight by the southerners against FEPC.

Depending on how tough the leadership gets in calling around-the-clock sessions, a southern filibuster could run into weeks. For practical purposes it would be broken only when physical exhaustion overtook the more than a score of Dixie senators likely to participate.

In the meantime, the senate probably couldn't dispose of any other business.

So administration leaders may have to choose between a back-breaking marathon or falling down on Mr. Truman's civil rights promises.

the other to patrol a beat in the business district."

Commenting on the affect the murders have had on the people, Ferrington stated tonight that "the streets are deserted by nine o'clock at night and that comparatively few of the residents turned out for the annual Winnsboro-Tallulah football game Friday night." The game was the homecoming affair for Winnsboro.

The marshal added that hardware stores here were sold out of night latches, bolts and window latches, and that the population were very definitely "turning in unusually early at nights, leaving the business district practically deserted.

A five hundred dollar reward announced Tuesday by Sheriff Waller, has so far failed to render any new leads, the sheriff stated.

Reports indicated that many of the jittery residents were arming themselves for protection.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Paola were found dead in their Taylor Addition home here. Acting Coroner Dr. J. D. Rogers stated that the two had been dead over 24 hours before their bullet riddled bodies were discovered.

This reporter sought to find the freight elevator, but in vain, and fearful lest he proceed into rooms that are strictly for feminine occupancy, he halted the search. But then Mrs. J. Norman Coon approached. "You want to get out of here and back to your paper?" she asked consolingly.

When he answered in the afirmative, she volunteered to search for the well-hidden freight elevator. Through devious passageways and other hiding places she led the way for the reporter and at last they sure enough found the "lift" as they say in New York language. Quite happily they both descended and beat the ladies who were awaiting their turns on the floors above.

Bing Miller is off again. The Saturday morning train took him on his way to Charleston, W. Va., where another Ford, Bacon and Davis job awaits coupled with pay in excess of what is paid in Monroe, so he says. He was there during the war and is to return baited on by the larger financial remuneration. When he was criticized for his leaving Monroe again he said: "I just can't help it. I am a tramp by nature. My great-great-grandfather trekked from Virginia to Kentucky to build the first house in that state. My dad was a portable sawmill man and he went everywhere, I guess it's in my blood, too," he explained.

Mrs. R. J. Wills, 1907 South Grand street, and her three sons and two daughters all agree that they have the nicest pet possible. Six weeks ago, they found in their yard a sick squirrel. It was bleeding at the nose and seemed to need medical attention. Mrs. Wills, a motherly woman, took the neglected, ailing little fellow into her house and saw that it was given proper care. She fed it through a medicine dropper and it responded amazingly. Today, a little over a month later, it is sleek and happy although in danger of being spoiled by so much attention.

First it ate peanuts but when it was later provided with a pecan, it refused to have anything more to do with peanuts, eating pecans in preference. It also eats ham and bits of pork, and is extravagantly fond of pop. Mrs. Wills has only to lift a soda pop bottle and it will dart toward it and beg to be given a drink. It jumps from person to person; plays with Black Boy, the big family alley cat, and with the dog, who also are household pets and all have the run of the place, which also includes the grocery store which is in connection with the house.

When night comes, Frisky (almost forgot to tell the name of the squirrel) goes to a doll buggy and curls up under a small quilt. She sleeps there every night, but rises early in the morning. She is fearful of no one and seems to enjoy her new home and associations. Mrs. Wills asserts that the little creature learns something every day of her life and the family wonders how they ever got along without her so long.

TULANE'S WAVE ENGULFS BAYLOR, 35 TO 13

GREENIES KEEP BOWL BID HOPES ALIVE WITH WIN

Price, Kinek, Svoboda Spark Frnka's Crew In Most Impressive Victory

By Kris Kreeger

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Tulane's Green Wave stayed in the bowl picture and just about knocked Baylor out of it here today by thoroughly trouncing the Bears 35-13.

About 45,000 persons saw Tulane run up its highest score of the season, and that against one of the finest defensive clubs in the Southwest.

All Baylor had was the passing of Quarterback Adrian Burk, which engineered the Bear touchdowns, but backfired on two interceptions which set up Tulane scores.

The Wave line completely outplayed the Texans, opening huge holes for Fullback Ed Price and Halfbacks George Kinek and Bill Svoboda. Meanwhile, Quarterback Joe Ernest passed on about even terms with Burk.

Price's hard running paced Tulane on a 71-yard drive to its first touchdown. He circled left end for the last 11 yards.

Baylor came right back for a 54-yard scoring march on Burk's passing. He threw fiv eyards to Harold Riley for the touchdown.

The Wave surged 66 yards to another touchdown, made on Ernst's 21-yard pass to Kinek on fourth down with 15 seconds remaining in the half.

A third-place punt exchange worked the ball to the Baylor 34 where Ernst sparked another score. Svoboda crashed right guard for the final foot.

Again Baylor brought the kickoff back for a scoring march on Burk's passing, this time 72 yards.

Jasper Flanakin took a toss from Burk and slipped away from Tulane tacklers to go the last 27.

Tulane intercepted three Burk passes in the final period, and turned two of them into touchdowns. Price went one yard around right end for the first six points, and his brother-in-law, Ray Prats went six in the same direction for the next.

Dick Sheffield kicked five perfect placements for Tulane. Henry Dickerson made one and missed one for Baylor.

The net rushing yardage, 292 for Tulane and 39 for Baylor, about expresses the superiority of the Wave's line play. Tulane completed nine passes in 14 attempts for 102 yards, and Baylor made 14 out of 24 good for 129.

OUACHITA'S FROSH DOWN J-H 'B,' 20-6

The Ouachita Parish High School freshman football team trounced the Jonesboro-Hodge "B" team, 20 to 6, here yesterday afternoon on the L. T. I. gridiron, and Coach Harold Dickens' boys will be in action again tomorrow night when they visit Bastrop for a meeting with the Bastrop frosh at 7:30 o'clock.

Troy Counts scored twice for the Lion Cubs yesterday, romping 50 yards for the first touchdown in the opening quarter and scoring again on a 12-yard drive through center in the fourth period.

Kenneth Bates scampered 60 yards for a Cub touchdown in the third period. Bates added the point behind each touchdown except his own.

Koonce pitched a 15-yard pass to Shankles who went three yards further for the Jonesboro-Hodge touchdown in the third quarter.

Counts, Bates, Billy Fleming, Benny Franklin, and Gene Muckleroy sparked the Ouachita offensive show, while Freddie Salisburg, Rodney Cannon, and Herman Smith looked best in Coach Dickens' line.

In two games against the Washington Redskins in 1940, the Philadelphia Eagles could gain only 54 yards by rushing against the ball, but they gained 554 yards in the air.

Neville Points For Important 'A' Game With Bastrop

BASTROP POWERS PAST WINNFIELD

Rams Score 32 To 0 Victory, Point For Battle With Unbeaten Neville

By "Skipper" Morris

BASTROP, La., Nov. 13.—(Special)—Snapping back on the victory trail after successive losses to Ruston and Springhill, the Bastrop High School Rams tallied three times in the final period last night to defeat the Winnfield Tigers, 32 to 0. The Rams packed their scoring punch into the first, second, and fourth stanzas of the game played on the turf at the Westside Stadium here.

The loss eliminated Winnfield's Bengals from a three-way tie for second place in the northeast district Class A standings, and left Bastrop and Ruston as the two teams pressing the conference leaders, unbeaten Neville High School. The powerful Neville eleven has to beat the Rams next Friday to cop the district crown.

The Rams scored their first touchdown in the opening period of play after a 55-yard drive. Winnfield Tailback, Dan Carr, punted dead on the Bastrop 45-yard line, and Lindsey picked up 19 yards around right end on the first play. Johnston took a handoff from Keene and reversed around left end for 14 yards and a first down on the Winnfield 22. Lindsey bored through center to the 20, and got a yard at right tackle to place the ball on the 19. Lindsey galloped around right end behind some good interference to a first down on the Tiger four-yard stripe. Lindsey plunged through center for the touchdown. Hindmon's attempt for the P. A. T. was wide, and Bastrop led, 6-0.

Winnfield took the ensuing kickoff and drove 44 yards to the Bastrop 25 in their first threat of the game, but lost the ball when Smart fumbled and Ram End Bill Peters recovered on the Bastrop 26-yard line.

In the second quarter the Rams moved 74 yards in four plays to score their second TD. Keene picked up a yard at right guard, and Lindsey accounted for six around right end. With Jackson standing in punt formation, Keene took the snap from center and plowed through center for eight yards to a first down on the Bastrop 41. On the next play, Keene carried on a full spinner and crashed over right guard into the secondary, outrunning the Bengal backs to the goal line 59 yards away. Closely pursuing Dan Carr tripped Keene after a low, diving tackle, but the stubby plunger toppled over the last white line. Lindsey tried a line plunge for the extra point, but the middle of the Tiger forward wall stopped him.

The Rams held this 12-0 lead at the half.

The third 12 minutes of the ball game went scoreless. Winnfield threatened down to the Bastrop 19 near the end of the period with Dan Carr's passes covering 22 of the 38 yards rolled up during the Bengal drive. However, Carr fumbled on an attempted right end sweep, and Bob Lamb covered the oval on the Bastrop 25 to throw cold water on the Winn parish team's hopes of scoring on the blue-clad local warriors.

Bastrop broke loose for three touchdowns during the final verse of the contest, driving 75 yards for one and capitalizing on a blocked kick and an intercepted aerial to get possession of the pigskin deep in Bengal country in order to chalk up another couple of six-pointers.

Lamb covered a fumble on the Bastrop 25 late in the third period to start the Rams on their way to their first last quarter score. Lindsey gained seven yards to the Bastrop 32 as the third period ended. Lindsey failed to gain at left tackle on the first play of the final 12 minutes, and then picked up two yards at right guard. Johnston took a handoff from Keene and sliced through the center of the line 16 yards to a first down on the Bastrop side of the midstripe. Lindsey cut back over right tackle and slanted into the clear field at the

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—In these days of two-platoon football teams, the best thing you can say about 60-minute players is "try and find them." . . . This department did set out to pick an all-the-time team with the following results (time out for an occasional "breather" doesn't count): Backs—C. Drazenovich, Penn State; Chandnois, Michigan State; Kusserow, Columbia, and Cloud, William and Mary. Center—Bednarik, Penn. Guards—Karas, Columbia, and Healy, Georgia Tech. Ends—Haven't seen any but Barney Polle, Mississippi, and Dean Laun, Iowa State, might do. (We've observed all the other players mentioned and can state they're right good.) . . . Tackles—There's the real catch. Couldn't find any 60-minute men. The going must be rough in that part of the line.

NORTHWESTERN DEMONS BLAST ARKANSAS STATE

NATCHITOCHES, La., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Northwestern State College, with Halfback Bobby Johnson back in shape, trounced the Arkansas State College Indians 41-6 here today before a small crowd.

Johnson scored two of the Demons' six touchdowns and tossed passes to Q. T. Ford for two others. Wingback John Thompson and Right Halfback Ernest Bateman tallied the remaining pair. Ernest Davis' placements were good in five out of six tries.

Bill Perry, Jr., took Joe Shaw, Jr.'s 31-yard pass on the Demon 38 and romped over for the Indians' lone score.

TIGERS CAN TAKE DISTRICT CROWN WITH WIN FRIDAY

Rams Will Be Shooting To Throw Northeast Sector Into 3-Way Tie

The Neville High School Tigers, already assured of at least a playoff spot in the northeast Louisiana Class A title race, get their chance to sew up the title for good when they invade Bastrop netx Friday night to meet the rugged Ram eleven of Coach Charlie Thomas.

Bastrop comes as the lone remaining conference foe on the Tiger schedule, and Coach Bill Ruple's Bengals can clinch the district crown and win a place in the north Louisiana title playoff with the northwest sector titlists by winning their 14th consecutive game Friday.

KAHN OUT

Coach Bill Ruple announced last night that his Neville Tigers had suffered their first crippling blow of the season Friday night when Left End David Kahn suffered a broken leg against Lafayette.

Kahn went out of the game in the first half, but it was not certain the leg was broken until after X-ray examinations yesterday.

"The loss of Kahn comes as a hard blow right when we are ready to make a serious bid for at least a share of championship honors," Ruple said. "The loss will definitely hurt our defense and I'm afraid our club will be affected by a let down with the Bastrop game coming up."

Twice before Neville has appeared in title playoffs, 1936 and 1940, but the present Bengal force boasts a better record for this far in the campaign than did the earlier Tiger greats.

Main feature of the current Neville club is the fact that it is undefeated in nine games so far this year and has a string of 13 consecutive victories, the longest chain of wins in the history of the Monroe school.

However, with one more regularly scheduled game to go, the present charges of Coaches Ruple and Johnny Johnson rank fourth in Neville history in total scoring. The present edition has 224 points against 39 for the opposition.

No. 1 team offensively and defensively was the non-titled team of 1945 that rolled to 262 points in eight games and allowed the opposition only 19 points. Next best was the 1931 outfit that scored 257 points in ten games but lacked the defense shown by later elevens in allowing 103 points to pass its goal. Last year's team scored 239 points in ten games and gave up 64 points.

Neville has never been in a playoff outside its own northeast sector, losing to Bolton of Alexandria, 6-0, in its first title playoff in 1936, and dropping its next chance to Bastrop in 1940, 20 to 0.

Bastrop, ranking with Ruston's Bearcats as a foremost rival of the Tigers, pins its own championship hopes on the outcome of the Friday meeting. Coach Thomas' Rams can throw the district chase into a three-way tie by upsetting the Bengals, thus forcing a playoff between Neville, Bastrop, and Ruston. Neville barely nosed out Ruston, 14 to 13, a few weeks ago, and Ruston in turn beat Bastrop.

If Neville gets past Bastrop, the Tigers are expected to meet the strong Bossier City Bearkats for the north Louisiana crown with Bossier favored to win although regardless of the outcome the winner of such a scrap would likely be the pick to win the state crown currently held by Ruston.

Neville looked its most impressive here Friday night in defeating the Lafayette Lions 22 to 7.

RECREATION PLANS BOXING FOR WINTER

The Monroe Recreation department will sponsor its first boxing program this winter, it was announced yesterday.

Plans have been underway for some time, Director Jack Hesketh of the department said, and all fights will be held at the Recreation Center on Saturday nights as added attractions for the 'Teen-Age Club.

Loy Scarborough and Robert Gates, who have been amateur boxers for sometime will be the coaches for the team. Dr. William Epstein has been named as matchmaker and is also chairman of the boxing committee for the Recreation department.

Other activities sponsored by the Recreation department are softball, basketball, football, and the 'Teen-Age Club on Friday and Saturday nights, square dancing on Tuesday nights as well as daily play periods at the Center, and many other programs.

The public is urged to get behind programs sponsored by the Recreation department and also to take part in the program.

Other activities planned for the near future are junior dramatics, puppet shows, social dancing for young married couples.

ISTROUMA LEADS LOUISIANA CLASS AA TITLE CHASE

Defending Champion Bogalusa Knocked Out Of District League Race

(By Associated Press)

The Istrouma Indians put the state champion Bogalusa Lumberjacks out of the running for another Louisiana prep football title Friday night, giving the 'Jacks their first beating since 1946, 20 to 14.

A last-minute pass scored the winning touchdown.

The victory was Istrouma's second in the southeast district, and it assured the Indians of at least a tie for the district crown. They have beaten Baton Rouge High and must play Catholic which has a one-and-one record.

Lake Charles High moved to an even more commanding position in the southwest district by trouncing Jennings 19-0. Only a weak Bolton team, which lost 48-14 to Sulphur Friday night, stands between Lake Charles and the southwest championship.

A pair of New Orleans teams won over outside opposition, Redemtorist shading Varnado 13-6 and Peters romping over Bay St. Louis High 44-0.

Byrd's game at Ruston was postponed because of bad weather.

Istrouma came from behind twice in beating Bogalusa. All the winners' touchdowns were on passes by Lester Landry.

The Lumberjacks drove inside the Istrouma ten yard line three times in the first period without scoring, then finally pushed over a second-period touchdown as Clyde Rester smashed the last yard.

Landry passed to Marvin Taber and Tookie Brown for Istrouma touchdowns, but Bogalusa came back with another on Carl Stringfield's toss to Harry Wilson and the Lumberjacks took a 14-13 lead.

With two minutes to go, Istrouma got the ball on its 39. Landry pitched to Kline Courtney for a first down on the Bogalusa 15, and then hit Taber in the end zone.

Harold Wood scored all LakeCharles touchdowns. He ran 33 yards for the first to wind up a 64-yard drive, then went eight and four yards for scores set up on fumble recoveries.

The game was played in a drizzle.

Pete Miller accounted for 30 points in the Sulphur runaway. He ran

BEARS, PACKERS RENEW RIVALRY IN 2ND OF YEAR

Cardinals Square Off Against Steelers In National Grid League Today

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 13.—(Special)—One of the oldest rivalries in the National Football League will be renewed for the second time this season when the Chicago Bears and the Green Bay Packers meet in Wrigley Field tomorrow afternoon before a sellout crowd.

The Chicago Cardinals, crosstown rivals of the Bears and tied with them for first place in the western division, will engage the Pittsburgh Steelers in Forbes Field; Detroit will meet Washington in the capitol; Philadelphia will oppose Boston in Shibe Park and Los Angeles will make its first appearance in the eas,t meeting the New York Giants in the Polo Grounds in other N. F. L. games tomorrow.

The game between the Bears and the Packers will be the 61st in the series that started in 1921. The two old rivals have played more games than any other two teams in the circuit. The Halasmen hold the edge in the series with 33 victories to 22. Five games ended in ties.

The series has been replete with sensational games and tomorrow's is expected to be another one. Green Bay last year won the first game of the annual series, 29 to 20 and hopes to duplicate that feat tomorrow. The Bears on the other hand, anxious to maintain its pace for the divisional title, will be ready for one of its better games.

The Cardinals will have to be at their best to win from Pittsburgh which demonstrated its possibilities as a team that must be reckoned with the remainder of the season by its great play last Sunday. Ray Evans, the Steelers' first year back, after a disheartening start because of injuries, is playing the best ball of his career as both a ball carrier and passer. If he has another great day the Cards will have their hands filled.

With Charley Trippi, Elmer Angsman, Pat Harder and the remainder of the Cardinals' string of brilliant backs available, Jimmy Conzelman will present his strongest array against Evans and his teammates. To the victor will go the lead in the series, each team having won four games with one a stalemate.

The front running Philadelphia Eagles, with what the experts regard as the best team that has ever represented the Quaker City in professional football, will meet Boston in the first of the annual two game series. Victors in five straight games, Van

GREENIES KEEP BOWL BID HOPES ALIVE WITH WIN

Price, Kinek, Svoboda Spark Frnka's Crew In Most Impressive Victory

By Kris Kreeger

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Tulane's Green Wave stayed in the bowl picture and just about knocked Baylor out of it here today by thoroughly trouncing the Bears 35-13.

About 45,000 persons saw Tulane run up its highest score of the season, and that against one of the finest defensive clubs in the Southwest.

All Baylor had was the passing of Quarterback Adrian Burk, which engineered the Bear touchdowns, but backfired on two interceptions which set up Tulane scores.

The Wave line completely outplayed the Texans, opening huge holes for Fullback Ed Price and Halfbacks George Kinek and Bill Svoboda. Meanwhile, Quarterback Joe Ernest passed on about even terms with Burk.

Price's hard running paced Tulane on a 71-yard drive to its first touchdown. He circled left end for the last 11 yards.

Baylor came right back for a 54-yard scoring march on Burk's passing. He threw fiv eyards to Harold Riley for the touchdown.

The Wave surged 66 yards to another touchdown, made on Ernst's 21-yard pass to Kinek on fourth down with 15 seconds remaining in the half.

A third-place punt exchange worked the ball to the Baylor 34 where Ernst sparked another score. Svoboda crashed right guard for the final foot.

Again Baylor brought the kickoff back for a scoring march on Burk's passing, this time 72 yards.

Jasper Flanakin took a toss from Burk and slipped away from Tulane tacklers to go the last 27.

Tulane intercepted three Burk passes in the final period, and turned two of them into touchdowns. Price went one yard around right end for the first six points, and his brother-in-law, Ray Prats went six in the same direction for the next.

Dick Sheffield kicked five perfect placements for Tulane. Henry Dickerson made one and missed one for Baylor.

The net rushing yardage, 292 for Tulane and 39 for Baylor, about expresses the superiority of the Wave's line play. Tulane completed nine passes in 14 attempts for 102 yards, and Baylor made 14 out of 24 good for 129.

The lineups:

OUACHITA'S FROSH DOWN J-H 'B,' 20-6

The Ouachita Parish High School freshman football team trounced the Jonesboro-Hodge "B" team, 20 to 6, here yesterday afternoon on the L. T. I. gridiron, and Coach Harold Dickens' boys will be in action again tomorrow night when they visit Bastrop for a meeting with the Bastrop frosh at 7:30 o'clock.

Troy Counts scored twice for the Lion Cubs yesterday, romping 50 yards for the first touchdown in the opening quarter and scoring again on a 12-yard drive through center in the fourth period.

Kenneth Bates scampered 60 yards for a Cub touchdown in the third period. Bates added the point behind each touchdown except his own.

Koonce pitched a 15-yard pass to Shankles who went three yards further for the Jonesboro-Hodge touchdown in the third quarter.

Counts, Bates, Billy Fleming, Benny Franklin, and Gene Muckleroy sparked the Ouachita offensive show, while Freddie Salisburg, Rodney Cannon, and Herman Smith looked best in Coach Dickens' line.

In two games against the Washington Redskins in 1940, the Philadelphia Eagles could gain only 54 yards by rushing against the ball, but they gained 554 yards in the air.

Neville Points For Important 'A' Game With Bastrop

BASTROP POWERS PAST WINNFIELD

By "Skipper" Morris

BASTROP, La., Nov. 13.—(Special)—Snapping back on the victory trail after successive losses to Ruston and Springhill, the Bastrop High School Rams tallied three times in the final period last night to defeat the Winnfield Tigers, 32 to 0. The Rams packed their scoring punch into the first, second, and fourth stanzas of the game played on the turf at the West-side Stadium here.

The loss eliminated Winnfield's Bengals from a three-way tie for second place in the northeast district Class A standings, and left Bastrop and Ruston as the two teams pressing the conference leaders, unbeaten Neville High School. The powerful Neville eleven has to beat the Rams next Friday to cop the district crown.

The Rams scored their first touchdown in the opening period of play after a 55-yard drive. Winnfield Tailback, Dan Carr, punted dead on the Bastrop 45-yard line, and Lindsey picked up 19 yards around right end on the first play. Johnston took a handoff from Keene and reversed around left end for 14 yards and a first down on the Winnfield 22. Lindsey bored through center to the 20, and got a yard at right tackle to place the ball on the 19. Lindsey galloped around right end behind some good interference to a first down on the Tiger four-yard stripe. Lindsey plunged through center for the touchdown. Hindmon's attempt for the P. A. T. was wide, and Bastrop led, 6-0.

Winnfield took the ensuing kickoff and drove 44 yards to the Bastrop 25 in their first threat of the game, but lost the ball when Smart fumbled and Ram End Bill Peters recovered on the Bastrop 26-yard line.

In the second quarter the Rams moved 74 yards in four plays to score their second TD. Keene picked up a yard at right guard, and Lindsey accounted for six around right end. With Jackson standing in punt formation, Keene took the snap from center and plowed through center for eight yards to a first down on the Bastrop 41. On the next play, Keene carried on a full spinner and crashed over right guard into the secondary, outrunning the Bengal backs to the goal line 59 yards away. Closely pursuing Dan Carr tripped Keene after a low, diving tackle, but the stubby plunger toppled over the last white line. Lindsey tried a line plunge for the extra point, but the middle of the Tiger forward wall stopped him.

The Rams held this 12-0 lead at the half.

The third 12 minutes of the ball game went scoreless. Winnfield threatened down to the Bastrop 19 near the end of the period with Dan Carr's passes covering 22 of the 38 yards rolled up during the Bengal drive. However, Carr fumbled on an attempted right end sweep, and Bob Lamb covered the oval on the Bastrop 25 to throw cold water on the Winn parish team's hopes of scoring on the blue-clad local warriors.

Bastrop broke loose for three touchdowns during the final verse of the contest, driving 75 yards for one and capitalizing on a blocked kick and an intercepted aerial to get possession of the pigskin deep in Bengal country in order to chalk up another couple of six-pointers.

Lamb covered a fumble on the Bastrop 25 late in the third period to start the Rams on their way to their first last quarter score. Lindsey gained seven yards to the Bastrop 32 as the third period ended. Lindsey failed to gain at left tackle on the first play of the final 12 minutes, and then picked up two yards at right guard. Johnston took a handoff from Keene and sliced through the center of the line 16 yards to a first down on the Bastrop side of the midstripe. Lindsey cut back over right tackle and slanted into the clear field at the

by Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—In these days of two-platoon football teams, the best thing you can say about 60-minute players is "try and find them." . . . This department did set out to pick an all all-the-time team with the following results (time out for an occasional "breather" doesn't count): Backs—C. Drazenovich, Penn State; Chandnois, Michigan State; Kusserow, Columbia, and Cloud, William and Mary. Center—Bednarik, Penn. Guards—Karas, Columbia, and Healy, Georgia Tech. Ends—Haven't seen any but Barney Polle, Mississippi, and Dean Laun, Iowa State, might do. (We've observed all the other players mentioned and can state they're right good.) . . . Tackles—There's the real catch. Couldn't find any 60-minute men. The going must be rough in that part of the line.

Last season before the Louisiana State game, Wally delivered an impassioned pep talk, aimed mainly at inspiring Bob Walston. . . . Wondering how the young back had reacted, the round man sent an assistant to sound out Walston. . . . "How do you feel about the game, Bob?" the assistant asked. . . . "Fine, coach," Walston replied, "but I'll tell you something. If we get near the L. S. U. goal anytime, you'd better put Coach Butts in. He's ready."

Rutgers will play its 600th game of football against N. Y. U. today. The 80-season record stands at 285 won, 281 lost and 34 ties. . . . Now that Ken Strong has retired, the grid Giants are threatening to sign up Joe Lapchick to kick extra points. In Thursday's basketball game, Joe got so excited when one of Pat Kennedy's decisions went against the Knicks that he booted the water bucket half the length of the floor. . . . If you don't want that new car with all the extras, why not take the dough and buy the Newark ball club. The price is about the same. . . . Dick Rasmussen, tall skater with the Ice Follies, builds and runs midget automobiles as a hobby. . . . Looks like the fastest horses at Hialeah next winter would come from L. A. Brusie's string. After quite a search, it was found inside the bass horn. . . . Seems the wrong guy blew it dead that time.

NORTHWESTERN DEMONS BLAST ARKANSAS STATE

NATCHITOCHES, La., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Northwestern State College, with Halfback Bobby Johnson back in shape, trounced the Arkansas State College Indians 41-6 here today before a small crowd.

Johnson scored two of the Demons' six touchdowns and tossed passes to Q. T. Ford for two others. Wingback John Thompson and Right Halfback Ernest Bateman tallied the remaining pair. Ernest Davis' placements were good in five out of six tries.

Bill Perry, Jr., took Joe Shaw, Jr.'s 31-yard pass on the Demon 38 and romped over for the Indians' lone score.

TIGERS CAN TAKE DISTRICT CROWN WITH WIN FRIDAY

Rams Will Be Shooting To Throw Northeast Sector Into 3-Way Tie

The Neville High School Tigers, already assured of at least a playoff spot in the northeast Louisiana Class A title race, get their chance to sew up the title for good when they invade Bastrop netx Friday night to meet the rugged Ram eleven of Coach Charlie Thomas.

Bastrop comes as the lone remaining conference foe on the Tiger schedule, and Coach Bill Ruple's Bengals can clinch the district crown and win a place in the north Louisiana title playoff with the northwest sector titlists by winning their 14th consecutive game Friday.

KAHN OUT

Coach Bill Ruple announced last night that his Neville Tigers had suffered their first crippling blow of the season Friday night when Left End David Kahn suffered a broken leg against Lafayette.

Kahn went out of the game in the first half, but it was not certain the leg was broken until after X-ray examinations yesterday.

"The loss of Kahn comes as a hard blow right when we are ready to make a serious bid for at least a share of championship honors," Ruple said. "The loss will definitely hurt our defense and I'm afraid our club will be affected by a let down with the Bastrop game coming up."

Twice before Neville has appeared in title playoffs, 1936 and 1940, but the present Bengal force boasts a better record for this far in the campaign than did the earlier Tiger greats.

Main feature of the current Neville club is the fact that it is undefeated in nine games so far this year and has a string of 13 consecutive victories, the longest chain of wins in the history of the Monroe school.

However, with one more regularly scheduled game to go, the present charges of Coaches Ruple and Johnny Johnson rank fourth in Neville history in total scoring. The present edition has 224 points against 39 for the opposition.

No. 1 team offensively and defensively was the non-titled team of 1945 that rolled to 262 points in eight games and allowed the opposition only 19 points. Next best was the 1931 outfit that scored 257 points in ten games but lacked the defense shown by later elevens in allowing 103 points to pass its goal. Last year's team scored 239 points in ten games and gave up 64 points.

Neville has never been in a playoff outside its own northeast sector, losing to Bolton of Alexandria, 6-0, in its first title playoff in 1936, and dropping its next chance to Bastrop in 1940, 20 to 0.

Bastrop, ranking with Ruston's Bearcats as a foremost rival of the Tigers, pins its own championship hopes on the outcome of the Friday meeting. Coach Thomas' Rams can throw the district chase into a three-way tie by upsetting the Bengals, thus forcing a playoff between Neville, Bastrop, and Ruston. Neville barely nosed out Ruston, 14 to 13, a few weeks ago, and Ruston in turn beat Bastrop.

If Neville gets past Bastrop, the Tigers are expected to meet the strong Bossier City Bearkats for the north Louisiana crown with Bossier favored to win although regardless of the outcome the winner of such a scrap would likely be the pick to win the state crown currently held by Ruston.

Neville looked its most impressive here Friday night in defeating the Lafayette Lions 22 to 7.

RECREATION PLANS BOXING FOR WINTER

The Monroe Recreation department will sponsor its first boxing program this winter, it was announced yesterday.

Plans have been underway for some time, Director Jack Hesketh of the department said, and all fights will be held at the Recreation Center on Saturday nights as added attractions for the 'Teen-Age Club.

Loy Scarborough and Robert Gates, who have been amateur boxers for sometime will be the coaches for the team. Dr. William Epstein has been named as matchmaker and is also chairman of the boxing committee for the Recreation department.

Other activities sponsored by the Recreation department are softball, basketball, football, and the 'Teen-Age Club on Friday and Saturday nights, square dancing on Tuesday nights as well as daily play periods at the Center, and many other programs.

The public is urged to get behind programs sponsored by the Recreation department and also to take part in the program.

Other activities planned for the near future are junior dramatics, puppet shows, social dancing for young married couples.

GOLFING GRIDDERS

The catch, made on a four-ounce rod with worm for bait, weighs 12 pounds 9 ounces, 6½ ounces better than the previous high. Defending Champion Bogalusa Knocked Out Of District League Race

The Istrouma Indians put the state champion Bogalusa Lumberjacks out of the running for another Louisiana prep football title Friday night, giving the 'Jacks their first beating since 1946, 20 to 14.

A last-minute pass scored the winning touchdown.

The victory was Istrouma's second in the southeast district, and it assured the Indians of at least a tie for the district crown. They have beaten Baton Rouge High and must play Catholic which has a one-and-one record.

NOTRE DAME SHADES NORTHWESTERN, 12 TO 7

FINAL QUARTER ASSAULT SAVES GAME FOR IRISH

South Benders Squeeze Through With 20th Consecutive Triumph

By Ted Smits

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Two unheralded substitutes, William Gay and John Landry, brought Notre Dame from behind to defeat Northwestern 12 to 7 today in a bruising battle of football Titans.

Their heroic last quarter touchdown march came after Art Murakowski put Northwestern ahead 7-6 on a 90-yard run when he intercepted Francis Tripucka's pass. This was Notre Dame's 20th consecutive victory and it put Coach Frank Leany's name in the records alongside that of the Great Knute Rockne.

Leahy's team has now gone 26 games without defeat, counting the 1946 scoreless tie with Army, equalling the brilliant string Rockne spun with his last teams in 1929 and 1930.

Notre Dame scored first on a 91-yard march in the first period before the capacity crowd of 59,305, with John Panelli carrying it over from the two-yard line. Until near the end of the third period it looked like this would be all that either team could do. But then, with Notre Dame on the march, Murakowski jumped high into the air to take Tripucka's pass and dart down the sidelines. Jim Farrar's conversion put Northwestern ahead, and it almost seemed that the year's biggest football upset was in the making.

But the 170-pound Gay and the 180-pound Landry came driving down the field, starting from Notre Dame's 37-yard line. Gay carried it over from the one-foot mark to keep Notre Dame's record untarnished.

Notre Dame, ranked narrowly second only to Michigan in the latest A. P. poll, was favored to defeat its ancient rivals from the Big Nine by two touchdowns.

In this, their last meeting for the present in a series that began in 1889, Northwestern set out to prove that it is a fit representative of the Western Conference in the Rose Bowl, and although defeated, Northwestern came out with high honors.

To start the game Murakowski and Frank Aschenbrenner slammed their way down to the Notre Dame 45, but there, Aschenbrenner fumbled, only to have Mike Swistowicz of Notre Dame drop the ball on the next play.

Chuck Hagmann recovered but a penalty dropped Northwestern back to its 45. Don Burson passed to Aschenbrenner for 15, Murakowski ripped off two first downs and then Aschenbrenner failed to make his yardage by inches and Notre Dame took over on its nine.

It took 16 plays for Notre Dame to score with Terry Brennan's 22-yard run the brightest spot in the relentless parade.

Back and forth the battle swayed. Northwestern, again led by 195-pound Murakowski, smashed to Notre Dame's 24 yard line early in the second period but nothing came of it.

In the third quarter, with Gay making his presence known decisively in place of the ailing Emil Sitko, Notre Dame kept pounding away at Northwestern's goal.

With the ball on the Northwestern 14 the stage was set for the game's big thrill. Tripucka passed sharp and hard sidewise across the field. It was intended for Terry Brennan, but Murakowski got it instead.

The Notre Dame defense was so spread out that Murakowski's dash down the sidelines was without interruption. Tripucka came the closest to overhauling him. Running slantwise down the field he dove at Murakowski on the Notre Dame 30-yard line but missed.

The effective conversion, coming after Stephen Oracko's earlier miss of Notre Dame's chance for an extra point, made it look like Northwestern had all it needed to win.

Here it was that Gay and Landry rose to the heights.

Just as the third period ended, Gay returned Aschenbrenner's punt to the Notre Dame 37. Landry made two successive first downs, carrying to the Northwestern 37, and Gay punched out another on the 27. Landry, on a quick opener, shot to the 15. Gay made five through the stubborn Northwestern line; added seven more. And then Landry carried almost to the goal line from where Gay took it over.

That was all, although Notre Dame kept on driving, with interference on a pass giving the Irish the ball on the Northwestern 16. The mighty line of Northwestern held, but Notre Dame had another chance a few minutes later when Burson, trying to pass, fumbled and Capt. William Fischer of Notre Dame recovered on the Northwestern nine. Again Northwestern held. Notre Dame tried a field goal in the waning seconds, but it went wide.

The entation's top football game, between second ranking Notre Dame and eighth ranking Northwestern, was played out under gray skies before a chilled but hysterical crowd. It was Notre Dame's 23rd victory over Northwestern against three wins by the Big Nine team, and two ties.

Northwestern entered the game with only one defeat, 28-0, by Michigan, the team most frequently compared with Notre Dame.

Notre Dame had all the edge in statistics, leading in first downs 18 to 10, in rushing 308 yards to 101, but trailing in pass yardage 65-61.

The game was a battle of big, powerful lines. Alex Sarkisian, although injured, shone at center for Northwestern, and Fischer played a mighty game for Notre Dame at guard, as did Leon Hart at end.

In individual statistics, Aschenbrenner made 27 yards in 11 attempts, and Murakowski 74 in 19 tries—not counting, of course, his 90 yard touchdown

BASTROP

Lindsey's kickoff went deep into Tiger territory, and after three unsuccessful plays, the Bengals placed their tailback, Dan Carr, ten yards behind the line to punt. At the snap, Charles Whitaker drove through the defending Winnfield line and blocked Carr's punt, the ball rolling to the Tiger 13, where Logan Whitaker covered it. Keene handed the ball to Johnston and the diminutive back picked up five yards over left tackle. Johnston then shifted back to tailback and zipped around right end to score. Durwood Swilley, 186-pound Bengal tackle, blocked Hindmon's try for the extra point, and the Rams were on the long end of a 25-0 count.

About two minutes before the final whistle, Carr attempted to pass to Charles Eyer, but Hindmon intercepted on the Bastrop 41 and raced across the field 20 yards to the Tiger 39 before he was pulled down. Len Duncan skirted left end for 26 yards down the sideline to a first down on the Winnfield 13-yard stripe. Croswell, shifty, hard running fullback, pulled through right guard on a half spinner and thundered over the goal line to end the night's scoring. Hindmon split the crossbars and Bastrop led, 32 to 0.

Bastrop reserves accounted for the last touchdown and held the Tigers in check during the last minute or so of play.

Buren, Thompson and company hope to continue their exceptionally fine record.

Boston, beset by injuries but showing offensive strength in every game, upset the Eagles last year and forced the Philadelphians into a playoff for the divisional title. They may repeat, though the Philadelphians are strong favorites to win.

Washington, with its brilliant rookie, Dan Sandifer playing havoc with opposing passers and returning kickoffs with all the eclat of a five year veteran, and with Sammy Baugh continuing to exert his mastery of the airwaves, will meet Fred Enke, Detroit's brilliant rookie, for the first time in Washington.

The Redskins, only a half game back of Philadelphia in the race for eastern honors, have won six of the seven games played with the Lions.

Los Angeles and New York have met only once in the past with the Rams the victor. The game tomorrow will match the league's new passing leader, Jim Hardy, against Charley Conerly, fifth in the standings. One of the best passing duels of the season is expected when the three year veteran matches his throwing prowess with that of the former Mississippi star and a first year player.

DELHI BEARS TAME ARCADIA HORNETS

DELHI, La., Nov. 13.—(Special)—The Black Bears of Delhi showed plenty of power last night as they handed the Arcadia Hornets, previously unbeaten in Class B competition, a 39 to 19 defeat.

Charlie Moore, Delhi quarterback, sparked the Bruins' offensive with an air attack that resulted in nine completions out of eleven attempts, four of the completions going for touchdowns.

Hopkins, right halfback, scored two touchdowns and added three extra points for the Bears, while Left End Burnley scored twice on passes, Harry Weed, reserve end, scored once on a pass, and Lingfelt, left half, tallied one time on a 30-yard off tackle slant.

Delhi enjoyed a 25-0 lead at the half, but the Hornets struck back for three touchdowns in the last half as Smelley made a 70-yard kickoff return to pay dirt, and Williams and Candler scored once each. Henley place kicked for the lone Arcadia extra point.

First three-goal hat trick of the U. S. Rockey League season was scored by Billy Warwick, right wing of the Ft. Worth Rangers, against Tulsa.

CRIMSONS UPSET YELLOW JACKETS TO TUNE OF 14-12

Substitute 'Bama Centers Fashion Victory On Engineer Errors

By Sterling Slappey

ATLANTA, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Alabama Crimson Tide turned a Tech fumble and a pass interception into a 14-12 upset victory over Georgia Tech today to all but end the once high hopes of the Yellow Jackets for a bowl bid.

The thrice-beaten Tide was a two to three touchdown underdog.

The Southeastern Conference game, played before a sellout crowd of 38,000, was a major shocker and a near duplicate of Tennessee's upset last week which was the Yellow Jackets' first loss of the season.

Two Alabama substitute centers—Doug Lockridge and Elliott Speed—were spot men when Tech erred. Lockridge recovered a Tech fumble on the Jackets' four and on the next play Alabama scored. Speed intercepted a Tech pass and ran 62 yards for the Tide's second touchdown.

Statistics wise Tech had the best of the game but Lockridge, Speed and a stout Alabama line tightened before Tech could get moving except late in the game.

Alabama got away momentarily from the battle of lines in the second quar-

MUSTANGS COME FROM BEHIND TO DOWN ARKANSAS

Porkers See 12-0 Lead Fade As S. M. U. Scores 14 To 12 Triumph

By Carl Bell

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Southern Methodist University's Mustangs scored on the last play of the game to defeat the Arkansas Razorbacks 14 to 12 here today.

An Arkansas homecoming crowd of 22,000 watched Halfback Paul Page snag a 16-yard pass from Gilbert Johnson and fall into the end zone as the final gun sounded to turn a seemingly certain defeat into victory.

The win was S. M. U.'s fourth against no losses in their bid for a second straight southwest conference title.

An expected duel between S. M. U.'s Doak Walker and Arkansas' Clyde Scott failed to materialize. Scott was carried from the field with a knee injury in the first quarter. Walker carried the ball seven times but wound up with a net 10 yards lost. His two place kicks, however, produced the points that spelled the difference.

Scott netted 31 yards on the five times he carried before leaving the game. Arkansas was hurt seriously by 14 penalties for 121 yards.

The Razorbacks scored in the first period when Fullback Leon Campbell piled over from the S. M. U. one-yard line, culminating a 60-yard drive that started with a 19-yard punt return by Scott.

They made it 12-0 in the third quarter as Campbell broke through the left side and ran 68 yards for a touchdown. Campbell cleared his last obstacle by stiff-arming Walker out of the way on the Mustang 20.

S. M. U. marched back 80 yards for its first tally. Frank Payne, Gene Roberts and Dick McKissack accounted for most of the yardage and Kyle Rote dived over from a yard away.

After stoping a razorback drive on the S. M. U. 11, in the waning minutes, the Mustangs started rolling from their own 16. Rote's 35-yard dash and passes from Johnson to Rote, Walker and Wayne carried the Ponies to the Arkansas 21.

An offside penalty gave the Methodists the ball on the 16 and nullified a pass interception by Arkansas' Alvin Duke. Johnson passed to Zohn Milam, but the big end caught the ball out of the end zone. Then, with good protection, Johnson faded far back and pitched to Page who made the catch with his back to the goal, turned and fell across the line.

Score by quarters:

Southern Methodist	0	0	7	7	—14
Arkansas	6	0	6	0	—12

Southern Methodist scoring: Touchdowns, Rote, Page. Points after touchdowns, D. Walker 2 (placements).

Arkansas scoring: Touchdowns, Campbell 2.

LAKE PROVIDENCE BOWS TO INDIANS

Fair Park's Redskins Defeat Class B Panthers By 25-6 Count

By C. L. Deare

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Nov. 13.—(Special)—After battling the Fair Park Indians to a 6-6 halftime tie, the Lake Providence Panthers fell before the second half power of the Class AA Redskins, winding up on the short end of a 25-6 score at Shreveport's Fair Grounds Stadium Thursday night.

Halfback Walter Crain ran for two of the Tribe scores and passed to Don Wineman for the other two as he led his mates to the triumph over the Class B Panthers.

Starting from their 25 yard line after taking the opening kickoff, the Indians marched 75 yards on power plays for the first tally as the Panther defense was slow in getting organized. It looked as though Fair Park was going to repeat that feat, but two terrific goal lines stand by the Panthers—one on the two yard stripe in the first quarter and one on the four yard marker in the second—held the Redskins off.

In the second period the Panthers began to click. Plunges through and around the line and a pair of passes moved the Panthers to the Fair Park 17 after the visitors had recovered an Indian fumble on the Lake Providence 37.

Then Fred Phillips faded to pass, and with the line giving him plenty of protection, arched a perfect toss into the outstretched fingers of Captain Jack Brown, left end of the Panthers. The try for extra point failed, as did Fair Park's, and the score was knotted at 6-6 as the half ended immediately after the kickoff.

On the way into the dressing room at the half, Phillips, still breathing heavily, said of his touchdown pass to Brown, "I had enough time to sit down and shine my shoes; that touchdown belongs to those guards and tackles, it wasn't mine."

In the early minutes of the third period, a Lake Providence fumble was recovered by Fair Park on the Panther 32. A few plays later, Crain hit Wineman with a 12-yard touchdown throw. Fred Howell made the only conversion of the night to put the Indians ahead 13-6.

A poor punt by the Panthers which netted only one yard to their 33 set up the next score, which came on a 16-yard aerial from Crain to Wineman. Late in the third quarter a Lake Providence pass was intercepted by Griffith on the Panther 45. After working the pigskin to the 11-yard line, Crain faded to pass, couldn't find a receiver, and ran wide around his left end to pay dirt.

Charles Denny came up with several sparkling runs, one of them a 35-yard jaunt, while Lloyd Clement picked up short gains in his smashes against the strong Indian forward wall. He also stood out on defense, as did Jack Brown, Billy Herrington, Gene Clement and Ronald Anglin. Anglin was knocked out in the fourth period and had to be carried from the field, but he was not seriously injured.

Jack Brown was undoubtedly the outstanding Panther on the field, and his play was on a par with the best of the Indians, including Crain, Griffith and W. B. Calvert.

On two different occasions, two kickoffs have been run back for touchdowns in a Washington Redskin-Philadelphia Eagle game—in 1942 and 1947.

JUNIOR SUGAR BOWL SELECTORS KEEPING TABS ON TOP TEAMS

The selection committee of the Junior Sugar Bowl is still scanning weekly results in the national junior college football program in quest of two top-ranked teams for its football classic here Saturday night, December 11.

While no definite bids had been handed out up to yesterday the teams drawing most attention are the Kilgore College Rangers of Kilgore, Tex.; Eastern Oklahoma A. and M. Mountaineers of Wilburton, Okla.; Perkinston Junior College of Perkinston, Miss.; Little Rock Junior College of Little Rock, Ark.; and Duluth Junior College of Duluth, Minn.

Only Little Rock has suffered defeat this season, but all losses were to four-year schools. Duluth is currently in the No. 1 spot in the nation, and Eastern Oklahoma, although twice tied, pulled the season's biggest jaycee upset a week ago by beating high ranked Cameron, Okla., Aggies.

PLAINSMEN FEEL GEORGIA'S MIGHT IN 42-14 DEFEAT

Johnny Rauch Spearheads Bulldog Victory With Stellar Passing

By Leroy Simms

COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Johnny Rauch furthered his bid for All-America and Georgia's chances for a Southeastern Conference championship today by riddling Auburn's defenses with his threadneedle passes in a 42 to 14 Georgia victory.

Rauch, senior quarterback from Yeardon, Pa., fired a 44-yarder to Bob Walston for the openir; Georgia score. Thereafter, he threw for needed yardage whenever the occasion demanded, and was the big gun in most of the Georgia scores.

The victory was Georgia's 26th in 52 meetings with Auburn. Five of the contests ended in ties and Auburn won the other 21.

Georgia's second touchdown, made by Fullback John Tillitski early in the second period, set off an Auburn offensive flurry. The Tigers drove 76 yards, alternating runs and passes for their first score. Travis Tidwell ran for the final five yards.

Rauch and his mates matched this tally in three plays. Rauch passed to Walston for 54, and Joe Geri drove over in two smashes.

Auburn came back with another counter, Tidwell scoring again on a short off-tackle gain after his 44-yard pass to Virgil Willett.

That brought the score to 21-14 at half time, but Georgia soon ended ideas of a close game.

Two recovered fumbles, one at Auburn 20 and one on the Auburn two, set up two easy Georgia scores in the third period. Geri made the first one, and Fullback Floyd Reid the other.

End John Duke took a 25-yard pass from Ray Prosperi for the final Georgia marker in the last period. Georgia had the ball at Auburn's one as the game ended.

Rauch completed seven of 10 passes for 197 yards, and had none inter-

NOTRE DAME SHADES NORTHWESTERN, 12 TO 7

Oft-Beaten Alabama Dims Georgia Tech's Bowl Dreams

FINAL QUARTER ASSAULT SAVES GAME FOR IRISH

South Benders Squeeze Through With 20th Consecutive Triumph

By Ted Smits

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Two unheralded substitutes, William Gay and John Landry, brought Notre Dame from behind to defeat Northwestern 12 to 7 today in a bruising battle of football Titans.

Their heroic last quarter touchdown march came after Art Murakowski put Northwestern ahead 7-6 on a 90-yard run when he intercepted Francis Tripucka's pass. This was Notre Dame's 20th consecutive victory and it put Coach Frank Leany's name in the records alongside that of the Great Knute Rockne.

Leahy's team has now gone 26 games without defeat, counting the 1946 scoreless tie with Army, equalling the brilliant string Rockne spun with his last teams in 1929 and 1930.

Notre Dame scored first on a 91-yard march in the first period before the capacity crowd of 59,305, with John Panelli carrying it over from the two-yard line. Until near the end of the third period it looked like this would be all that either team could do. But then, with Notre Dame on the march, Murakowski jumped high into the air to take Tripucka's pass and dart down the sidelines. Jim Farrar's conversion put Northwestern ahead, and it almost seemed that the year's biggest football upset was in the making.

But the 170-pound Gay and the 180-pound Landry came driving down the field, starting from Notre Dame's 37-yard line. Gay carried it over from the one-foot mark to keep Notre Dame's record untarnished.

Notre Dame, ranked narrowly second only to Michigan in the latest A. P. poll, was favored to defeat its ancient rivals from the Big Nine by two touchdowns.

In this, their last meeting for the present in a series that began in 1889, Northwestern set out to prove that it is a fit representative of the Western Conference in the Rose Bowl, and although defeated, Northwestern came out with high honors.

To start the game Murakowski and Frank Aschenbrenner slammed their way down to the Notre Dame 45, but there, Aschenbrenner fumbled, only to have Mike Swistowicz of Notre Dame drop the ball on the next play.

Chuck Hagmann recovered but a penalty dropped Northwestern back to its 45. Don Burson passed to Aschenbrenner for 15, Murakowski ripped off two first downs and then Aschenbrenner failed to make his yardage by inches and Notre Dame took over on its nine.

It took 16 plays for Notre Dame to score with Terry Brennan's 22-yard run the brightest spot in the relentless parade.

Back and forth the battle swayed. Northwestern, again led by 195-pound Murakowski, smashed to Notre Dame's 24 yard line early in the second period but nothing came of it.

In the third quarter, with Gay making his presence known decisively in place of the ailing Emil Sitko, Notre Dame kept pounding away at Northwestern's goal.

With the ball on the Northwestern 14 the stage was set for the game's big thrill. Tripucka passed sharp and hard sidewise across the field. It was intended for Terry Brennan, but Murakowski got it instead.

The Notre Dame defense was so spread out that Murakowski's dash down the sidelines was without interruption. Tripucka came the closest to overhauling him. Running slantwise down the field he dove at Murakowski on the Notre Dame 30-yard line but missed.

The effective conversion, coming after Stephen Oracko's earlier miss of Notre Dame's chance for an extra point, made it look like Northwestern had all it needed to win.

Here it was that Gay and Landry rose to the heights.

Just as the third period ended, Gay returned Aschenbrenner's punt to the Notre Dame 37. Landry made two successive first downs, carrying to the Northwestern 37, and Gay punched out another on the 27. Landry, on a quick opener, shot to the 15. Gay made five through the stubborn Northwestern line; added seven more. And then Landry carried almost to the goal line from where Gay took it over.

That was all, although Notre Dame kept on driving, with interference on a pass giving the Irish the ball on the Northwestern 16. The mighty line of Northwestern held, but Notre Dame had another chance a few minutes later when Burson, trying to pass, fumbled and Capt. William Fischer of Notre Dame recovered on the Northwestern nine. Again Northwestern held. Notre Dame tried a field goal in the waning seconds, but it went wide.

The nation's top football game, between second ranking Notre Dame and eighth ranking Northwestern, was played out under gray skies before a chilled but hysterical crowd. It was Notre Dame's 23rd victory over Northwestern against three wins by the Big Nine team, and two ties.

Northwestern entered the game with only one defeat, 28-0, by Michigan, the team most frequently compared with Notre Dame.

Notre Dame had all the edge in statistics, leading in first downs 18 to 10, in rushing 308 yards to 101, but trailing in pass yardage 65-61.

The game was a battle of big, powerful lines. Alex Sarkisian, although injured, shone at center for Northwestern, and Fischer played a mighty game for Notre Dame at guard, as did Leon Hart at end.

In individual statistics, Aschenbrenner made 27 yards in 11 attempts, and Murakowski 74 in 19 tries—not counting, of course, his 90 yard touchdown

Hubert Vincent ran 62 yards for another Sulphur touchdown, Cryer scored on a 56-yard pass play, and Johnny Hebert plunged for six points.

W. A. Rush made Bolton's touchdowns, one on a 40-yard run, and I. E. Schroll converted twice.

Vic Villafarra and Mike Trapani scored for Redemptorist as the rams gave Varnado its first defeat in eight games. Ray Baughtman slithered 37 yards for the losers' touchdown.

Peters scored in every period in the rout of Bay High. Beak Kippers made two touchdowns. Others were counted by Payl Manfre, Frankie Mulligan, Eddie Ziegler, Ray Vitrano, and Farrell Tapie.

Tiger 38, racing on down the gridiron into the end zone after a fifty-yard dash. Hindmon placekicked the point and Bastrop led, 19-0.

Lindsey's kickoff went deep into Tiger territory, and after three unsuccessful plays, the Bengals placed their tailback, Dan Carr, ten yards behind the line to punt. At the snap, Charles Whitaker drove through the defending Winnfield line and blocked Carr's punt, the ball rolling to the Tiger 13, where Logan Whitaker covered it. Keene handed the ball to Johnston and the diminutive back picked up five yards over left tackle. Johnston then shifted back to tailback and zipped around right end to score. Durwood Swilley, 186-pound Bengal tackle, blocked Hindmon's try for the extra point, and the Rams were on the long end of a 25-0 count.

About two minutes before the final whistle, Carr attempted to pass to Charles Eyer, but Hindmon intercepted on the Bastrop 41 and raced across the field 20 yards to the Tiger 39 before he was pulled down. Len Duncan skirted left end for 26 yards down the sideline to a first down on the Winnfield 13-yard stripe. Croswell, shifty, hard running fullback, pulled through right guard on a half spinner and thundered over the goal line to end the night's scoring. Hindmon split the crossbars and Bastrop led, 32 to 0.

Bastrop reserves accounted for the last touchdown and held the Tigers in check during the last minute or so of play.

Buren, Thompson and company hope to continue their exceptionally fine record.

Boston, beset by injuries but showing offensive strength in every game, upset the Eagles last year and forced the Philadelphians into a playoff for the divisional title. They may repeat, though the Philadelphians are strong favorites to win.

Washington, with its brilliant rookie, Dan Sandifer playing havoc with opposing passers and returning kickoffs with all the eclat of a five year veteran, and with Sammy Baugh continuing to exert his mastery of the airwaves, will meet Fred Enke, Detroit's brilliant rookie, for the first time in Washington.

The Redskins, only a half game back of Philadelphia in the race for eastern honors, have won six of the seven games played with the Lions.

Los Angeles and New York have met only once in the past with the Rams the victor. The game tomorrow will match the league's new passing leader, Jim Hardy, against Charley Conerly, fifth in the standings. One of the best passing duels of the season is expected when the three year veteran matches his throwing prowess with that of the former Mississippi star and a first year player.

DELHI BEARS TAME ARCADIA HORNETS

DELHI, La., Nov. 13.—(Special)—The Black Bears of Delhi showed plenty of power last night as they handed the Arcadia Hornets, previously unbeaten in Class B competition, a 39 to 19 defeat.

Charlie Moore, Delhi quarterback, sparked the Bruins' offensive with an air attack that resulted in nine completions out of eleven attempts, four of the completions going for touchdowns.

Hopkins, right halfback, scored two touchdowns and added three extra points for the Bears, while Left End Burnley scored twice on passes, Harry Weed, reserve end, scored once on a pass, and Lingfelt, left half, tallied one time on a 30-yard off tackle slant.

Delhi enjoyed a 25-0 lead at the half, but the Hornets struck back for three touchdowns in the last half as Smelley made a 70-yard kickoff return to pay dirt, and Williams and Candler scored once each. Henley place kicked for the lone Arcadia extra point.

First three-goal hat trick of the U. S. Rockey League season was scored by Billy Warwick, right wing of the Ft. Worth Rangers, against Tulsa.

CRIMSONS UPSET YELLOW JACKETS TO TUNE OF 14-12

Substitute 'Bama Centers Fashion Victory On Engineer Errors

By Sterling Slappey

ATLANTA, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Alabama Crimson Tide turned a Tech fumble and a pass interception into a 14-12 upset victory over Georgia Tech today to all but end the once high hopes of the Yellow Jackets for a bowl bid.

The thrice-beaten Tide was a two to three touchdown underdog.

The Southeastern Conference game, played before a sellout crowd of 38,000, was a major shocker and a near duplicate of Tennessee's upset last week which was the Yellow Jackets' first loss of the season.

Two Alabama substitute centers—Doug Lockridge and Elliott Speed—were spot men when Tech erred. Lockridge recovered a Tech fumble on the Jackets' four and on the next play Alabama scored. Speed intercepted a Tech pass and ran 62 yards for the Tide's second touchdown.

Statistics wise Tech had the best of the game but Lockridge, Speed and a stout Alabama line tightened before Tech could get moving except late in the game.

Alabama got away momentarily from the battle of lines in the second quar-

MUSTANGS COME FROM BEHIND TO DOWN ARKANSAS

Porkers See 12-0 Lead Fade As S. M. U. Scores 14 To 12 Triumph

By Carl Bell

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Southern Methodist University's Mustangs scored on the last play of the game to defeat the Arkansas Razorbacks 14 to 12 here today.

An Arkansas homecoming crowd of 22,000 watched Halfback Paul Page snag a 16-yard pass from Gilbert Johnson and fall into the end zone as the final gun sounded to turn a seemingly certain defeat into victory.

The win was S. M. U.'s fourth against no losses in their bid for a second straight southwest conference title.

An expected duel between S. M. U.'s Doak Walker and Arkansas' Clyde Scott failed to materialize. Scott was carried from the field with a knee injury in the first quarter. Walker carried the ball seven times but wound up with a net 10 yards lost. His two place kicks, however, produced the points that spelled the difference.

Scott netted 31 yards on the five times he carried before leaving the game. Arkansas was hurt seriously by 14 penalties for 121 yards.

The Razorbacks scored in the first period when Fullback Leon Campbell piled over from the S. M. U. one-yard line, culminating a 60-yard drive that started with a 19-yard punt return by Scott.

They made it 12-0 in the third quarter as Campbell broke through the left side and ran 68 yards for a touchdown. Campbell cleared his last obstacle by stiff-arming Walker out of the way on the Mustang 20.

S. M. U. marched back 80 yards for its first tally. Frank Payne, Gene Roberts and Dick McKissack accounted for most of the yardage and Kyle Rote dived over from a yard away.

After stoping a razorback drive on the S. M. U. 11, in the waning minutes, the Mustangs started rolling from their own 16. Rote's 35-yard dash and passes from Johnson to Rote, Walker and Wayne carried the Ponies to the Arkansas 21.

An offside penalty gave the Methodists the ball on the 16 and nullified a pass interception by Arkansas' Alvin Duke. Johnson passed to Zohn Milam, but the big end caught the ball out of the end zone. Then, with good protection, Johnson faded far back and pitched to Page who made the catch with his back to the goal, turned and fell across the line.

Score by quarters:

Southern Methodist	0	0	7	7	—14

Southern Methodist scoring: Touchdowns, Rote, Page. Points after touchdowns, D. Walker 2 (placements).

Arkansas scoring: Touchdowns, Campbell 2.

Fair Park's Redskins Defeat Class B Panthers By 25-6 Count

By C. L. Deare

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Nov. 13.—(Special)—After battling the Fair Park Indians to a 6-6 halftime tie, the Lake Providence Panthers fell before the second half power of the Class AA Redskins, winding up on the short end of a 25-6 score at Shreveport's Fair Grounds Stadium Thursday night.

Halfback Walter Crain ran for two of the Tribe scores and passed to Don Wineman for the other two as he led his mates to the triumph over the Class B Panthers.

Starting from their 25 yard line after taking the opening kickoff, the Indians marched 75 yards on power plays for the first tally as the Panther defense was slow in getting organized. It looked as though Fair Park was going to repeat that feat, but two terrific goal lines stand by the Panthers—one on the two yard stripe in the first quarter and one on the four yard marker in the second—held the Redskins off.

In the second period the Panthers began to click. Plunges through and around the line and a pair of passes moved the Panthers to the Fair Park 17 after the visitors had recovered an Indian fumble on the Lake Providence 37.

Then Fred Phillips faded to pass, and with the line giving him plenty of protection, arched a perfect toss into the outstretched fingers of Captain Jack Brown, left end of the Panthers. The try for extra point failed, as did Fair Park's, and the score was knotted at 6-6 as the half ended immediately after the kickoff.

On the way into the dressing room at the half, Phillips, still breathing heavily, said of his touchdown pass to Brown, "I had enough time to sit down and shine my shoes; that touchdown belongs to those guards and tackles, it wasn't mine."

In the early minutes of the third period, a Lake Providence fumble was recovered by Fair Park on the Panther 32. A few plays later, Crain hit Wineman with a 12-yard touchdown throw. Fred Howell made the only conversion of the night to put the Indians ahead 13-6.

A poor punt by the Panthers which netted only one yard to their 33 set up the next score, which came on a 16-yard aerial from Crain to Wineman. Late in the third quarter a Lake Providence pass was intercepted by Griffith on the Panther 45. After working the pigskin to the 11-yard line, Crain faded to pass, couldn't find a receiver, and ran wide around his left end to pay dirt.

Charles Denny came up with several sparkling runs, one of them a 35-yard jaunt, while Lloyd Clement picked up short gains in his smashes against the strong Indian forward wall. He also stood out on defense, aided Jack Brown, Billy Herrington, Gene Clement and Ronald Anglin. Anglin was knocked out in the fourth period and had to be carried from the field, but he was not seriously injured.

Jack Brown was undoubtedly the outstanding Panther on the field, and his play was on a par with the best of the Indians, including Crain, Griffith and W. B. Calvert.

On two different occasions, two kickoffs have been run back for touchdowns in a Washington Redskin-Philadelphia Eagle game—in 1942 and 1947.

JUNIOR SUGAR BOWL SELECTORS KEEPING TABS ON TOP TEAMS

The selection committee of the Junior Sugar Bowl is still scanning weekly results in the national junior college football program in quest of two top-ranked teams for its football classic here Saturday night, December 11.

While no definite bids had been handed out up to yesterday the teams drawing most attention are the Kilgore College Rangers of Kilgore, Tex.; Eastern Oklahoma A. and M. Mountaineers of Wilburton, Okla.; Perkinston Junior College of Perkinston, Miss.; Little Rock Junior College of Little Rock, Ark.; and Duluth Junior College of Duluth, Minn.

Only Little Rock has suffered defeat this season, but all losses were to four-year schools. Duluth is currently in the No. 1 spot in the nation, and Eastern Oklahoma, although twice tied, pulled the season's biggest jaycee upset a week ago by beating high ranked Cameron, Okla., Aggies.

PLAINSMEN FEEL GEORGIA'S MIGHT IN 42-14 DEFEAT

Johnny Rauch Spearheads Bulldog Victory With Stellar Passing

By Leroy Simms

COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Johnny Rauch furthered his bid for All-America and Georgia's chances for a Southeastern Conference championship today by riddling Auburn's defenses with his threadneedle passes in a 42 to 14 Georgia victory.

Rauch, senior quarterback from Yeardon, Pa., fired a 44-yarder to Bob Walston for the opening Georgia score. Thereafter, he threw for needed yardage whenever the occasion demanded, and was the big gun in most of the Georgia scores.

The victory was Georgia's 26th in 52 meetings with Auburn. Five of the contests ended in ties and Auburn won the other 21.

Georgia's second touchdown, made by Fullback John Tillitski early in the second period, set off an Auburn offensive flurry. The Tigers drove 76 yards, alternating runs and passes for their first score. Travis Tidwell ran for the final five yards.

Rauch and his mates matched this tally in three plays. Rauch passed to Walston for 54, and Joe Geri drove over in two smashes.

Auburn came back with another counter, Tidwell scoring again on a short off-tackle gain after his 44-yard pass to Virgil Willett.

That brought the score to 21-14 at half time, but Georgia soon ended ideas of a close game.

Two recovered fumbles, one at Auburn 20 and one on the Auburn two, set up two easy Georgia scores in the third period. Geri made the first one, and Fullback Floyd Reid the other.

End John Duke took a 25-yard pass from Ray Prosperi for the final Georgia marker in the last period. Georgia had the ball at Auburn's one as the game ended.

Rauch completed seven of 10 passes for 197 yards, and had none inter-

ARMY TAKES TO AIR TO NOSE OUT QUAKERS

BLACK KNIGHTS WIN IN LAST 30 SECONDS, 26-20

Overwhelming Favorites, Cadets Fight From Behind 3 Times To Triumph

By Gayle Talbot

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Only 30 seconds away from defeat at the hands of an amazing University of Pennsylvania eleven, Army struck 15 yards through the air for a touchdown and a 26 to 20 victory that tore the hearts out of the majority of 78,000 spectators today.

Overwhelming favorites seeking their eighth straight triumph, the Cadets were forced to fight from behind three times and needed a dazzling 103-yard runback of a kickoff by Bobby Jack Stuart to subdue the battling Quakers. It was a thriller all the way.

The big clock showed exactly a half-minute to go when Arnold Galiffa, Army quarterback, fell back and fired a strike into the arms of John Trent, an end, beyond Penn's goal line to settle the issue. The vast crowd, a moment before yelling almost as one, fell silent, stricken.

Only moments before Ray Dooney, Penn's stocky, 200-pound fullback, had blasted through Army's line and legged it 42 yards for the score that put the Quakers in front, 20-19, and apparently spelled Army's doom. Few would have risked a thin dime on the Cadets' chances of keeping an unblemished slate.

Then Army took an out-of-bounds kick on its own 26, and with the minutes ticking off, Galiffa began throwing footballs. In six plays, including a 21-yard Galiffa to Dave Parrish aerial, the Black Knights swept to the Quarker 15, and on third down Galiffa hit the jackpot.

For Galiffa, the winning toss made last-minute amends for two glaring fumbles he committed in the first half, on each of which the aroused Penn team capitalized in full.

Dooney, in addition to his touchdown dash in the final period, had passed to End Bob Sponaugle from one yard out for Penn's first score in the opening quarter and had lugged the leather across for the Quakers' second tally to keep his team in front 14-13 at the half.

His father died on Wednesday, and the funeral at Atlantic City has been postponed until next Monday so that Dooney could get his shot at the West Point crown. That he didn't personally superintend the season's crowning upset was no fault of the man who is built like a mail box.

Penn proved that Army's vaunted running attack could be contained. Gil Stephenson, the "new Doc Blanchard," was stopped almost cold by Chuck Bernarik and his husky teammates. But for Galiffa's passing, Army would have taken a beating.

Army, the nation's No. 3 team in last week's Associated Press poll, made only one first down in the first 30 minutes of play—on a pass. Penn made seven. The final tally was Army 11 firsts, Penn 9. Penn gained 198 yards by rushing to Army's 167.

Penn scored the first touchdown in the midst of a driving rainstorm which left a few minutes later as suddenly as it had come. After Galiffa's fumble of the slick ball had been recovered on Army's 14, the Quakers scored in five plays. On fourth down from the two Dooney passed to Sponaugle in the end zone. Herb Agoc's kick made it 7.

Army came right back to tie it up.

FERRIDAY DOWNS ISLANDERS, 32-20

FERRIDAY, La., Nov. 13.—(Special)—The Ferriday Bulldogs had their hands full here last night when they met the Sicily Island eleven who suffered a defeat to the tune of 32 to 20.

The Ferriday scoring was given quite a sendoff in the first quarter when the ball was carried to three touchdowns. Joe Lancaster passed off to Roark who made an 18-yard dash for the first tally of the game. Later in the first quarter, Ferriday's Jack Lancaster scored. Joe Lancaster came in to tally from a 12-yard carry near the end of the first quarter. On the first two touchdowns of the first quarter, the kicks for the extra point were good. The third try was blocked by Sicily Island's Punchard. The score at the end of the first period was 20 to 0, favoring the Bulldogs.

The Sicily Island eleven came back in the second quarter to score two touchdowns. Guice passed to Mahaffy on the 4-yard line from where Mahaffy carried to the payline for Sicily's first tally. Near the end of the second period, Sicily Island's Thurmond carried to tally a second one for the visitors.

The third quarter brought no scoring, but Joe Lancaster made one touchdown which was called back by the officials.

Scoring in the last quarter brought the final showing to the 32 to 20 victory for the Bulldogs.

Last night's game was the homecoming game for the Ferriday eleven who fought to make the score show well on their homecoming. Before the game Mittie Lancaster was crowned as homecoming queen.

Another big event before the game was the dedication of the new $21,000 playing field which was built as a result of a will left the school by Morris Melz, for whom the field has been named Melz Field.

OUACHITA ENDING REGULAR SLATE WITH VICKSBURG

Lions, With Haynesville, Awaiting Playoff Setup For North District

The Lions of Ouachita Parish High School, smarting under their defeat by Baton Rouge High School Thursday night, wind up their regular schedule here next Friday night against the Carr Central Greenies of Vicksburg, Miss., at Brown Field.

Carr Central, victor over Natchez, Miss., Friday night, boasts a record in Mississippi's Big Eight Conference that is similar to Ouachita's own running in Louisiana and the Greenies, if they follow their usual form, will again give the Lions a hard fight.

Vicksburg has won five games this season while losing only two and ranks fifth among the 18 teams competing in the Big Eight. The Greenies have scored 99 points against 59 for the opposition, indicating a fair offense and a strong defense.

Ouachita's season record shows six wins against three defeats, and the Lions have rolled for 156 points while giving up 87.

Vicksburg and Ouachita have met only twice in the past, the Lions trimming the Greenies at Vicksburg last year, 15 to 6, after they had taken a 51-0 trouncing by the Greenies in Vicksburg's Lions Bowl post-season game in 1945.

Although the game winds up the regular Lion slate, Ouachita will not be closing out its Class AA campaign. Clinched for a show in the north Louisiana district title race, Ouachita, like Haynesville, is awaiting the outcome of the Thanksgiving clash between Byrd and Fair Park in Shreveport before going ahead with playoff plans.

With Haynesville and Ouachita already in a tie for the lead, Fair Park can make it a three-way deadlock by beating Byrd, already eliminated. A Byrd victory would leave the race between the Lions and Tornado.

An Alabama punt was fumbled by Tech Left Halfback Jim Petit on his four yard line and Lockridge recovered. On the next play the Tech line was sucked completely to its left except for Right End George Brodnax. Bill Cadenhead went across the goal with Brodnax chasing. Ed Salem kicked the extra point.

In the third quarter Dinky Bowen, Tech fullback, got fine blocking and scored Tech's first touchdown on a 29 yard run to give himself a birthday present. His kick was no good.

MARCARCOSTAS GETS RETURN MATCH AGAINST REX MOBLEY

Semi-Final At Kallio's Tuesday Features George Curtis, Parker

George Marcarcostas, the "Golden Greek," and Rex Mobley, former world's light heavyweight champion, give mat fans of the Twin Cities a repeat performance here Tuesday night as the Texas City brawler again accepts the challenge of the Greek who has demanded a new referee.

Marcarcostas blames Bill Barney, the referee in dispute, for his loss to Mobley here last Tuesday night, and displayed his anger by attacking Barney as the bout came to a close.

Actually, the Greek didn't seem to have too much to go on in his complaint against Barney and it's very doubtful whether or not Barney would accept the job again even if with the approval of the Golden Greek.

Barney was far from approving of Marcarcostas' actions in the fracas that developed, but the West Monroe automobile mechanic pulled no punches in mixing it up with his heavier and more experienced tormentor.

Promoter Gus Kallio last night said he had no idea yet who he would be able to get as referee but said an effort was being made to bring Pat Cronin here from Jackson, Miss.

The Marcarcostas-Mobley return scramble, main event on Kallio's program at his Walnut street arena, will have a 90-minute time limit with two falls to win.

A pair of old favorites who haven't appeared locally in a long time will be back for the semi-final event.

Promoter Kallio said his curtain-raiser, opening the night's activity at 8 o'clock, would bring together Allen "Sailor" Parker, Nashville, Tenn., and George Curtis, Vicksburg, Miss.

Parker is a veteran of many ring battles and one of the oldest grapplers still active today. Curtis is a youngster rapidly rising along the wrestling trail, and he is a younger brother of Jack Curtis, world's light heavyweight champion.

The semi-final will have an hour time limit, also with two falls to win.

BLOCK HI WALLOPS WISNER TEAM, 72-18

JONESVILLE, La., Nov. 13.—(Special)—Hitting their greatest offensive stride of the season, the Block High School Bears of Jonesville walloped the Wisner Bulldogs, 72 to 18, last night to continue undefeated in Class B play. The Bruin's conference record is marred only by a tie with Ferriday.

Colin Crawford ran his total points for the season to 128 with four touchdowns and four extra points, and in eight games played the Bruins have scored 243 points against 61 for the opposition.

Block scored in two plays after the opening kickoff, and Wisner fought back to score on the first play of the second period, but then the Bears began to click and were in front 33-6 at the half.

Bobby Fairbanks scored twice and added two points; Jim Rowbottom got two TD's and passed to End Dudley Walker for another; Densel Humble added a touchdown and four points; and Jack Fritz went over for another to complete the Block scoring.

Royce Watson tallied two touchdowns for Wisner, one on a pass from J. R. Hall who also passed to J. Pierron for another touchdown.

The victory gave Block seven wins in nine games, their only loss being to a Class A club.

OLE MISS NOSES OUT TENNESSEE BY 16-13 MARGIN

Bobby Oswalt's Kicking Provides Mississippi With Difference Needed

By Lydel Sims

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Mississippi's fleet-running backs, sparked by big Sophomore John Dottley, spotted Tennessee six points and then went on to win 16-13 before some 31,000 fans here today.

It was a dogged battle all the way, and until the closing minutes Bobby Oswalt's trained toe had provided the margin for the Rebels. Oswalt kicked his 21st and 22nd extra points of the season, out of 28 tries. A safety added Ole Miss' two other points.

Coach Bob Neyland's Vols started strong with an effective passing attack, but it bogged down by the half. Mississippi did its best work on the ground. The statistics showed 230 yards rushing for the Rebels against 62 for Tennessee, and 155 yards through the air for the Vols against only 23 for Ole Miss.

J. B. Proctor, the tailback the Vols had counted on to trip Ole Miss, passed for one touchdown, but on the whole was held in check by a smashing Mississippi line.

J. W. Sherill scored Tennessee's first touchdown on a pass from Proctor, and Ralph Chancey took the second over from the three in the third. Ole Miss' two tallies were in the second quarter, by Dottley and Jerry Tiblier.

The win kept Mississippi in the thick of the fight for the conference crown it won last year. Only Tulane has downed the Rebels this season.

Hal Littleford's passes to Jim Powell were the most effective combination in the Vol offense, and Littleford added a brilliant 32-yard run that set up Tennessee's second tally.

But all the stars who had been touted in advance had to bow to Dottley, a six-foot, 196-pound smasher from McGehee, Ark., the standout of the game.

Early in the second quarter, he carried the ball 51 yards in two plays—with an incomplete pass sandwiched between—to set up his own score. He gained 98 yards in the game—the top individual performance.

Jerry Tiblier provided the flashiest play of the game, a few moments later. Billy Mustin took a Tennessee kick on his own 20, handed it off to Tiblier, and the senior halfback galloped to a touchdown behind beautiful interference.

Tennessee threatened late in the final period on a play that will be re-hashed by a hundred Monday Morning Quarterback Clubs.

The Vols' Tom Brixey smashed into Dixie Howell as he was receiving a punt on his 32. The ball rolled free and Ray Elkas grabbed it for the Vols.

The Ole Miss Fans—and Coach Johnny Vaught, who rushed onto the field—apparently felt Howell had been hit before he touched the ball. But a few plays later, Buck Buchanan intercepted a Tennessee pass to end the drive.

Littleford's attempt to pass from behind his goal line resulted in the safety, Roland Dale knocked the ball down, and it rolled out of the end zone.

F. S. U. TROUNCES CHOCTAWS, 26-6; LEADS DIXIE LOOP

Seminoles Grab Toe Hold On Title In New Conference With 3rd Win

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Florida State University's Seminoles grabbed a toe-hold in the Dixie Conference football championship tonight with a decisive 26-6 victory over Mississippi College of Clinton.

Chalking up their third straight victory in the new athletic league, the Seminoles came from behind to rush over two touchdowns in the second period, one in the third and a fourth in the final period.

"Red" Parrish, Chipley, Fla., flash, scored twice for the Seminoles. He took a long pass from Ken MacLean, good for 54 yards for one and cut back over tackle and raced 40 yards for the other.

Buddy Strauss and Marvin Urquhart tallied the other two on center smashes.

Mississippi scored first, shortly after the game started, when Clyde Howard of Water Valley, Miss., went over from the three.

The Choctaws threatened in the closing seconds of the game when Howard Green, sub half, took Ralph Chaudron's punt on his own 30 and raced to the State nine before he was overtaken by MacLean. The game ended two plays later.

The Choctaw's tricky-double-wing, with Jim Coleman and Howard circling the ends on double reverses, had the F. S. U. forward wall worried early, but after the Seminoles solved

MARYLAND SPIKES JUSTICE'S DRIVES BUT BEATEN, 49-20

Bill Maceyko Distance Runner With 60 And 68-Yard Touchdown Jaunts

By George Bowen

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—North Carolina's opportunists climbed back into a prominent post-season bowl position today by setting down Maryland with a 49-20 defeat.

The 34,558 fans in Griffith Stadium saw little to thrill them from the Tar Heel All-America candidate, Charlie Justice, but they had plenty to keep them jumping.

With Justice limited to 22 yards by running and 38 by passing, his mates stepped in to run rampage over a Maryland team beaten only once before this season.

The Tar Heels pounced on fumbles and passes and turned most of them into scores. Last week's 7-7 tie with William and Mary was the first time North Carolina had been stopped in 14 games and Coach Carl Snavely sat back awaiting bowl bids.

North Carolina broke the game wide open in the second quarter after a 7-7 standoff in the opening period. The Tar Heels capitalized on two fumbles and marched 44 yards for another tally to run up a 28-7 lead.

From then until the last minute when Maryland scored twice, it was a near rout as North Carolina ran up a 42-7 advantage by early in the fourth period.

While Justice failed to hog the show he caused plenty of trouble when and where it hurt Maryland. He threw touchdown passes of 18 and 16 yards to Ken Powell and Bob Kenney in the big second quarter. In the third he caught a five-yard scoring toss from Hosea Rodgers.

Bill Maceyko proved the long distance runner. In the first period he ran an intercepted pass back 60 yards

BLACK KNIGHTS WIN IN LAST 30 SECONDS, 26-20

Overwhelming Favorites, Cadets Fight From Behind 3 Times To Triumph

By Gayle Talbot

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Only 30 seconds away from defeat at the hands of an amazing University of Pennsylvania eleven, Army struck 15 yards through the air for a touchdown and a 26 to 20 victory that tore the hearts out of the majority of 78,000 spectators today.

Overwhelming favorites seeking their eighth straight triumph, the Cadets were forced to fight from behind three times and needed a dazzling 103-yard runback of a kickoff by Bobby Jack Stuart to subdue the battling Quakers. It was a thriller all the way.

The big clock showed exactly a half-minute to go when Arnold Galiffa, Army quarterback, fell back and fired a strike into the arms of John Trent, an end, beyond Penn's goal line to settle the issue. The vast crowd, a moment before yelling almost as one, fell silent, stricken.

Only moments before Ray Dooney, Penn's stocky, 200-pound fullback, had blasted through Army's line and legged it 42 yards for the score that put the Quakers in front, 20-19, and apparently spelled Army's doom. Few would have risked a thin dime on the Cadets' chances of keeping an unblemished slate.

Then Army took an out-of-bounds kick on its own 26, and with the minutes ticking off, Galiffa began throwing footballs. In six plays, including a 21-yard Galiffa to Dave Parrish aerial, the Black Knights swept to the Quarker 15, and on third down Galiffa hit the jackpot.

For Galiffa, the winning toss made last-minute amends for two glaring fumbles he committed in the first half, on each of which the aroused Penn team capitalized in full.

Dooney, in addition to his touchdown dash in the final period, had passed to End Bob Sponaugle from one yard out for Penn's first score in the opening quarter and had lugged the leather across for the Quakers' second tally to keep his team in front 14-13 at the half.

His father died on Wednesday, and the funeral at Atlantic City has been postponed until next Monday so that Dooney could get his shot at the West Point crown. That he didn't personally superintend the season's crowning upset was no fault of the man who is built like a mail box.

Penn proved that Army's vaunted running attack could be contained. Gil Stephenson, the "new Doc Blanchard," was stopped almost cold by Chuck Bernarik and his husky teammates. But for Galiffa's passing, Army would have taken a beating.

Army, the nation's No. 3 team in last week's Associated Press poll, made only one first down in the first 30 minutes of play—on a pass. Penn made seven. The final tally was Army 11 firsts, Penn 9. Penn gained 198 yards by rushing to Army's 167.

Penn scored the first touchdown in the midst of a driving rainstorm which left a few minutes later as suddenly as it had come. After Galiffa's fumble of the slick ball had been recovered on Army's 14, the Quakers scored in five plays. On fourth down from the two Dooney passed to Sponaugle in the end zone. Herb Agoc's kick made it 7.

Army came right back to tie it up.

FERRIDAY DOWNS ISLANDERS, 32-20

FERRIDAY, La., Nov. 13.—(Special)—The Ferriday Bulldogs had their hands full here last night when they met the Sicily Island eleven who suffered a defeat to the tune of 32 to 20.

The Ferriday scoring was given quite a sendoff in the first quarter when the ball was carried to three touchdowns. Joe Lancaster passed off to Roark who made an 18-yard dash for the first tally of the game. Later in the first quarter, Ferriday's Jack Lancaster scored. Joe Lancaster came in to tally from a 12-yard carry near the end of the first quarter. On the first two touchdowns of the first quarter, the kicks for the extra point were good. The third try was blocked by Sicily Island's Punchard. The score at the end of the first period was 20 to 0, favoring the Bulldogs.

The Sicily Island eleven came back in the second quarter to score two touchdowns. Guice passed to Mahaffy on the 4-yard line from where Mahaffy carried to the payline for Sicily's first tally. Near the end of the second period, Sicily Island's Thurmond carried to tally a second one for the visitors.

The third quarter brought no scoring, but Joe Lancaster made one touchdown which was called back by the officials.

Scoring in the last quarter brought the final showing to the 32 to 20 victory for the Bulldogs.

Last night's game was the homecoming game for the Ferriday eleven who fought to make the score show well on their homecoming. Before the game Mittie Lancaster was crowned as homecoming queen.

Another big event before the game was the dedication of the new $21,000 playing field which was built as a result of a will left the school by Morris Melz, for whom the field has been named Melz Field.

OUACHITA ENDING REGULAR SLATE WITH VICKSBURG

Lions, With Haynesville, Awaiting Playoff Setup For North District

The Lions of Ouachita Parish High School, smarting under their defeat by Baton Rouge High School Thursday night, wind up their regular schedule here next Friday night against the Carr Central Greenies of Vicksburg, Miss., at Brown Field.

Carr Central, victor over Natchez, Miss., Friday night, boasts a record in Mississippi's Big Eight Conference that is similar to Ouachita's own running in Louisiana and the Greenies. if they follow their usual form, will again give the Lions a hard fight.

Vicksburg has won five games this season while losing only two and ranks fifth among the 18 teams competing in the Big Eight. The Greenies have scored 99 points against 59 for the opposition, indicating a fair offense and a strong defense.

Ouachita's season record shows six wins against three defeats, and the Lions have rolled for 156 points while giving up 87.

Vicksburg and Ouachita have met only twice in the past, the Lions trimming the Greenies at Vicksburg last year, 15 to 6, after they had taken a 51-0 trouncing by the Greenies in Vicksburg's Lions Bowl post-season game in 1945.

Although the game winds up the regular Lion slate, Ouachita will not be closing out its Class AA campaign. Clinched for a show in the north Louisiana district title race, Ouachita, like Haynesville, is awaiting the outcome of the Thanksgiving clash between Byrd and Fair Park in Shreveport before going ahead with playoff plans.

With Haynesville and Ouachita already in a tie for the lead, Fair Park can make it a three-way deadlock by beating Byrd, already eliminated. A Byrd victory would leave the race between the Lions and Tornado.

The Neville eleven of the Seventh Grade Football League moved into commnad of its circuit yesterday by handing Millsaps of West Monroe its first defeat, 7 to 0, in a hard fought grammar school battle at Neville Stadium.

McWilliams' 20-yard line plunge scored for Neville in the third quarter, and he also added the point.

F. S. U. TROUNCES CHOCTAWS, 26-6; LEADS DIXIE LOOP

Seminoles Grab Toe Hold On Title In New Conference With 3rd Win

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Florida State University's Seminoles grabbed a toe-hold in the Dixie Conference football championship tonight with a decisive 26-6 victory over Mississippi College of Clinton.

Chalking up their third straight victory in the new athletic league, the Seminoles came from behind to rush over two touchdowns in the second period, one in the third and a fourth in the final period.

"Red" Parrish, Chipley, Fla., flash, scored twice for the Seminoles. He took a long pass from Ken MacLean, good for 54 yards for one and cut back over tackle and raced 40 yards for the other.

Buddy Strauss and Marvin Urquhart tallied the other two on center smashes.

Mississippi scored first, shortly after the game started, when Clyde Howard of Water Valley, Miss., went over from the three.

The Choctaws threatened in the closing seconds of the game when Howard Green, sub half, took Ralph Chaudron's punt on his own 30 and raced to the State nine before he was overtaken by MacLean. The game ended two plays later.

The Choctaw's tricky-double-wing, with Jim Coleman and Howard circling the ends on double reverses, had the F. S. U. forward wall worried early, but after the Seminoles solved

MARYLAND SPIKES JUSTICE'S DRIVES BUT BEATEN, 49-20

Bill Maceyko Distance Runner With 60 And 68-Yard Touchdown Jaunts

By George Bowen

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—North Carolina's opportunists climbed back into a prominent post-season bowl position today by setting down Maryland with a 49-20 defeat.

The 34,558 fans in Griffith Stadium saw little to thrill them from the Tar Heel All-America candidate, Charlie Justice, but they had plenty to keep them jumping.

With Justice limited to 22 yards by running and 38 by passing, his mates stepped in to run rampage over a Maryland team beaten only once before this season.

The Tar Heels pounced on fumbles and passes and turned most of them into scores. Last week's 7-7 tie with William and Mary was the first time North Carolina had been stopped in 14 games and Coach Carl Snavely sat back awaiting bowl bids.

North Carolina broke the game wide open in the second quarter after a 7-7 standoff in the opening period. The Tar Heels capitalized on two fumbles and marched 44 yards for another tally to run up a 28-7 lead.

From then until the last minute when Maryland scored twice, it was a near riot as North Carolina ran up a 42-7 advantage by early in the fourth period.

While Justice failed to hog the show he caused plenty of trouble when and where it hurt Maryland. He threw touchdown passes of 18 and 16 yards to Ken Powell and Bob Kenney in the big second quarter. In the third he caught a five-yard scoring toss from Hosea Rodgers.

Bill Maceyko proved the long distance runner. In the first period he ran an intercepted pass back 60 yards

MISSISSIPPI STATE DEFEATS L. S. U., 7 TO 0

COSTLY FUMBLES WRECK BENGALS' VICTORY CHANCES

Tigers Err Twice Within Four Yards Of Crossing Maroon Goal

By Warren Rogers, Jr.

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Mississippi State defeated Louisiana State University 7-0 here tonight, helped along by some costly Tiger goal line fumbles.

The hard-fighting L. S. U. Bengals consistently pushed through the Maroons but ran out of gas every time they threatened to score. Mississippi State never once put together a touchdown march. The games' lone tally was on Harper Davis' 60 yard return of an intercepted pass. Max Stainbrook place-kicked the extra point.

The Bengals battered the Maroon line until it had less snap than a two dollar girdle but, fumbled twice within four yards of Mississippi State's goal line.

Statistically it was L. S. U.'s game. The bayou boys traveled 359 yards from scrimmage against the Maroons' 156. Most of the L. S. U.'s 257 yards was through the Mississippi State line.

Pile-driving Zollie Toth, a fullback who runs like an elephant who fancies himself a gazelle, slammed full-steam for solid gains every time he got the ball. But he fumbled twice when it hurt. The officials put him out of the game for a rule infraction in the third period and, after that, the Tigers appeared to come apart at the seams.

Shorty McWilliams again sparked the Maroon attack. A constant threat, he punted and quickkicked out of danger, hit pass receivers and slipped through fast-closing holes.

Louisiana State put together a half-dozen sustained drives. Three were flubbed around the 16 and the others within the five.

The Maroons played a methodical game, but were alert enough to capitalize on the Tiger errors.

DONOR PULLS UPSET; TAKES BUTLER PRIZE

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Donor, whose owner, Deering Howe, died only last Sunday, pulled an upset to win the $85,950 Butler Handicap at Jamaica race track today.

The four-year-old gelding broke away from three others in a tight pack as they swung into the home stretch, took command just beyond the eighth pole, and romped home an easy victory by two lengths.

The favored Phalanx, owned by C. V. Whitney and sent off at 5 to 2 by a crowd of 32,576, was second, one half length before King Ranch's Better Self. Donor, a son of Challedon, was timed in 1:58 flat for the mile and three sixteenths route, and those few who fancied his chances over eight other star handicap performers were rewarded wit': $27.70, $10.80 and $6.10 for $2.

The victory was worth $58,850, and shot Donor's 1948 earnings to $129,395.

Hattiesburg Eleven Can Claim Crown With Win Over Southeastern Lions

HATTIESBURG, Miss., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Mississippi Southern moved to within one victory of the Gulf States Conference's first football championship tonight by whipping Louisiana Tech's Bulldogs 20-6 before a homecoming crowd of 9,000.

It was Southerns' third league win and Tech's first loss in five conference starts.

Southern plays its final G. S. C. game against Southeastern Louisiana here next Friday night.

The first Southern tally came on their second running play of the game, when Halfback Frank Srpuiel raced 64 yards around left end.

A few moments later a fumble put Tech in the hole although they held once, Southern came back with a 34-yard scoring drive. Halfback Bubber Phillips tallied on a 22-yard dash around right end.

Tech Halfback Joe Rabb sparked a 36-yard march for a touchdown in the second period. He went over from the six on an off-tackle smash.

The Southerns added their final touchdown midway through the third quarter as Halfback Bennie Nobles long-passed from his own 35-yard line to End Cliff Coggin, who took the ball on the Bulldog 31 and went over.

Doug Honaker placekicked the first two Southern extra points but his third effort was blocked.

But on the ensuing kickoff, Stuart gathered in the ball three yards inside his own end zone, cut sharply to his left sideline, and went all the way as Yeoman threw a key block for him at midfield. Yeoman missed the kick to keep the Quakers in front 14-13.

The second half was mostly bedlam. Army drove 52 yards in nine plays to score its third touchdown. Stuart shot off his right side seven yards for the marker, and Yeoman again missed the point to make it Army 19, Penn 14.

MISSISSIPPI STATE DEFEATS L. S. U., 7 TO 0

COSTLY FUMBLES WRECK BENGALS' VICTORY CHANCES

Tigers Err Twice Within Four Yards Of Crossing Maroon Goal

By Warren Rogers, Jr.

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Mississippi State defeated Louisiana State University 7-0 here tonight, helped along by some costly Tiger goal line fumbles.

The hard-fighting L. S. U. Bengals consistently pushed through the Maroons but ran out of gas every time they threatened to score. Mississippi State never once put together a touchdown march. The games' lone tally was on Harper Davis' 60 yard return of an intercepted pass. Max Stainbrook place-kicked the extra point.

The Bengals battered the Maroon line until it had less snap than a two dollar girdle but, fumbled twice within four yards of Mississippi State's goal line.

Statistically it was L. S. U.'s game. The bayou boys traveled 359 yards from scrimmage against the Maroons' 156. Most of the L. S. U.'s 257 yards was through the Mississippi State line.

Pile-driving Zollie Toth, a fullback who runs like an elephant who fancies himself a gazelle, slammed full-steam for solid gains every time he got the ball. But he fumbled twice when it hurt. The officials put him out of the game for a rule infraction in the third period and, after that, the Tigers appeared to come apart at the seams.

Shorty McWilliams again sparked the Maroon attack. A constant threat, he punted and quickkicked out of danger, hit pass receivers and slipped through fast-closing holes.

Louisiana State put together a half-dozen sustained drives. Three were flubbed around the 16 and the others within the five.

The Maroons played a methodical game, but were alert enough to capitalize on the Tiger errors.

SPORTS SCRIBES GET TASK OF SELECTIONS

ORLANDO, Fla., Nov. 13.—(AP)—One sportswriter in each of 12 southern states has been invited to serve as chairman of his respective state board in selection of the 29th annual all-southern high school football squad.

State chairmen will name 120 sportswriters and coaches in each state to aid in naming five players for the all-southern squad and in others for honorable mention.

The all-southern squad will be announced Dec. 19.

Bob Hayes, sports editor of the Orlando Morning Sentinel and chairman of the selection committee, said invitations have been extended to the following sportswriters to serve as state chairmen:

CLEMSON DEFEATS WAKE FOREST, 21-14

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Unbeaten Clemson threw back stubborn Wake Forest today in a 21-14 thriller to register its seventh straight victory.

The Tigers, in winning their fourth straight Southern Conference game, forged ahead twice in the early going, only to have the battling Deacons come back to tie the score on each occasion.

Finally, early in the fourth quarter, Fullback Fred Cone climaxed a 47-yard drive by bucking over from the one with the deciding score.

Clemson entered the game with bids to the Texas Sun Bowl and Jacksonville, Fla., 'Gator Bowl contests, but was committed to no one, according to a source close to the school.

Wake Frest already has accepted an invitation to the Birmingham, Ala., Dixie Bowl contest.

Clemson's victory, the first in seven years over Wake Forest, was achieved before a standing room sellout crowd of 20,000.

Clemson scoring touchdowns — Mathews, Thompson, Cone. Points after touchdowns—Jack Miller 3 (placements).

Wake Forest scoring touchdowns—Gregus, Sprock. Points after touchdowns—George 2 (placements).

HAWK HILL CAPTURES FOXHUNTERS ALL-AGE

PARIS, Tenn., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Hawk Hill, a record-cracking hound from the Nichols and Swayze Kennels of Benton, Miss., won the 55th running of the National Foxhunters Association's all-age stake here today.

Hawk's victory made the lean Kentucky-bred hunter the first ever to win both the Chase Futurity and the all-age. He won the Futurity at Columbus, Miss., last year.

This year the Chase Futurity went to Hawk's kennel mate, Trigger Swayze, making the Benton Kennels the first to win both stakes in one year.

Second place was taken by Bell, owned by James Mahery of Athens, Tenn. The three-and-a-half year old female scored a total of 430 points to trail Hawk's heavy score of 565.

BASTROP BOXERS DEFEAT MONROE

Norris Ray Drops Decision To Rex Bingham In Featured Battle

BASTROP, La., Nov. 13.—(Special)—Norris Ray, Bastrop's former Golden Gloves welterweight champion, suffered his first defeat of the fistic season here tonight as he lost a decision to hard hitting Rex Bingham, former middleweight champion of the Gulfport Naval station, now a student at Delta State Teachers College.

Bingham, appearing against Ray in the main event of the evening, scored three knockdowns against the rugged Bastrop battler.

In the Monroe-Bastrop section of the night's card, the Bastrop fighters shaded the Monroe Knights of Columbus scrappers, 4 to 2, with five technical knockouts featuring the show at the American Legion Home.

Lloyd Bacon, 100-pounder of Monroe, scored first for the visitors when he decisioned Paul Jones; but "Spider" Priest came up with a Bastrop win when he stopped Waldroup, Monroe, in the first round.

Eugene Dean, Monroe, 115 pounds, decisioned Bennett Parker in one of the night's best fights.

Buddy Weems, Bastrop, hung a T. K. O. on Irvin Bayles, Monroe, in the first round.

Tunney Bayles, Monroe 126-pounder, spotted Arnold Ray ten pounds and put up a good fight until he became a T. K. O. victim in the third round.

In a heavyweight fight, Billy Allen, Bastrop, stopped Ray Nobles, Crossett, Ark., in the first round.

"Red" McIntyre, Bastrop, got a first round T. K. O. over Owen Duncan, Bastrop, in a battle of middleweights.

S. L. I. BULLDOGS TAKE PENSACOLA GOSLINGS

LAFAYETTE, La., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Southwestern Louisiana Institute's Bulldogs were brilliant in spots tonight as they downed the Pensacola Naval Air Station Goslings, 27-6.

In their last home appearance of the year, the Bulldogs scored once each in the first and second periods and twice in the third to sink the Goslings.

Southwestern scored early in the first quarter when Right End Herman Zeringue recovered a Pensacola fumble on the 24. Right Halfback George Crowson scored the touchdown.

In the final minutes of the first quarter, Hodges intercepted a Pensacola aerial and scampered 64 yards for a touchdown, Kingery converted.

Southwestern drove 44 yards in the third period to score, sparked by Rignt Halfback Dick Pate. He went over from the two. Kingery again converted.

Then Howard Fournet intercepted a Gosling aerial on the Pensacola 24, on the next play Pate circled right end for the score. Kingery add another conversion.

BLACK KNIGHTS

Climaxing a 78-yard push, Winfield Scott took off down the side line for a thrilling 48-yard touchdown run. Capt. Bill Yeoman split the posts to make it 7-7.

Dooney cracked across for Penn's second score early in the second quarter after another Galiffa muff had been recovered by Don Detorre, Penn tackle, on Army's one. Agocs made it 14-7, and Army supporters began to moan.

But on the ensuing kickoff, Stuart gathered in the ball three yards inside his own end zone, cut sharply to his left sideline, and went all the way as Yeoman threw a key block for him at midfield. Yeoman missed the kick to keep the Quakers in front 14-13.

The second half was mostly bedlam. Army drove 52 yards in nine plays to score its third touchdown. Stuart shot off his right side seven yards for the marker, and Yeoman again missed the point to make it Army 19, Penn 14.

Then came Dooney's 42-yard scamper at 9:29 of the closing quarter. Penn 20, Army 19. That was when Galiffa came a-galloping to the rescue of Coach Earl Blaik and his men.

Looking Ahead In Washington

MUNITIONS TROUBLE

(By the World Staff of the Associated Press)

GENEVA—Powerful forces in Switzerland are demanding that the nation lift its ban on exporting munitions.

Since its early history Switzerland has foresworn war as a means of settling disputes. It put its first embargo on arms exports in 1859.

It exported arms during World War II, mostly to Axis countries since it was virtually surrounded by them. It clamped the embargo on again when the war was drawing to a close in 1944, lifted it at the end of the war, imposed it again in June 1946.

The ban is due to expire December 31 unless renewed and will be considered at the December session of parliament.

Max Petitpierre, chief of the Swiss political department (foreign office) is a spokesman for those who favor keeping the embargo.

He says it would be ridiculous for this country to talk neutrality and pacifism, to support such organizations as the international Red Cross, and at the same time to supply other nations with the means of making war.

Opponents of the embargo say Switzerland must have a strong armed force to back up its neutrality and that the country's arms makers must be allowed to sell abroad so that profits can be used to supply more and better equipment at home.

Backers of the embargo agree Switzerland must have a strong defense but say the arms industry should be supported by the government. They say it's bad for Swiss morals to supply munitions to other countries.

Opponents say arms trade is justified morally if it improves Switzerland's position. Said one recent speaker: "One should not emphasize the moral question too strongly. We are no better than other people."

HO-HO

WASHINGTON—President Truman gets the last laugh—and an easier budget trimming job—at the wrong guesses of many agency officials on the election outcome.

Fearful of being accused by Republicans of being free spenders, these officials slashed budgets to the bone.

Now some officials want the budget bureau to let them put some "meat" on those bones. They've been getting a firm turn-down—plus directions to see whether they can't cut requests still further.

BRITISH DIVORCE

LONDON—Social workers look for Britain's divorce rate to drop sharply in 1949.

There were 50,000 divorces last year, contrasted to 7,800 in 1938. A drop is held likely next year because the courts will catch up with a backlog of wartime cases.

STASSEN'S CHANCES

WASHINGTON—One of the winners in the election may have been Harold E. Stassen, who wasn't on anybody's ballot.

Beaten for the Republican nomination by Thomas E. Dewey, Stassen had resigned himself to an eight-year wait for a new try. He thought Dewey would be elected and reelected.

Stassen's friends are already beginning quiet organization moves. They think the main strength of the former Minnesota governor lies with youthful members of the party.

They also point out that Stassen is strong in the farming middle west, where Dewey's failure to take key states cost him the election.

GRAY MARKET

Washington—The gray market in steel will be stabbed once more by the congressional spotlight before the present congress goes out of office.

The house subcommittee investigation questionable trade practices plans to put this proposition squarely up to the big steel mills: (1) Refuse to supply steel to warehouses that extort premium prices, or (2) face the possibility of the new "Truman" congress enacting controls.

The committee expects the mills to cooperate readily.

ITALIAN LABOR

ROME—With winter beginning to make itself felt, Communist and extreme left labor leaders have served notice of disturbances if the government doesn't meet demands of the unemployed.

SPINACH

WASHINGTON—Farm groups likely will ask congress to define the difference between an agricultural commodity and a manufactured product.

The interstate commerce commission (I. C. C.) has authority to regulate rates and routes of truck lines except those hauling agricultural commodities.

Farm groups complain that the ICC has whittled away this exemption. For instance, it has ruled that washed and packaged spinach is a manufactured product.

REPORTER BALL

WASHINGTON—Joe Ball, defeated Minnesota Republican senator, says he intends to go back into newspaper work. He was a reporter for the St. Paul Pioneer Press before he went to the senate.

He would have a big advantage over other newsmen—as a former senator he would have the privilege of going on the senate floor to talk to members.

PHILIPPINE LOAN

WASHINGTON—The World Bank is expected to announce shortly the extention of credits of about $50,000,000 to the Philippine Islands for construction of hydro-electric plants and a fertilizer factory.

JAP REPARATIONS

WASHINGTON—Increased effort among the Pacific allies for settlement of the Japanese reparations problem is expected to become evident soon.

The Philippines, China, The Netherlands and Britain are especially eager to get more Japanese industrial assets for rebuilding their own economies.

INDONESIA

BATAVIA—The United Nations good offices commission apparently has given up hope, at least temporarily, that negotiations will be resumed toward settling the Indonesian dispute.

A few weeks ago a spokesman said its report covering the period since mid-June was being held up in hopes the talks would be reopened. Now the commission has decided to submit its report to the security council in Paris within a few days.

BRITISH TRAVEL

LONDON—The Travel Association is attempting to make it easier and more pleasant for visitors from overseas.

Lord Hacking, chairman of the association, says he has reports customs officials are too zealous and often too brusque in collecting duties. He thinks it would be fine if inspectors would say something like "Welcome to Britain" after doing their duty.

Looking Ahead In Washington

MUNITIONS TROUBLE

(By the World Staff of the Associated Press)

GENEVA—Powerful forces in Switzerland are demanding that the nation lift its ban on exporting munitions.

Since its early history Switzerland has foresworn war as a means of settling disputes. It put its first embargo on arms exports in 1859.

It exported arms during World War II, mostly to Axis countries since it was virtually surrounded by them. It clamped the embargo on again when the war was drawing to a close in 1944, lifted it at the end of the war, imposed it again in June 1946.

The ban is due to expire December 31 unless renewed and will be considered at the December session of parliament.

Max Petitpierre, chief of the Swiss political department (foreign office) is a spokesman for those who favor keeping the embargo.

He says it would be ridiculous for this country to talk neutrality and pacifism, to support such organizations as the international Red Cross, and at the same time to supply other nations with the means of making war.

Opponents of the embargo say Switzerland must have a strong armed force to back up its neutrality and that the country's arms makers must be allowed to sell abroad so that profits can be used to supply more and better equipment at home.

Backers of the embargo agree Switzerland must have a strong defense but say the arms industry should be supported by the government. They say it's bad for Swiss morals to supply munitions to other countries.

Opponents say arms trade is justified morally if it improves Switzerland's position. Said one recent speaker: "One should not emphasize the moral question too strongly. We are no better than other people."

HO-HO

WASHINGTON—President Truman gets the last laugh—and an easier budget trimming job—at the wrong guesses of many agency officials on the election outcome.

Fearful of being accused by Republicans of being free spenders, these officials slashed budgets to the bone.

Now some officials want the budget bureau to let them put some "meat" on those bones. They've been getting a firm turn-down—plus directions to see whether they can't cut requests still further.

BRITISH DIVORCE

LONDON—Social workers look for Britain's divorce rate to drop sharply in 1949.

There were 50,000 divorces last year, contrasted to 7,800 in 1938. A drop is held likely next year because the courts will catch up with a backlog of wartime cases.

STASSEN'S CHANCES

WASHINGTON — One of the winners in the election may have been Harold E. Stassen, who wasn't on anybody's ballot.

Beaten for the Republican nomination by Thomas E. Dewey, Stassen had resigned himself to an eight-year wait for a new try. He thought Dewey would be elected and reelected.

Stassen's friends are already beginning quiet organization moves. They think the main strength of the former Minnesota governor lies with youthful members of the party.

They also point out that Stassen is strong in the farming middle west, where Dewey's failure to take key states cost him the election.

GRAY MARKET

Washington — The gray market in steel will be stabbed once more by the congressional spotlight before the present congress goes out of office.

The house subcommittee investigation questionable trade practices plans to put this proposition squarely up to the big steel mills: (1) Refuse to supply steel to warehouses that extort premium prices, or (2) face the possibility of the new "Truman" congress enacting controls.

The committee expects the mills to cooperate readily.

ITALIAN LABOR

ROME—With winter beginning to make itself felt, Communist and extreme left labor leaders have served notice of disturbances if the government doesn't meet demands of the unemployed.

SPINACH

WASHINGTON—Farm groups likely will ask congress to define the difference between an agricultural commodity and a manufactured product.

The interstate commerce commission (I. C. C.) has authority to regulate rates and routes of truck lines except those hauling agricultural commodities.

Farm groups complain that the ICC has whittled away this exemption. For instance it has ruled that washed and packaged spinach is a manufactured product.

REPORTER BALL

WASHINGTON—Joe Ball, defeated Minnesota Republican senator, says he intends to go back into newspaper work. He was a reporter for the St. Paul Pioneer Press before he went to the senate.

He would have a big advantage over other newsmen—as a former senator he would have the privilege of going on the senate floor to talk to members.

PHILIPPINE LOAN

WASHINGTON—The World Bank is expected to announce shortly the extention of credits of about $50,000,000 to the Philippine Islands for construction of hydro-electric plants and a fertilizer factory.

JAP REPARATIONS

WASHINGTON — Increased effort among the Pacific allies for settlement of the Japanese reparations problem is expected to become evident soon.

The Philippines, China, The Netherlands and Britain are especially eager to get more Japanese industrial assets for rebuilding their own economies.

INDONESIA

BATAVIA—The United Nations good offices commission apparently has given up hope, at least temporarily, that negotiations will be resumed toward settling the Indonesian dispute.

A few weeks ago a spokesman said its report covering the period since mid-June was being held up in hopes the talks would be reopened. Now the commission has decided to submit its report to the security council in Paris within a few days.

BRITISH TRAVEL

LONDON—The Travel Association is attempting to make it easier and more pleasant for visitors from overseas.

Lord Hacking, chairman of the association, says he has reports customs officials are too zealous and often too brusque in collecting duties. He thinks it would be fine if inspectors would say something like "Welcome to Britain" after doing their duty.

Expenses As Chicago Alderman Greater Than Amount Received

By William J. Conway

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Paul H. Douglas probably will net more income as a United States senator than he did as a Chicago alderman.

When he was in the city council he gave out certified audits of what he did with his share of the taxpayers' money. His expenses—including outlays for grass seed and garbage cans for needy constituents—came to $146.90 more than he received in three years.

Fortunately Douglas, a professor of economics at the University of Chicago, didn't have to live on his public pay. He didn't have to issue the itemized reports, either, but he has a way of doing unusual things.

He enlisted in the marines as a private at the age of 50. He left the service with a lieutenant-colonel's rank and two wounds.

When Douglas stepped into the 1948 campaign his fellow Democrats billed him as "a fighting liberal." The opposition, recalling his devotion to Franklin D. Roosevelt, tagged him a New Dealer.

"I don't believe the wealthy and privileged should control the government," Douglas said. "I believe everyone should have a voice in it for his own security."

Folks in the senate gallery who hear him next year probably will figure he is from a New England district. He was born in Salem, Mass., and reared in Maine. He speaks with an eastern accent.

He will have something to say about the "Taft-Hartley" law. That was a big issue in his bout with Republican Senator C. Wayland Brooks. Brooks defended it. Douglas urged repeal, and the A. F. of L. and C. I. O. backed him.

Douglas, 56 now, stands six-feet-two and packs a lot of energy in his 200-pound frame. He's had a many-sided career—waiter, fisherman, lumberjack, Bowdoin College football player, factory worker, teacher, economist and author.

If he needs any coaching on procedure in the legislative halls in Washington he can get it right at home. His wife, Emily Taft Douglas, daughter of Sculptor Lorade Taft, was a congresswoman from 1945 to 1947.

STRANGE FOOTPRINTS SHOW AGAIN IN FLA.

CROSS CITY, Fla., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The "thing" is on the loose again. Its mysterious footprints are causing excitement along the Suwanee river.

Is it a publicity gag? Are the tracks from some strange monster? So far no one has the answer.

Last spring the thing's weird 15-inch tracks popped up at half a dozen Pinellas county Gulf beaches. The largest crop of tracks has attracted New York newspaper and radio men. Two Florida papers have sent out reporters-turned-zoologists.

Plaster casts have been made of the tracks. Scientific studies are underway.

Right now all agree if the prints found along the Suwannee are fakes then the animal-wise person who planted them is pretty smart.

Writing in Sunday's St. Petersburg Times, Reporter-Explorer Dick Bothwell who has been inclined to pooh pooh the whole matter says you begin to wonder after talking to New York Science Commentator Ivan T. Sanderson of station WNBC.

Sanderson ought to know what he's talking about, writes Bothwell. He's roamed the world looking for strange speciments. He's been on five expeditions since 1932. He has collected 42 new species.

Sanderson isn't saying yes or no about these three-toed prints. But he does say similar prints have shown about the world from time to time in recent years—Australia, the Ganges river in India.

Bothwell analyzes the mystery of the thing with:

"To make those prints by hand would be a terrific job. But if a machine of some sort did the trick, who went to all the trouble and why? And there wasn't a human track around."

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY ARE RECOVERING FROM JITTERS

Mountain Of Evidence Indicates Pessimism Was Carried To Extremes

By G. A. Phillips

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Business and industry are showing signs of a fast recovery from the national election jitters.

A mountain of evidence this week indicates pessimism was carried to extremes following re-election of Mr. Truman and the return to power of a Democratic congress.

Nothing specifically had been hurt apparently except the delicately balanced state of mind shown as business confidence and, of course, the reputation of numerous poll takers.

The stock market took one bad spill this week and then made a stand. A tiny amount of the more than $6 billion lost since the election was recouped and Wall street brokers said bargain hunters were back on the buying side.

Industrial production ranked among the year's best. Steel mill tonnage was the highest in history. Electric power output starred for the fifth week in the "new high" production column as did crude oil.

There was a small drop in automobile production but it was due to flash labor disturbances and scarcity of needed materials. Soft coal output fell below the previous week but it was still a good tonnage. Building construction work showed no let up from the terrific pace at which new homes and factories have been turned out all year.

Cutbacks in employment in some northeastern industrial areas involved a relatively small number of workers and were for specific reasons seldom directly related. In some cases it was due to the seasonal nature of the business involved. In others it could be traced partly to basic antagonism between management and labor unions.

All in all the current business scene seemed one of extraordinary strength and vitality. Economists who were guided by facts and figures rather than emotion said they could see nothing in the election to change the picture providing good business sense and good political sense prevailed where there were points of difference.

The calmer view of the economic prospects under the new set of conditions was taken by a large number of nationally known organizations. They used newspapers, radio, special bulletins and other means of communications to get over their views of the situation.

The brokerage firm of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, by far the largest in the world, took space in newspapers in 19 large cities to acquaint clients and the public at large with its conclusions.

"The re-election of President Truman offers, in itself, no justifiable reason for believing that there has been any change in the outlook for business," the Merrill Lynch advertisement said. "The greatest industrial machine of all time is still going and going at a record rate. We're still doing business at the old stand and under the same conditions that have prevailed for 16 years."

A. W. Zelomek, editor of the International Statistical Bureau and economist for the National Retail Dry Goods Association, said the election would have only minor results on the business trend. The National Association of Purchasing Agents said it was convinced none of the fundamentals underlying recent price trends had been changed.

Both stressed the fact that Mr. Truman took a definite anti-inflation stand in the campaign and could be expected to strive hard to keep prices within bounds of reason. If this can be done without setting deflationary forces in motion, economists agree that the business boom has taken a new lease on life.

Various pronouncements in Washington this week and gossip from the presidential camp at Key West gave business and industry a good clue of what can be expected. In all cases the specific programs were no more harsh on business than had been forecast and foreshadowed in the campaign.

Revision of the present labor laws and a fourth round of wage increases seem a certainty. Any attempt to raise prices will be frowned on in view of the current high profits of business. There are many executives who say their firms cannot stand any higher production costs and stay in business. How they will meet the situation created by another wage hike remains to be seen but most economists believe they will find a way.

On price controls, allocation of materials and revision of the present tax laws, there is some doubt in business circles that the president will get out of congress exactly what he wants. Many people in the higher income brackets now claim they work almost exclusively for the government and are thus immune from any further tax burden.

Prices have been hardening of late and this week higher tags were tacked on to a number of grocery items and an assortment of industrial materials. But bumper crops, high inventories of merchants and filled pipe lines of supply are counter balancing influences in the price feild and it may be that the economists who think we've seen the worst are correct.

COLDEST CONDITION CREATED IN RESEARCH

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 13.—(AP)—It was nearly 459 degrees below zero at one spot in Columbus this week.

That's the coldest it's ever been in the United States. It was a scientific achievement in a laboratory at Ohio State University.

Dr. Harald H. Nielsen, chairman of the department of physics and astronomy, announced today four department staff members succeeded in recording temperatures as low as five one-hundreths of a degree above absolute zero.

Absolute zero, which scientists say is unattainable, is 459 degrees below zero on the Fahrenheit scale.

Previously, the temperatures in the region of nine one-hundredths of a degree above absolute zero had been recorded in California.

Ohio State scientists worked with a magnetic cooling device. It is called a "cryomagnetic generator." Temperatures were calculated from variations in an electrical circuit. Ordinary thermometers will not function at such extreme temperatures.

The cooling system had been devised some time ago, Dr. Nielsen said, but had been operated previously at only one other institution in this country—the University of California at Berkeley.

Prof. John G. Daunt, a native of England, and Prof. Maurice C. Desirant, a Belgian, operated the cooling equipment.

Physicists at Ohio look upon this week's achievement as a step toward still lower temperatures. They plan to build a nuclear cryomagnetic generator and try for temperatures estimated at one part in a million above absolute zero.

Scientists say the new development in low-temperature physics will facilitate a detailed study of nuclear problems. All molecular and atomic motions are virtually "frozen out" at extremely low temperatures. Such a condition is expected to permit research into the properties of the atomic nucleus and its interaction with other nuclei.

MISS FLANDERS GUEST SPEAKER

Tells Mitchell P.-T. A. Services That Library Affords

Miss Frances Flanders, librarian of the Ouachita Parish Public Library, was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the W. R. Mitchell P.-T. A. Wednesday, November 10. Her topic was "The Services Offered by a Parish Public Library." Miss Flanders stated, "The Public Library is a vital part in the life of the community." The library has a complete assortment of books. For the parents that are interested in "Child Study," there are numerous books along that line. Those interested in church work can find much material to help them. There are books for your every need.

Another interesting phase of Miss Flanders talk was on the "Mobile Unit Library" which the Ouachita Parish Public Library has in operation. This unit is on the record 5 days a week and has 10 routes. This unit goes to the smaller schools, that have inadequate library facilities, and rural areas. It has served 2,823 persons of which only 259 had previously used a library. It has circulated 30,424 books in the past 6 months, and 5,000 for the month of October.

Miss Flanders brought this "Mobile Unit Library" to the school, and it was inspected by the Mitchell P.-T. A. members.

Mrs. Lynton Cook brought before the P.-T. A. "the finger printing of the school children." This is a project being launched by the Twin-City P.-T. A. council. The members voted in favor of this project. Mrs. Cook also announced that the Mitchell P.-T. A. membership had reached the 10 per cent increase over last year.

December 16 was the date decided on for the Mitchell P.-T. A. Christmas party which will be held in the home of Mrs. Ed Harper, Jr.

Mrs. Fred Stone was appointed chairman of a committee of volunteers to help the Salvation Army with their Xmas kettles.

Mrs. Dale Cobb, president of W. R. Mitchell P.-T. A., announced the first grade won the room count.

DOCTOR IS PAROLED FROM LIFE SENTENCE

OLYMPIA, Wash., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Dr. Kent W. Berry of Olympia, sentenced to a life term in prison in a sensational abduction and torture case nearly 10 years ago, will be paroled from State Prison Monday.

Chairman John J. Quine said the doctor's outstanding work in the prison influenced the board of prison terms and paroles. He said that through the doctor's efforts the penitentiary death rate had dropped from approximately 16 a year to practically nothing, with at least 60 lives saved.

Dr. Berry was sentenced to life after his conviction in the abduction and torture of Irving Baker, retired coast guard officer. During the trial, Dr. Berry accused Baker of having been attentive to Mrs. Berry. Baker denied the accusation. The Berrys have since been divorced.

MILLSAPS HOLDS MONTHLY MEET

Mrs. Dawson Presents Checks To Two Winners At State Fair

The Millsaps School 4-H Club held their regular November meeting in the school lunchroom Wednesday, November 10, with the president, Jane Gilliland, presiding.

The program committee consisting of Bertie Cash, Marjorie Russ, Bill Norris, Charlene Eubanks, and Evelyn Moss provided an entertaining program of songs and poems.

Mrs. Audrey Dawson, assistant home demonstration agent, introduced the new assistant county agent, I. R. Creel.

The president, Jane Gilliland, announced that she is moving to Texas. The vice-president, Bill Norris, was elected president to fill her place.

Mrs. Dawson presented checks to Willie May and Patsy Nolan for prizes won at the state fair held recently in Shreveport. Willie placed fourth with his corn exhibit and Patsy was third with her apron.

The boys and girls were then divided into two groups. Mrs. Dawson and the girls discussed home improvement with emphasis being placed on the beautification of the girls' own rooms. Mr. Creel and the boys talked about ways of protecting corn and other harvested crops from the ravages of insects by proper storage and the use of poisons.

Above everything else . . a good car!

A FINE CAR MADE EVEN FINER

New Silver Streak Design • Unisteel Body by Fisher • No-Draft Ventilation • Shockproof Knee-Action • Triple-Cushioned Ride • Smooth, Economical 6 and 8 Cylinder L-Head Engines • Vacuumatic Spark Control • Scotch-Mist Quick Warm-Up Manifold • Full-Pressure Metered-Flow Lubrication • Multi-Seal Hydraulic Brakes • Gaselector • Tru-Arc Safety Steering

In striving to design and build a motor car that will merit the increasing goodwill of the American public—Pontiac has one manufacturing principle which takes precedence over all others:

Pontiac must always be a good car!

There is no other motor car quality which people value so much as goodness. That's why Pontiac engineers and production specialists spend so much time and energy and money to insure Pontiac quality. Pontiac cars must last long—and they must last well—and they must function through the years with a minimum of upkeep cost.

Owners have been quick to appreciate this. Some of the testimonials they send to the factory, and to Pontiac dealers, tell of performance feats that seem almost impossible of attainment.

Pontiac has many other outstanding virtues, of course. It is a wonderful performer. It is delightfully comfortable and easy to handle. It is a great beauty, and unusually distinctive in appearance.

But its greatest virtue is goodness. This year, or any year, you just can't beat it for faithful, dependable performance.

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY ARE RECOVERING FROM JITTERS

Mountain Of Evidence Indicates Pessimism Was Carried To Extremes

By G. A. Phillips

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Business and industry are showing signs of a fast recovery from the national election jitters.

A mountain of evidence this week indicates pessimism was carried to extremes following re-election of Mr. Truman and the return to power of a Democratic congress.

Nothing specifically had been hurt apparently except the delicately balanced state of mind shown as business confidence and, of course, the reputation of numerous poll takers.

The stock market took one bad spill this week and then made a stand. A tiny amount of the more than $6 billion lost since the election was recouped and Wall street brokers said bargain hunters were back on the buying side.

Industrial production ranked among the year's best. Steel mill tonnage was the highest in history. Electric power output starred for the fifth week in the "new high" production column as did crude oil.

There was a small drop in automobile production but it was due to flash labor disturbances and scarcity of needed materials. Soft coal output fell below the previous week but it was still a good tonnage. Building construction work showed no let up from the terrific pace at which new homes and factories have been turned out all year.

Cutbacks in employment in some northeastern industrial areas involved a relatively small number of workers and were for specific reasons seldom directly related. In some cases it was due to the seasonal nature of the business involved. In others it could be traced partly to basic antagonism between management and labor unions.

All in all the current business scene seemed one of extraordinary strength and vitality. Economists who were guided by facts and figures rather than emotion said they could see nothing in the election to change the picture providing good business sense and good political sense prevailed where there were points of difference.

The calmer view of the economic prospects under the new set of conditions was taken by a large number of nationally known organizations. They used newspapers, radio, special bulletins and other means of communications to get over their views of the situation.

The brokerage firm of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, by far the largest in the world, took space in newspapers in 19 large cities to acquaint clients and the public at large with its conclusions.

"The re-election of President Truman offers, in itself, no justifiable reason for believing that there has been any change in the outlook for business," the Merrill Lynch advertisement said. "The greatest industrial machine of all time is still going and going at a record rate. We're still doing business at the old stand and under the same conditions that have prevailed for 16 years."

A. W. Zelomek, editor of the International Statistical Bureau and economist for the National Retail Dry Goods Association, said the election would have only minor results on the business trend. The National Association of Purchasing Agents said it was convinced none of the fundamentals underlying recent price trends had been changed.

Both stressed the fact that Mr. Truman took a definite anti-inflation stand in the campaign and could be expected to strive hard to keep prices within bounds of reason. If this can be done without setting deflationary forces in motion, economists agree that the business boom has taken a new lease on life.

Various pronouncements in Washington this week and gossip from the presidential camp at Key West gave business and industry a good clue of what can be expected. In all cases the specific programs were no more harsh on business than had been forecast and foreshadowed in the campaign.

Revision of the present labor laws and a fourth round of wage increases seem a certainty. Any attempt to raise prices will be frowned on in view of the current high profits of business. There are many executives who say their firms cannot stand any higher production costs and stay in business. How they will meet the situation created by another wage hike remains to be seen but most economists believe they will find a way.

On price controls, allocation of materials and revision of the present tax laws, there is some doubt in business circles that the president will get out of congress exactly what he wants. Many people in the higher income brackets now claim they work almost exclusively for the government and are thus immune from any further tax burden.

Prices have been hardening of late and this week higher tags were tacked on to a number of grocery items and an assortment of industrial materials. But bumper crops, high inventories of merchants and filled pipe lines of supply are counter balancing influences in the price feild and it may be that the economists who think we've seen the worst are correct.

COLDEST CONDITION CREATED IN RESEARCH

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 13.—(AP)—It was nearly 459 degrees below zero at one spot in Columbus this week.

That's the coldest it's ever been in the United States. It was a scientific achievement in a laboratory at Ohio State University.

Dr. Harald H. Nielsen, chairman of the department of physics and astronomy, announced today four department staff members succeeded in recording temperatures as low as five one-hundreths of a degree above absolute zero.

Absolute zero, which scientists say is unattainable, is 459 degrees below zero on the Fahrenheit scale.

Previously, the temperatures in the region of nine one-hundredths of a degree above absolute zero had been recorded in California.

Ohio State scientists worked with a magnetic cooling device. It is called a "cryomagnetic generator." Temperatures were calculated from variations in an electrical circuit. Ordinary thermometers will not function at such extreme temperatures.

The cooling system had been devised some time ago, Dr. Nielsen said, but had been operated previously at only one other institution in this country—the University of California at Berkeley.

Prof. John G. Daunt, a native of England, and Prof. Maurice C. Desirant, a Belgian, operated the cooling equipment.

Physicists at Ohio look upon this week's achievement as a step toward still lower temperatures. They plan to build a nuclear cryomagnetic generator and try for temperatures estimated at one part in a million above absolute zero.

Scientists say the new development in low-temperature physics will facilitate a detailed study of nuclear problems. All molecular and atomic motions are virtually "frozen out" at extremely low temperatures. Such a condition is expected to permit research into the properties of the atomic nucleus and its interaction with other nuclei.

MISS FLANDERS GUEST SPEAKER

Tells Mitchell P.-T. A. Services That Library Affords

Miss Frances Flanders, librarian of the Ouachita Parish Public Library, was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the W. R. Mitchell P.-T. A. Wednesday, November 10. Her topic was "The Services Offered by a Parish Public Library." Miss Flanders stated, "The Public Library is a vital part in the life of the community." The library has a complete assortment of books. For the parents that are interested in "Child Study," there are numerous books along that line. Those interested in church work can find much material to help them. There are books for your every need.

Another interesting phase of Miss Flanders talk was on the "Mobile Unit Library" which the Ouachita Parish Public Library has in operation. This unit is on the record 5 days a week and has 10 routes. This unit goes to the smaller schools, that have inadequate library facilities, and rural areas. It has served 2,823 persons of which only 259 had previously used a library. It has circulated 30,424 books in the past 6 months, and 5,000 for the month of October.

Miss Flanders brought this "Mobile Unit Library" to the school, and it was inspected by the Mitchell P.-T. A. members.

Mrs. Lynton Cook brought before the P.-T. A. "the finger printing of the school children." This is a project being launched by the Twin-City P.-T. A. council. The members voted in favor of this project. Mrs. Cook also announced that the Mitchell P.-T. A. membership had reached the 10 per cent increase over last year.

December 16 was the date decided on for the Mitchell P.-T. A. Christmas party which will be held in the home of Mrs. Ed Harper, Jr.

Mrs. Fred Stone was appointed chairman of a committee of volunteers to help the Salvation Army with their Xmas kettles.

Mrs. Dale Cobb, president of W. R. Mitchell P.-T. A., announced the first grade won the room count.

DOCTOR IS PAROLED FROM LIFE SENTENCE

OLYMPIA, Wash., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Dr. Kent W. Berry of Olympia, sentenced to a life term in prison in a sensational abduction and torture case nearly 10 years ago, will be paroled from State Prison Monday.

Chairman John J. Quine said the doctor's outstanding work in the prison influenced the board of prison terms and paroles. He said that through the doctor's efforts the penitentiary death rate had dropped from approximately 16 a year to practically nothing, with at least 60 lives saved.

Dr. Berry was sentenced to life after his conviction in the abduction and torture of Irving Baker, retired coast guard officer. During the trial, Dr. Berry accused Baker of having been attentive to Mrs. Berry. Baker denied the accusation. The Berrys have since been divorced.

MILLSAPS HOLDS MONTHLY MEET

Mrs. Dawson Presents Checks To Two Winners At State Fair

The Millsaps School 4-H Club held their regular November meeting in the school lunchroom Wednesday, November 10, with the president, Jane Gilliland, presiding.

The program committee consisting of Bertie Cash, Marjorie Russ, Bill Norris, Charlene Eubanks, and Evelyn Moss provided an entertaining program of songs and poems.

Mrs. Audrey Dawson, assistant home demonstration agent, introduced the new assistant county agent, I. R. Creel.

The president, Jane Gilliland, announced that she is moving to Texas. The vice-president, Bill Norris, was elected president to fill her place.

Mrs. Dawson presented checks to Willie May and Patsy Nolan for prizes won at the state fair held recently in Shreveport. Willie placed fourth with his corn exhibit and Patsy was third with her apron.

The boys and girls were then divided into two groups. Mrs. Dawson and the girls discussed home improvement with emphasis being placed on the beautification of the girls' own rooms. Mr. Creel and the boys talked about ways of protecting corn and other harvested crops from the ravages of insects by proper storage and the use of poisons.

PONTIAC

A Product of General Motors

Above everything else..a good car!

A FINE CAR MADE EVEN FINER

New Silver Streak Design • Unisteel Body by Fisher • No-Draft Ventilation • Shockproof Knee-Action • Triple-Cushioned Ride • Smooth, Economical 6 and 8 Cylinder L-Head Engines • Vacuumatic Spark Control • Scotch-Mist Quick Warm-Up Manifold • Full-Pressure Metered-Flow Lubrication • Multi-Seal Hydraulic Brakes • Gaselector • Tru-Arc Safety Steering

In striving to design and build a motor car that will merit the increasing goodwill of the American public—Pontiac has one manufacturing principle which takes precedence over all others:

Pontiac must always be a good car!

There is no other motor car quality which people value so much as goodness. That's why Pontiac engineers and production specialists spend so much time and energy and money to insure Pontiac quality. Pontiac cars must last long—and they must last well—and they must function through the years with a minimum of upkeep cost.

Owners have been quick to appreciate this. Some of the testimonials they send to the factory, and to Pontiac dealers, tell of performance feats that seem almost impossible of attainment.

Pontiac has many other outstanding virtues, of course. It is a wonderful performer. It is delightfully comfortable and easy to handle. It is a great beauty, and unusually distinctive in appearance.

But its greatest virtue is goodness. This year, or any year, you just can't beat it for faithful, dependable performance.

*General Motors Hydra-Matic Drive and White Sidewall Tires and Bumper Guards optional at additional cost.

Mr. Dartez exhibited a variety of painting subjects, ranging from magnolias to Mexicans. Mrs. Dalton exhibited several paintings of merit: "A Scene On The Ouachita," "Red Hills," "A Victorian House" and her "Magnolias" which was outstanding in her exhibit.

Mr. Leon Hammonds gave a lecture on modern photography which he illustrated with breathtaking scenes from Monroe gardens. He also took the guests on a photographic trip through Florida.

Others on the program were Paul Dartez, "Gallery Lecture of the Art Exhibit" and Mrs. Maude Mayo, "Current Events."

Mrs. Fernandez and Mrs. Dalton, co-hostesses, were assisted in serving by Mr. and Mrs. John Allen, Mrs. Fernandez' sister, Mrs. Charles McNeill of Alexandria and Mrs. Harry Francis Fernandez and daughter, Sandra. The club was indeed glad to have Mr. Lowry Jefferson, who has been ill.

Mrs. Edward Dalton and Maude Mayo presided at the beautifully appointed table which was centered with golden chrysanthemums and illuminated by candles.

The following members and their guests were present: Miss Eleona Brinsmade, Mr. Joseph Craig, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dalton, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dartez, Mrs. Dolly Douglas, Miss Ladelle Duke, Mrs. Alta Faircloth, Mr. Leon Hammonds, Mrs. Wilhemina Inabnet, Mr. Lowery Jefferson, Mrs. Adelaide Lawson, Mrs. Maude Mayo, Mr. James Monroe, Miss Louise Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Newman, Miss Cliffie Olmstead, Miss May Read, Mrs. Ruth Selig, Mr. Lloyd Walters, Mrs. Tom Wafer. Olla

A wedding of interest to a wide circle of friends was that of Miss Barbara Mae Franklin, daughter of Mrs. Christine Franklin, formerly of Olla, and Private First Class James V. Brown of Olla. The wedding took place October 23 in the home of Rev. T. O. Carlstrom, pastor of the First Methodist Church in Urania.

The bride was beautifully attired in an aqua dress with black accessories.

Private Brown left Monday for Otis air base, Claymouth, Mass., where he is stationed. Mrs. Brown, now at home with the former's parents, will join him at a later date.

On Friday, October 29, at 8:00 p. m. in the First Baptist Church in Olla, La., Miss Bettye Joe Nethery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Nethery of Olla became the bride of Jack McDonald, son of John McDonald of El Dorado, Arkansas. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. D. Becton of Goodpine. The bride was very lovely in a white dressmaker suit with black accessories and an orchid corsage. Her only attendant was Mrs. Reecie Walters who wore a blue suit with pink accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Reecie Walters was best man.

Immediately following the wedding a reception was held in the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Benny M. Zeagler. The lovely rooms were made more beautiful by decorations of white mums, pink roses and candles.

Those assisting in the courtesies were Mrs. Benny M. Zeagler, Mrs. W. P. Nethery, mother of the bride, and Mrs. W. B. Nethery.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. McDonald will be at home in Monroe, La., where they are both employed.

CELEBRATING GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Averett, who recently celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary, in West Monroe.

Couple Celebrates Golden Wedding

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Nelson was the scene last Sunday afternoon of a tea given in honor of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin E. Averett. Mr. and Mrs. Averett are life-long residents of Ouachita parish and were married at the Benson home near West Monroe forty years ago. They are the parents of three sons and a daughter, Benson, Cline and Mrs. Nelson of West Monroe and Herlong Averett of Miami, Florida.

Red roses, artistically arranged, formed the background in the reception suite where Mr. and Mrs. Averett, together with Mrs. Nelson, stood to welcome those who called. Mrs. Averett chose for this occasion a black crepe with a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Nelson wore a black crepe model with lace inset and a corsage similar to that of her mother.

The dining room table bore a lace covered cloth, and tall yellow tapers were set in mounds of yellow chrysanthemums as decoration. The buffet held a mound of yellow chrysanthemums balanced by tall yellow tapers, the soft light of which shed a mellow glow as guests were served by Mrs. Benson Averett, wearing a black faille dress with yellow corsage, and Mrs. Cline Averett, wearing a black crepe with a yellow corsage.

Mrs. Bruce Humphries, wearing black crepe and a white corsage, presided over the punch bowl. The cake, iced in yellow and green, was surrounded by yellow dahlias. Mrs. John Lewis, wearing a black taffeta, assisted in the serving.

Mrs. Claude Irby, who wore a gray crepe dress with a corsage of white chrysanthemums, presided over the guest book.

CELEBRATING GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Averett, who recently celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary, in West Monroe.

Couple Celebrates Golden Wedding

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Nelson was the scene last Sunday afternoon of a tea given in honor of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin E. Averett. Mr. and Mrs. Averett are life-long residents of Ouachita parish and were married at the Benson home near West Monroe forty years ago. They are the parents of three sons and a daughter, Benson, Cline and Mrs. Nelson of West Monroe and Herlong Averett of Miami, Florida.

Red roses, artistically arranged, formed the background in the reception suite where Mr. and Mrs. Averett, together with Mrs. Nelson, stood to welcome those who called. Mrs. Averett chose for this occasion a black crepe with a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Nelson wore a black crepe model with lace inset and a corsage similar to that of her mother.

The dining room table bore a lace covered cloth, and tall yellow tapers were set in mounds of yellow chrysanthemums as decoration. The buffet held a mound of yellow chrysanthemums balanced by tall yellow tapers, the soft light of which shed a mellow glow as guests were served by Mrs. Benson Averett, wearing a black faille dress with yellow corsage, and Mrs. Cline Averett, wearing a black crepe with a yellow corsage.

Mrs. Bruce Humphries, wearing black crepe and a white corsage, presided over the punch bowl. The cake, iced in yellow and green, was surrounded by yellow dahlias. Mrs. John Lewis, wearing a black taffeta, assisted in the serving.

Mrs. Claude Irby, who wore a gray crepe dress with a corsage of white chrysanthemums, presided over the guest book.

BOOK WEEK TO BE OBSERVED

Today begins one of the best known "weeks," which have come to be such a feature of modern American life. This is Book Week, which was inaugurated in 1919. In that year Children's librarians, educators and booksellers got together and planned the obervance of Book Week, in an effort to interest people in books and especially in children's books. At that time there were not nearly as many good books for children as we have today. Book week has stimulated the publication of lovely children's books. Each year since 1919 Book Week has grown. Today we have a whole generation of children, who have grown up since its inception and who take book week for granted as a regular part of their lives.

Libraries all over our country are celebrating Book Week at this time. Each year a slogan is adopted for the week. The slogan for this year is "Books tell the story." The offficial poster was drawn by Marguerite de Angeli, one of the most famous of our modern authors and illustrators.

The Ouachita Parish Public Library is making extensive plans for the observance of Book Week. Exhibits have been arranged at three strategic places. The living room was candle-lit and decorated with glossy magnolia leaves entwined with white tube-roses and lovely arrangements of white flowers and greenery, all of which formed a distinct background for the receiving line.

Receiving with the hosts and honor guests, were Mrs. Edward Everet, Jr., of Lake Charles, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Richard Bass, who invited the guests to sign the guest book. In the dining room the table was covered with an imported linen cut work cloth. Streamers of pink satin ribbon extended the full length of the table, overlaid with fern. The pink ribbon formed a huge bow at the end of the table, where a crystal swan on an oval reflector, filled with white asters and fernery reflected the glow of the white tapers in crystal candelabra surrounding the punch bowl.

At the opposite end of the table Mrs. Tazewell W. Baird and Mrs. Fred Eldred presided over the punch bowl, and along the board were chicken salad sandwiches, mints, dainty cookies and toasted nuts. On the buffet crystal candelabra encircled the beautifully arranged pink roses and maiden hair fern and lent a soft glow from the white candles. Huge wire baskets of ferns added other enchantment to the decorations.

THE NATION TODAY
By James Marlow

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Once again you are about to see at work a system whereby a man gets paid off on his mere ability to stick around, not on his general ability.

That's the seniority system in congress.

Under it, a man who has served longest on a committee automatically moves up to become chairman even though other more recent committee members may be smarter at the job.

This will happen when the new congress, the 81st, takes over in 1949—and the Democrats, who have a majority and will run congress, start setting up their committees.

(It worked the same with the Republicans when they won a majority in the 1946 elections.)

The Democrats will have a majority on every committee. A few Republicans will have to drop off, and a few more Democrats will be added.

Then the Democrat who has been on each committee longest becomes chairman.

(This year the rule may be broken a bit if the Democrats want to get tough with some of their fellow-Democrats from the south who opposed President Truman's election.

(There's a chance some of them may be deprived of a top committee spot, but right now there's no certainty that will happen.)

But the importance of the committee chairmanship cannot be overstressed. It's a key spot in congress.

Those committees examine every bill that's introduced in congress. They can, in effect, kill a bill by ignoring it altogether. And the chairman is in a prime position to make that decision.

He can practically stick it in his pocket to keep the other committee members from acting on it.

Or the committee can hold hearings on a bill and twist and change it before it reaches the full house and senate for debate and vote.

When the debate starts, a bill which a committee put together can be amended or changed on the floor, but pretty generally the house and senate follow their committee's thinking.

So a committee chairman, if he wants, can throw a big harpoon into some of the promises President Truman and his Democrats made in the campaign.

But what if there are two men on a committee who started on it the same day, maybe 10 or 15 years ago, and have been serving on it since?

Then, won't the one with the better ability be elected chairman?

No. The seniority system is rigid on that. If Andy Adams and Billy Bell were the two men, Andy Adams would become chairman.

Why? Because, even though they had both started on the committee 15 years ago—and even though Adams may have paid little attention to the committee—his name alphabetically is ahead of Bell's. So Adams gets the job.

The new Democratic senator from Tennessee, Estes Kefauver, has a few sharp words to say about the seniority system.

Before his election to the senate last week, Kefauver had been a member of the house—and of house committees—for 10 years.

A year ago he wrote a book—"A Twentieth Century Congress"—to point out some of the things he thinks are wrong with congress. He said:

"Foremost among present evils is the ancient and rigid seniority system that governs the selection of committee chairmen. * * * There is abundant evidence to prove that fitness and leadership are not based upon years in office alone."

W. clubroom, with 24 members in attendance. Mrs. Vera E. Willensky, president of the thirteenth district, was a visitor. The charter was draped in honor of Mrs. Fearl Evans, department junior vice-president, whose passing occurred on October 25.

Mrs. Christine Hendry was unanimously elected conductress to complete the term of office made vacant by the removal of Mrs. Julia Hammonds to West Virginia.

An interesting report was made on the sale of Christmas cards, which are being sold for the benefit of the auxiliary fund.

Plans were also discussed for the Christmas party to be held Thursday night, December 9. Members of the post will be invited to attend and will be expected to bring a gift for a veteran at the Veterans Hospital at Alexandria.

The party is being held at an early date so that immediate shipment may be made to the department hospital chairman, Mrs. Mae Sullivan, of Alexandria.

It was voted at this time that the auxiliary send as a gift a bedside radio to a patient at the hospital at Alexandria, a young veteran with whom the auxiliary has been in touch with for several months.

Committee chairmen were appointed as follows: Essay, Mrs. Wille Mae Austin; reporter for the department paper, The Voice, Mrs. Mary Pennington; telephone, Mrs. Dale Hatley; national home fund, Mrs. Annie Chance; sick committee, Mrs. Christine Hendry and Mrs. Jaunita Tynes; adult education, Mrs. Maycie Chaddick; youth activity, Mrs. Nan McKeithen; legislative, Mrs. Sally Zufall; Americanism, Mrs. Alma Lois Walker; rehabilitation, Mrs. Evelyn Webber; publicity and finance, Mrs. Aline B. Hunt; hospital, Mrs. Bessie Bailey; social committee, Mrs. Isabelle Mercer, Mrs. Carrie Chandler and Mrs. Martha Newman; membership, Mrs. Bessie Semmes.

Fifteen members volunteered for assistance at the Salvation Army kettles.

Mrs. Eva Yeats and Mrs. Evelyn Webber were appointed substitute color bearers.

The gift awarded at this meeting went to Mrs. Juanita Tynes.

It was voted that a card of thanks be sent by the auxiliary to Hudson-Leehy post in West Monroe for their hospitality in entertaining all the auxiliaries in the thirteenth district at their clubroom on Sunday, November 7. Fifty-seven members were in attendance at this meeting.

The next regular meeting of the Hobbs Auxiliary will be held Thursday night, November 25, which will be a social meeting as it falls on Thanksgiving.

THE NATION TODAY
By James Marlow

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Once again you are about to see at work a system whereby a man gets paid off on his mere ability to stick around, not on his general ability.

That's the seniority system in congress.

Under it, a man who has served longest on a committee automatically moves up to become chairman even though other more recent committee members may be smarter at the job.

This will happen when the new congress, the 81st, takes over in 1949—and the Democrats, who have a majority and will run congress, start setting up their committees.

(It worked the same with the Republicans when they won a majority in the 1946 elections.)

The Democrats will have a majority on every committee. A few Republicans will have to drop off, and a few more Democrats will be added.

Then the Democrat who has been on each committee longest becomes chairman.

(This year the rule may be broken a bit if the Democrats want to get tough with some of their fellow-Democrats from the south who opposed President Truman's election.

(There's a chance some of them may be deprived of a top committee spot, but right now there's no certainty that will happen.)

But the importance of the committee chairmanship cannot be overstressed. It's a key spot in congress. Those committees examine every bill that's introduced in congress. They can, in effect, kill a bill by ignoring it altogether. And the chairman is in a prime position to make that decision.

He can practically stick it in his pocket to keep the other committee members from acting on it.

Or the committee can hold hearings on a bill and twist and change it before it reaches the full house and senate for debate and vote.

When the debate starts, a bill which a committee put together can be amended or changed on the floor, but pretty generally the house and senate follow their committee's thinking.

So a committee chairman, if he wants, can throw a big harpoon into some of the promises President Truman and his Democrats made in the campaign.

But what if there are two men on a committee who started on it the same day, maybe 10 or 15 years ago, and have been serving on it since?

Then, won't the one with the better ability be elected chairman?

No. The seniority system is rigid on that. If Andy Adams and Billy Bell were the two men, Andy Adams would become chairman.

Why? Because, even though they had both started on the committee 15 years ago—and even though Adams may have paid little attention to the committee—his name alphabetically is ahead of Bell's. So Adams gets the job.

The new Democratic senator from Tennessee, Estes Kefauver, has a few sharp words to say about the seniority system.

Before his election to the senate last week, Kefauver had been a member of the house—and of house committees—for 10 years.

A year ago he wrote a book—"A Twentieth Century Congress"—to point out some of the things he thinks are wrong with congress. He said:

"Foremost among present evils is the ancient and rigid seniority system that governs the selection of committee chairmen. • • • There is abundant evidence to prove that fitness and leadership are not based upon years in office alone."

WATTS FESTIVAL ARRANGED HERE

Songs That Have Lived For Centuries Will Be Sung Sunday

Commemoration of the 200th anniversary of the death of the world famous song writer, Isaac Watts, will be observed by a song festival when many of his most famous hymns will be sung at the First Presbyterian Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

Concerning Watts, James Montgomery stated as follows: "Dr. Watts may be called the inventor of hymns in our language, for he so far departed from all precedent that few of his compositions resemble those of his forerunners, while he so far established a precedent to all his successors that none have departed from it otherwise than according to the peculiar turn of mind in the writers, and the style of expressing Christian truths employed by the denomination to which he belonged. It has pleased God to confer upon him, though one of the least of the poets of this country, more glory than upon the greatest either of that or of any other, by making his divine songs a more abundant and universal blessing than the verses of any uninspired penman that ever lived."

Watts was born in England, July 17, 1674, and died November 25, 1748. The public is cordially invited to attend the service Sunday. The program will be as follows:

Organ Prelude—"When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," Isaac Watts, 1707.

Call to Worship—"Lord's Prayer," the choir.

Responsive call to prayer (congregation standing)—Minister: O come, let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord, our Maker. People: For he is the Lord, our God: and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand. Minister: Let us pray.

Invocation (in unison) — Almighty God, unto whom all hearts are open, all desires known, and from whom no secrets are hid; cleanse the thoughts of our hearts by the inspiration of thy Holy Spirit, that we may perfectly love thee, and worthily magnify thy Holy Name, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Purpose of this Service—Rev. E. D. Holloway.

Hymn No. 57 (congregation standing)—"Joy To The World," Isaac Watts, 1719.

Scripture Reading—Psalm 98.

"Cradle Hymn," Isaac Watts, junior choir.

Offering.

Offertory (the choir) — "Take My Life" (hymn of consecration).

Consecration of offering.

Hymn No. 97 (congregation standing)—"Alas! And Did My Saviour Bleed," Isaac Watts, 1707.

Hymn No. 217 (congregation seated) —"I Am Thine, O Lord."

Hymn No. 25 (congregation seated) —"Joyful, Joyful, We Adore Thee."

Anthem (the choir) — "Come, Ye Thankful People Come."

Hymn No. 19 (congregation standing)—"Our God, Our Help in Ages Past," Isaac Watts, 1719.

Doxology.

Prayer—"O God our Father, grant that thy praises may evermore be enriched and made glorious by the beauty and blessing of holy hymns born of thy Spirit. May we ever sing with gladness in our hearts, and show forth thy praise in worthy and triumphant songs. Let thy Spirit so dwell in the hearts of thy people here and everywhere that they may be led to sing with grace and deep gratitude as unto thee. Grant that all who here find joy in worshipping thee may be numbered at last with those who shall sing the new song before the heavenly throne; through Jesus Christ our Lord who liveth and reigneth with three, O Father, and the Holy Spirit, ever one God, world without end. Amen."

Benediction—Choral amen.

BAD CHIMNEYS CAUSE OF FIRE

Defective Condition Blamed For Many Fires In Houses

Defective chimneys rank high as a cause of farm fires during the heating season. Repair cracks or other defects and replace rusted or burned out stove pipes, points out J. J. Joyce, Jr., county agent.

"Use a metal or asbestos floor covering under wood or coal burning stoves," he suggests. "Use double metal ventilated thimbles where stovepipes pass through frame walls or partitions.

"Another group of farm fires are started by sparks on roofs. A spark arrestor on your chimney will eliminate this risk. This hazard can also be reduced by installing fire-retardant roofing.

"Other farm fires are due to the misuse of petroleum and its products. Every time you use gasoline, kerosene, or tractor fuel to start or hasten a fire you invite disaster. Don't gamble with leaky connections, defective equipment, or poor adjustment on kerosene stoves or oil burning furnaces.

"Tank heaters, feed heaters or any other type of heating equipment around your farmstead should also be checked carefully. See that they are in good condition and installed safely. Defective tank heaters, or installations too close to buildings, straw or other flammable materials lead to many costly winter fires," he warns.

BIRTHS RACE T. B. IN HONG KONG

HONG KONG—(AP)—Hong Kong's birth rate shows no signs of decreasing. There were 1,007 births during the third week of September as against 240 deaths. Twelve per cent of the dead were victims of tubrculosis. Total deaths from this cause since the beginning of the year numbered 1,399.

Approximately 20 per cent of gainfully employed people in the United States are engaged in agriculture, forestry and fishing combined.

Snow contains so much air that animals hibernate beneath it and men have been buried in drifts for two full days and lived.

The Himalayan snow line is lower in the sunny south because those mountains get more snow on the southern side.

FERRIDAY WILL LAUD LIBRARY

Oldest Tax-Supported Institution Of Kind In State

FERRIDAY, La., Nov. 13.—(Special)—An observance marking twenty years of service to Concordia parish, will be held at the Concordia Parish Library when the new bookmobile is delivered to Mrs. Sidney R. Gray, parish librarian. The oldest tax-supported library in the state, the Concordia Parish Library began in October, 1928, as a demonstration library. In 1940 the tax was increased to one mill without a dissenting vote

At present there are 12 branch libraries besides the headquarters library in Ferriday. The library is governed by a parish library board made up of five citizens of the parish appointed by the police jury, with the president of the police jury as ex-officio members and the librarian as secretary.

Board members include George A. Murray, Vidalia, president; S. H. Henderson, Mrs. Lucille Godbold, Mrs. Earl C. Ferguson and Wilbur Compton.

SQUARE DANCE TO BE FEATURED

The recreation department will have the first square dance on Tuesday night, starting at 7:30. Mrs. Ollie Rust will be in charge of the program and will teach all who do not know how to square dance.

This is open to the public, especially the older young people, middle age people and old people. It is important that everybody has a partner but if you do not have one, come anyway and find one at the center.

A charge of 10 cents per person will be made to cover expenses for the evening.

BAD CHIMNEYS CAUSE OF FIRE

Defective Condition Blamed For Many Fires In Houses

Defective chimneys rank high as a cause of farm fires during the heating season. Repair cracks or other defects and replace rusted or burned out stove pipes, points out J. J. Joyce, Jr., county agent.

"Use a metal or asbestos floor covering under wood or coal burning stoves," he suggests. "Use double metal ventilated thimbles where stovepipes pass through frame walls or partitions.

"Another group of farm fires are started by sparks on roofs. A spark arrestor on your chimney will eliminate this risk. This hazard can also be reduced by installing fire-retardant roofing.

"Other farm fires are due to the misuse of petroleum and its products. Every time you use gasoline, kerosene, or tractor fuel to start or hasten a fire you invite disaster. Don't gamble with leaky connections, defective equipment, or poor adjustment on kerosene stoves or oil burning furnaces.

"Tank heaters, feed heaters or any other type of heating equipment around your farmstead should also be checked carefully. See that they are in good condition and installed safely. Defective tank heaters, or installations too close to buildings, straw or other flammable materials lead to many costly winter fires," he warns.

BIRTHS RACE T. B. IN HONG KONG

HONG KONG—(AP)—Hong Kong's birth rate shows no signs of decreasing. There were 1,007 births during the third week of September as against 240 deaths. Twelve per cent of the dead were victims of tubrculosis. Total deaths from this cause since the beginning of the year numbered 1,399.

Approximately 20 per cent of gainfully employed people in the United States are engaged in agriculture, forestry and fishing combined.

Snow contains so much air that animals hibernate beneath it and men have been buried in drifts for two full days and lived.

The Himalayan snow line is lower in the sunny south because those mountains get more snow on the southern side.

DR. JENKINS IS GROUP SPEAKER

ddresses Junior Red Cross At Informal Supper Meeting

An interested group of principals d teacher-sponsors of the Ouachita arish schools met Friday night for informal supper meeting to make lans for Junior Red Cross activities. he meeting was held primarily for rincipals and teacher-sponsors of this parish, but we were very glad to have Miss Maggie Hawes, supervisor of Morehouse parish schools, and Miss Ruth Spier, Bastrop.

Dr. Jankins, director of Junior Red Cross activities of the six southeastern states, discussed the over-all Junior Red Cross program, its educational value, and ways of correlating it with the school curriculum. Dr. Jenkins further stressed Junior Red Cross training centers, showing how the program was developed to train Junior Red Cross members for leadership.

Misses Georgia and Beverly Volman, of Neville High School, were sent to the training camp at Roosevelt State Park, Chipley, Ga., last summer. They gave interesting accounts of the training camp.

A definite interest was shown by the group and many remained after the meeting to discuss individual plans with Dr. Jenkins.

Those present were: Dr. Jenkins, director J. R. C., Atlanta, Ga.; Miss Les Edmonds, J. R. C. field representative; Miss Maggie Hawes, supervisor Morehouse parish schools; Miss Ruth Spier, Bastrop; Principal Jack Hayes and Miss Frances Wilson, Ouachita Parish High School; Principal Joe Craig, Ouachita Grammar School; Mrs. Thomas Mulhearn, St. Matthew's; Mrs. May Snapp, Lida Benton; Mrs. Verna LeBlanc, Georgia Tucker; Mrs. Vernon Brooks, Barkdull Faulk; Mrs. Myrtis Warren, Swartz; Mrs. U. N. Bradford, Logtown; Mrs. Geneva Cloutier and Mrs. Eddie Matthews, Ransom; Mrs. Edna Manley, Drew; Principal J. W. Rutledge, Crosley; Miss Gertrude Gregory, principal, Lenwil; Mrs. Virginia Butler, Central Grammar; Mrs. Forest Seaman, chairman J. R. C.; Misses Georgia and Beverly Volman and Mrs. Veazey. Canteen members who served were Mrs. Harry Davis and Mrs. R. E. Bedwell.

MEN IN SERVICE

HEADQUARTERS, FAR EAST AIR FORCES, TOKYO—One of the 30 United States air force officers in the Tokyo area to receive a promotion to permanent major is Capt. Henry J. Y. Moss, son of Mrs. J. Y. Moss, 403 South Vienna street, Ruston, Louisiana, and brother of Mrs. Daniel Gilbert, Shreveport highway, Monroe, Louisiana. Major Moss is the chief of the airmen information and education branch of far east air forces headquarters in Tokyo, Japan.

Arriving in the far east in December 1945, Major Moss was assigned as the commanding officer of the 13th air depot supply squadron at Haneda air force base near Tokyo and later moved with the unit to Tachikawa air force base about 10 miles away. September 1946 found him as a civilian with the far east air forces headquarters as an education specialist organizing the education program for the air force units in the far east. He reentered military service with a permanent commission in November 1947 and was given his present assignment.

Especially suited for educational duties because of his background, Moss received his bachelor of arts degree from the Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in 1929, and his masters degree from the State University of Iowa, Iowa City in 1933. He was an instructor for several years at the Allen Academy, Bryan, Texas; the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Alabama; and the University of Florida in Gainesville.

LITTLE THEATRE CURTAIN CALL

The hard working, energetic cast of "Dear Ruth," the next Little Theatre production, under the direction of Miss June Shultz has agreed to rehearse nightly next week and also Sunday the 21st and Monday and Tuesday nights of the following week in order to take a few days off for Thanksgiving holidays. Rehearsals will be held at 200 South Grand street, 7 p. m. on week nights and 2 p. m. on Sunday the 21st. Miss Shultz will be giving up part of her holiday vacation to be with her cast, but when we interviewed her Saturday morning she was so happy over the promising outlook of "Dear Ruth" that this fact was overshadowed and pushed far into the background. Can't say that we blame her with one of N. J. C. and L. S. U.'s beauties, Yvonne Lusk, for the leading lady Ruth; and with secretary of the Chamber of Commerce Bailey and his wife, Alice, taking leading roles as Judge and Edith Wilkens and that other husband and wife team, Roy and Freddie Holloway playing Albert Kummer and Dora the maid. Jack Smith will be Lieutenant Seawright; Mirlyn Kennedy the "impish teen-ager" Miriam; Violet Willbanks as Martha Seawright and Robert Louis Willett as Harold Klobbymeyer.

INTIMATE NOTES: Little Theatre's Margaret Watson, who did such a grand job of art work for the award scrolls, participated in the annual horse show at Baton Rouge last week and had her picture made with band leader Wayne King, who presented her with a lovely gold vanity. Margaret is very enthusiastic about her art teacher down at L. S. U. and the busy young lady spent the week end in New Orleans . . . Bill Mobley who is cast as Sgt. "Chuck" Vincent in the forthcoming production, "Dear Ruth," is transferring to Baton Rouge and won't be able to accept the role assigned. He and his sister will move to Baton Rouge before the play dates, Dec. 20 and 21. . . . Perhaps, if he doesn't run into complications again, we will see Fred "T" King, Jr., out for rehearsal Monday night and he will try out for the role. Fred has been showing a very lively interest in Little Theatre . . . The Dick Troys have jut returned from New York and Washington, D. C. where they had a very lovely time. Dick quipped to his friends "The Waldorf-Astoria was still standing when Mamma and the boys moved out."

LITTLE THEATRE SKETCH

ALICE VIRGINIA BAILEY (Mrs. Herbert Bailey), attractive and charming wife of the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, was born and raised in Oklahoma, where she worked on the secretarial staff of the First National Bank and Trust Co. in Oklahoma City. During the war years Alice worked for the Red Cross, U. S. O. and headed the Girl Scout troop for two years. She sang in the Catholic choir in Oklahoma City. During the short sixteen months she has been in Monroe, Alice has made a large group of friends to whom she is known as a delightful hostess and any person needing help will find her more than ready to give assistance of any kind. She is a member of Newcomers Club and the Catholic Newcomers Club. Little Theatre is more than proud to present her in the role of Edith Wilkens in the next Little Theatre play, "Dear Ruth." Her poise and charm are outstanding characteristics that would grace any event. She helped out with rehearsals for "The Night of January 16," and appeared in the play as secretary to District Attorney Flint.

SARDIS CLUB HAS REGULAR MEETING

The Sardis Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. D. L. Calhoun.

Mrs. J. E. Rutledge, Mrs. Edna Bush, Mrs. Gaston Rutledge, Mrs. Wade Futch, Mrs. J. H. Kilpatrick, Mrs. Marie McKnight, Mrs. O. H. Guyton, Mrs. M. L. Owens, Mrs. U. C. Cockrell.

CHRISTMAS TREE ANGEL...

This happy creature, bless her heart, is Christmas present enough for us each year.

For well ahead of the season's rush, she decides to give portraits as her most personal gifts.

She knows a fine portrait is the product of human hands and should never be rushed to completion . . . so she makes an early appointment for her sitting.

Now that you've seen a Christmas angel . . . why not be one? It'll make us all happier . . . better portraits, too!

NURSING GOT START IN 1873

First Nursing Schools Were Established In U. S. 75 Years Ago

Nursing, of a kind, must be as old as the human race, for it developed side by side with the mother-care of the young. That being so, what makes 1948 the diamond jubilee year of nursing? The simple fact that 75 years ago, in 1873, there were established in the United States the first three nurses' training schools based on the Florence Nightingale system: One at Bellevue Hospital in New York City, another at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, and the third, the Connecticut Training School for Nurses, at New Haven. Before the time of Florence Nightingale nursing was not a profession. Student nurses, or "probationers," received no formal schooling whatever—they were immediately set to work in the hospital wards, to learn nursing by trial and error.

Without the foresight, energy and courage of Linda Richards, America's first professional nurse, nursing in this country would not have reached the high level it has achieved in our time. It is no exaggeration to say that what Florence Nightingale was to the history of nursing in general, Linda Richards was to American nursing history. In fact, after the American nurse in 1877, Florence Nightingale wrote of her: "I have seldom seen anyone who struck me as so admirable. I think we have as much to learn from her as she from us."

Who was this Nurse Richards whose memory has come to symbolize the diamond jubilee? Christened Melinda Ann Judson Richards at Potsdam, N. Y., on July 27, 1841, she proved to be a "born nurse"—as every other nurse in those days had to be, since there was no such thing as nursing education. At 29 she took the position of assistant nurse in a ward of the Boston City Hospital, and two years later, in 1872, she was enrolled as the very first student of the nursing school opened that year by the New England Hospital for Women and Children at Boston, Mass. She received the school's first diploma in May, 1873, thus becoming, literally, America's first professional nurse.

Mackenzie's Column

By DeWitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The sentences of death by hanging for war crimes, meted out in Tokyo to former Japanese premier Tojo and six of his top leaders—not to mention terms of imprisonment for others—recall (and may revive) the argument revolving about the Nuernberg trials of Nazi leaders.

The dispute was over whether such trials were admissible under international law and, if they were, whether there was moral justification for the death sentences. The first of these two points is, of course, legal; the second is based largely on the commandment "Thou shalt not kill."

As for the legal aspect, much has been made of the claim that international law never had recognized such charges prior to World War II, and that the various war-crimes trials have been based on a law created after commission of the crimes alleged. However, the Allies obviously have felt sure of their position, which was summed up in the Harvard law review in 1946 by Dr. Sheldon Glueck, professor of criminal law and criminology at Harvard, in this way:

"Every recognition of custom as evidence of law must have a beginning some time; and there has never been a more justifiable stage in the history of international law than the present, to recognize that by the common consent of civilized nations as expressed in numerous solemn agreements and public pronouncements the institution or waging of an aggressive war is an international crime."

So far as the trials are concerned, the peoples of the various Allied nations generally accept them not only as justified but as necessary warnings to countries which might develop warlike notions. Few if any Allied citizens would challenge any sort of punishment by imprisonment, no matter how severe.

However, the death penalty raises other issues in the minds of a lot of folk. Some object on moral or religious grounds. This has just cropped up in Germany in connection with the continued executions in Munich of former Nazi guards at the Mauthausen concentration camp, convicted of large scale extermination of inmates by various methods. German church leaders have protested the executions, but 15 more of the 139 originally condemned were hanged yesterday, leaving 81 still to die.

Then apart from moral and religious issues, there is an awful finality to execution which precludes correction of mistake in conviction. Apropos of corrections, a couple of months ago the life sentence of Ilse Koch, "queen" of the frightful Buckenwald concentration camp, was commuted to four years. General Lucius D. Clay, American military governor in Germany, said reduction of her sentence had been recommended by reviewing officers on the grounds "it had never been proved that Frau Koch selected prisoners for execution or had in her possession articles made of human skin." This commutation created a heated controversy, but it illustrates our point.

Not long ago the British house of commons passed a measure abolishing capital punishment. One of the chief arguments advanced for this act was that many innocent people have died. There sometimes is uncertainty regarding the actual proof of guilt. However, the house of lords, vetoed the measure on the grounds that the death penalty was a necessary deterrent to murder.

Of course there's no possible doubt about the guilt of Tojo and his barbaric leaders. If anyone ought to die for crime, they certainly should.

IN MOVIELAND

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The casualties of Hollywood's economy drive, not mentioned until right here and now, are those dimpled darlings, the child stars.

I don't mean that Margaret O'Brien should start applying for social security. She and a handful of other current juvenile favorites are secure as long as their youth and charm hold out. But there are tough times ahead for kids who hope to follow in the golden footsteps of Jackie Coogan, Baby Peggy, Jackie Cooper, Mitzi Green, Baby Leroy, Shirley Temple and Jane Withers.

The blunt fact is that studios can't afford child stars.

You might argue that the upkeep should be simple for young performers—just some toy blocks and a jigger of pablum now and then. But it's not that easy.

Child acting is a specialized field and an expensive one to studios. The regulations regarding use of children in studios are involved enough to warm a bureaucrat's heart. This will give you an idea:

Children must have a permit to work. The permit must be renewed every six months and can be revoked any time. Children must pass a physical examination and keep up school grades to work. One welfare worker must be hired for every 20 youngsters. Every child under 12 must be accompanied by a guardian.

No child can be on a studio lot more than eight hours at a time. Lunch cannot be later than 12:30 or dinner later than 6:30. Of the eight-hour day, three hours must be spent in school and one in recreation.

This leaves four hours or less per day for a child star to be used on a movie set. When you consider that adult actors work eight hours daily or more, you can see how expensive film moppets can be to studios.

There are other problems, too. Other child actors do not always have the amazing memory of an O'Brien or a Temple. Directors can't bawl out kid stars because they don't know their lines or are stubborn or scared. It takes much time and patience.

And it's no small problem to find scripts for child actors. Most juvenile stories have been filmed again and again. As if you haven't noticed.

BUILDING PERMITS

Permission was granted to Mrs. Annie Allgood to add to a residence at 2614 Coolidge street, at a cost of $200. Day labor will be employed.

A permit was granted to Sherman Douglas to remodel an apartment at the rear of 1716 Grammont street, at a cost of $600. Day labor will be employed.

The little bow of string or ribbon on the sweatband of men's hats is believed by some to date from the time when men's hats were adjustable.

SUPERVISOR OF SCHOOLS VISITS

Statewide Primary Official Makes Short Stay In City

The primary teachers of Ouachita parish met in the Ouachita Parish Grammer School Wednesday, November 10, at 4 p. m. to meet, on her first official visit to the parish, Miss Mabel Collette, state primary supervisor.

Miss Collette, in company with Mrs. Chrissie H. Williams, supervisor of Ouachita Parish Schools, visited many classrooms during the day and enjoyed seeing children and teachers happily working together in wholesome learning situations. She commented on the "new look" given to the army buildings brought from Camp Livingston and appreciated what had been accomplished at Selman to make it such an attractive modern school plant. The new cafeterias at these schools, also, came in for most favorable comment.

The happy tone of the afternoon meeting was set by the presentation of several songs, some with rhythmic drawings, by the primary pupils of Ouachita Parish Grammar School under the direction of Miss Olive Gunby and Mrs. C. E. Buckley.

Miss Collette was then introduced and brought the teachers a message full of inspiration and practical suggestions for helping the primary child grow, develop, and progress as an individual while working in a group.

The last part of the hour was devoted to a discussion by the teachers of the philosophy and suggested program of instruction as given in a new book recently added to the professional library of each elementary school in the parish on the teaching of reading by Paul McKee, a recognized authority in this field.

This informal discussion to which Miss Collette contributed from time to time proved stimulating. The discussion centered around the necessity of pupils, very early in their school life, beginning to gain power in independent word recognition using the context, picture, and their phonetic knowledge in the process.

The group appreciated the author's view concerning teaching pupils to demand for themselves complete understanding of what some one says to them by means of the printed words. For too long, he thinks all of us have been satisfied by "surface" reading and have not taught pupils to "claw and scratch" until they unlock the true meaning.

This discussion will—no doubt—result in many private exchanges of views and further reading on this subject of vital importance to primary teachers.

ALTRUSA CLUB HOLDS LUNCHEON

The Altrusa Club of Monroe and Altrusa International, composed of business women who actively engage in an occupation in which she holds a responsible position of executive character, or who is the owner of her own business or practicing a profession, were hostesses on Thursday night to representatives of the five women's service clubs in Monroe at a dinner meeting at the La Casa Tea Room.

The purpose of the meeting was to make tentative plans for combining the efforts of all the clubs in conducting a United Nations program aiding the needy peoples of Europe in early February.

Mrs. Carr welcomed the guests and then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Helen Luckett who in entertaining manner explained in detail how different projects may be adopted. The representatives accepted the ideas with enthusiasm and will present them to their respective clubs for further consideration.

Mrs. Adrienne Carr, president of the Altrusa Club, was named general chairman and will begin working on plans at once.

Those representing the clubs were: Miss Nona Martin, president of the Pilot Club; Mrs. L. E. Mathis, president professional and Business Women's Club; Miss Eloise Helm, president of the Delta Rho Delta; Mrs. Taunton Veasey, Quota Club; Mrs. Adrienne Carr, president of Altrusa Club; Miss Emma Lee Short, Miss Bernice McCoy, Miss Mary Benoit, Miss Agatha Burkett, Miss Marguerite Kirkpatrick and Mrs. Helen Luckett, board of directors of Altrusa Club.

In The Air
Over Monroe
By Margaret Gambrell

Ever so often last week when the air show was mentioned you'd hear people say, "Oh air shows are all just alike. This one won't be any different."

Well, those who saw last Sunday's Trans-American air show at Selman Field know better. The show was the most successful air exhibit ever to be produced in Monroe and crowds estimated at over 4,500 witnessed the two hours of aerobatics.

As the show moved along, each act seemed to create more enthusiasm and excitement among air fans, until the last aerobatic act was finished.

Much credit is due the Junior Chamber of Commerce for sponsoring the unusual air show which was enjoyed by so many.

Air Reserve Flying

Word has been circulated in the past few weeks that air reserve flying may be cut out except in localities where active army air force flying schools are operated. Should such a bill be passed in congress hundreds of air reserve units throughout the country would be discontinued.

Members of the local air reserve have been requested to contact their congressmen and ask that the air reserve be maintained in order that the hundreds of reservists can continue their flying.

Reserve pilots at Selman Field have access to four planes at present and put in several hours flying time each month.

Airpark Gets New Field

The biggest airport news in several weeks came yesterday when Harry Prophit and Joe Joseph, owners of Monroe Airpark, announced that they had purchased interest in Service Aviation Company, which is located at Selman Field.

The Airpark purchased the interest of A. A. Annis and completed negotiations with the city for immediate operation of the airport. It will be operated under the name of Monroe Airport Service, Inc., and maintain the same policy toward service.

Both Joseph and Prophit are busy getting a complete repair and refabricating shop installed at Selman Field and all efforts are being made to secure a C. A. A. approved repair station.

This makes the fifth such airport in this area operated by Joseph and Prophit and here's wishing the best of luck with their latest business enterprise.

Though rain and uncertain weather conditions kept most pilots grounded during the week, C. F. Cumpton, of Rayville, completed his flying time and passed his examination for a private pilot's license.

Another student, J. W. Hogan, flew to Kilgore, Texas, in order to get in enough hours to qualify for his private license.

Fred E. Lindsey, of Monroe, flew to Alexandria where he visited a friend last Sunday.

Pilot J. W. Aubin took J. T. Guynes, of a local motor company, and two drivers to Chicago, Ill., where they picked up cars which they drove back to Monroe. The party left Wednesday morning and Guynes and the pilot returned at noon Thursday.

DR. JENKINS IS GROUP SPEAKER

Addresses Junior Red Cross At Informal Supper Meeting

An interested group of principals and teacher-sponsors of the Ouachita parish schools met Friday night for an informal supper meeting to make plans for Junior Red Cross activities. The meeting was held primarily for principals and teacher-sponsors of this parish, but we were very glad to have Miss Maggie Hawes, supervisor of Morehouse parish schools, and Miss Ruth Spier, Bastrop.

Dr. Jankins, director of Junior Red Cross activities of the six southeastern states, discussed the over-all Junior Red Cross program, its educational value, and ways of correlating it with the school curriculum. Dr. Jenkins further stressed Junior Red Cross training centers, showing how the program was developed to train Junior Red Cross members for leadership.

Misses Georgia and Beverly Volman, of Neville High School, were sent to the training camp at Roosevelt State Park, Chipley, Ga., last summer. They gave interesting accounts of the training camp.

A definite interest was shown by the group and many remained after the meeting to discuss individual plans with Dr. Jenkins.

Those present were: Dr. Jenkins, director J. R. C., Atlanta, Ga.; Miss Les Edmonds, J. R. C. field representative; Miss Maggie Hawes, supervisor Morehouse parish schools; Miss Ruth Spier, Bastrop; Principal Jack Hayes and Miss Frances Wilson, Ouachita Parish High School; Principal Joe Craig, Ouachita Grammar School; Mrs. Thomas Mulhearn, St. Matthew's; Mrs. May Snapp, Lida Benton; Mrs. Verna LeBlanc, Georgia Tucker; Mrs. Vernon Brooks, Barkdull Faulk; Mrs. Myrtis Warren, Swartz; Mrs. U. N. Bradford, Logtown; Mrs. Geneva Cloutier and Mrs. Eddie Matthews, Ransom; Mrs. Edna Manley, Drew; Principal J. W. Rutledge, Crosley; Miss Gertrude Gregory, principal, Lenwil; Mrs. Virginia Butler, Central Grammar; Mrs. Forest Seaman, chairman J. R. C.; Misses Georgia and Beverly Volman and Mrs. Veazey. Canteen members who served were Mrs. Harry Davis and Mrs. R. E. Bedwell.

MEN IN SERVICE

HEADQUARTERS, FAR EAST AIR FORCES, TOKYO — One of the 30 United States air force officers in the Tokyo area to receive a promotion to permanent major is Capt. Henry J. Y. Moss, son of Mrs. J. Y. Moss, 403 South Vienna street, Ruston, Louisiana, and brother of Mrs. Daniel Gilbert, Shreveport highway, Monroe, Louisiana. Major Moss is the chief of the airmen information and education branch of far east air forces headquarters in Tokyo, Japan.

Arriving in the far east in December 1945, Major Moss was assigned as the commanding officer of the 13th air depot supply squadron at Haneda air force base near Tokyo and later moved with the unit to Tachikawa air force base about 10 miles away. September 1946 found him as a civilian with the far east air forces headquarters as an education specialist organizing the education program for the air force units in the far east. He reentered military service with a permanent commission in November 1947 and was given his present assignment.

Especially suited for educational duties because of his background, Moss received his bachelor of arts degree from the Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in 1929, and his masters degree from the State University of Iowa, Iowa City in 1933. He was an instructor for several years at the Allen Academy, Bryan, Texas; the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Alabama; and the University of Florida in Gainesville.

LITTLE THEATRE CURTAIN CALL

The hard working, energetic cast of "Dear Ruth," the next Little Theatre production, under the direction of Miss June Shultz has agreed to rehearse nightly next week and also Sunday the 21st and Monday and Tuesday nights of the following week in order to take a few days off for Thanksgiving holidays. Rehearsals will be held at 200 South Grand street, 7 p. m. on week nights and 2 p. m. on Sunday the 21st. Miss Shultz will be giving up part of her holiday vacation to be with her cast, but when we interviewed her Saturday morning she was so happy over the promising outlook of "Dear Ruth" that this fact was overshadowed and pushed far into the background. Can't say that we blame her with one of N. J. C. and L. S. U.'s beauties, Yvonne Lusk, for the leading lady Ruth; and with secretary of the Chamber of Commerce Bailey and his wife, Alice, taking leading roles as Judge and Edith Wilkens and that other husband and wife team, Roy and Freddie Holloway playing Albert Kummer and Dora the maid. Jack Smith will be Lieutenant Seawright; Mirlyn Kennedy the "impish teen-ager" Miriam; Violet Willbanks as Martha Seawright and Robert Louis Willett as Harold Klobbymeyer.

INTIMATE NOTES: Little Theatre's Margaret Watson, who did such a grand job of art work for the award scrolls, participated in the annual horse show at Baton Rouge last week and had her picture made with band leader Wayne King, who presented her with a lovely gold vanity. Margaret is very enthusiastic about her art teacher down at L. S. U. and the busy young lady spent the week end in New Orleans . . . Bill Mobley who is cast as Sgt. "Chuck" Vincent in the forthcoming production, "Dear Ruth," is transferring to Baton Rouge and won't be able to accept the role assigned. He and his sister will move to Baton Rouge before the play dates, Dec. 20 and 21. . . . Perhaps, if he doesn't run into complications again, we will see Fred "T" King, Jr., out for rehearsal Monday night and he will try out for the role. Fred has been showing a very lively interest in Little Theatre . . . The Dick Troys have jut returned from New York and Washington, D. C. where they had a very lovely time. Dick quipped to his friends "The Waldorf-Astoria was still standing when Mamma and the boys moved out."

LITTLE THEATRE SKETCH

ALICE VIRGINIA BAILEY (Mrs. Herbert Bailey), attractive and charming wife of the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, was born and raised in Oklahoma, where she worked on the secretarial staff of the First National Bank and Trust Co. in Oklahoma City. During the war years Alice worked for the Red Cross, U. S. O. and headed the Girl Scout troop for two years. She sang in the Catholic choir in Oklahoma City. During the short sixteen months she has been in Monroe, Alice has made a large group of friends to whom she is known as a delightful hostess and any person needing help will find her more than ready to give assistance of any kind. She is a member of Newcomers Club and the Catholic Newcomers Club. Little Theatre is more than proud to present her in the role of Edith Wilkens in the next Little Theatre play, "Dear Ruth." Her poise and charm are outstanding characteristics that would grace any event. She helped out with rehearsals for "The Night of January 16," and appeared in the play as secretary to District Attorney Flint.

SARDIS CLUB HAS REGULAR MEETING

The Sardis Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. D. L. Calhoun.

The meeting was called to order by the vice-president, Mrs. J. H. Kilpatrick and the song "Battle Hymn of the Republic" was sung and the pledge to the flag was given.

The treasurer report was given by Mrs. P. L. Owens and the order of business consisted of the election of officers for the next year. Mrs. O. H. Guyton was elected president, Mrs. Gaston Rutledge, vice-president, Mrs. Marie McKnight, treasurer.

Games were then introduced by the hostess, Mrs. D. L. Calhoun, and prizes went to Mrs. V. B. Owens, Mrs. U. C. Cockrell, Mrs. J. E. Rutledge, and Mrs. O. H. Guyton.

Refreshments were served to the following:

Mrs. J. E. Rutledge, Mrs. Edna Bush, Mrs. Gaston Rutledge, Mrs. Wade Futch, Mrs. J. H. Kilpatrick, Mrs. Marie McKnight, Mrs. O. H. Guyton, Mrs. M. L. Owens, Mrs. U. C. Cockrell.

NURSING GOT START IN 1873

First Nursing Schools Were Established In U. S. 75 Years Ago

Nursing, of a kind, must be as old as the human race, for it developed side by side with the mother-care of the young. That being so, what makes 1948 the diamond jubilee year of nursing? The simple fact that 75 years ago, in 1873, there were established in the United States the first three nurses' training schools based on the Florence Nightingale system: One at Bellevue Hospital in New York City, another at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, and the third, the Connecticut Training School for Nurses, at New Haven. Before the time of Florence Nightingale nursing was not a profession. Student nurses, or "probationers," received no formal schooling whatever—they were immediately set to work in the hospital wards, to learn nursing by trial and error.

Without the foresight, energy and courage of Linda Richards, America's first professional nurse, nursing in this country would not have reached the high level it has achieved in our time. It is no exaggeration to say that what Florence Nightingale was to the history of nursing in general, Linda Richards was to American nursing history. In fact, after the American nurse in 1877, Florence Nightingale wrote of her: "I have seldom seen anyone who struck me as so admirable. I think we have as much to learn from her as she from us."

Who was this Nurse Richards whose memory has come to symbolize the diamond jubilee? Christened Melinda Ann Judson Richards at Potsdam, N. Y., on July 27, 1841, she proved to be a "born nurse"—as every other nurse in those days had to be, since there was no such thing as nursing education. At 29 she took the position of assistant nurse in a ward of the Boston City Hospital, and two years later, in 1872, she was enrolled as the very first student of the nursing school opened that year by the New England Hospital for Women and Children at Boston, Mass. She received the school's first diploma in May, 1873, thus becoming, literally, America's first professional nurse.

The sentences of death by hanging for war crimes, meted out in Tokyo to former Japanese premier Tojo and six of his top leaders—not to mention terms of imprisonment for others—recall (and may revive) the argument revolving about the Nuernberg trials of Nazi leaders.

The dispute was over whether such trials were admissible under international law and, if they were, whether there was moral justification for the death sentences. The first of these two points is, of course, legal; the second is based largely on the commandment "Thou shalt not kill."

As for the legal aspect, much has been made of the claim that international law never had recognized such charges prior to World War II, and that the various war-crimes trials have been based on a law created after commission of the crimes alleged. However, the Allies obviously have felt sure of their position, which was summed up in the Harvard law review in 1946 by Dr. Sheldon Glueck, professor of criminal law and criminology at Harvard, in this way:

"Every recognition of custom as evidence of law must have a beginning some time; and there has never been a more justifiable stage in the history of international law than the present, to recognize that by the common consent of civilized nations as expressed in numerous solemn agreements and public pronouncements the institution or waging of an aggressive war is an international crime."

So far as the trials are concerned, the peoples of the various Allied nations generally accept them not only as justified but as necessary warnings to countries which might develop warlike notions. Few if any Allied citizens would challenge any sort of punishment by imprisonment, no matter how severe.

However, the death penalty raises other issues in the minds of a lot of folk. Some object on moral or religious grounds. This has just cropped up in Germany in connection with the continued executions in Munich of former Nazi guards at the Mauthausen concentration camp, convicted of large scale extermination of inmates by various methods. German church leaders have protested the executions, but 15 more of the 139 originally condemned were hanged yesterday, leaving 81 still to die.

Then apart from moral and religious issues, there is an awful finality to execution which precludes correction of mistake in conviction. Apropos of corrections, a couple of months ago the life sentence of Ilse Koch, "queen" of the frightful Buckenwald concentration camp, was commuted to four years. General Lucius D. Clay, American military governor in Germany, said reduction of her sentence had been recommended by reviewing officers on the grounds "it had never been proved that Frau Koch selected prisoners for execution or had in her possession articles made of human skin." This commutation created a heated controversy, but it illustrates our point.

Not long ago the British house of commons passed a measure abolishing capital punishment. One of the chief arguments advanced for this act was that many innocent people have died. There sometimes is uncertainty regarding the actual proof of guilt. However, the house of lords, vetoed the measure on the grounds that the death penalty was a necessary deterrent to murder.

Of course there's no possible doubt about the guilt of Tojo and his barbaric leaders. If anyone ought to die for crime, they certainly should.

IN MOVIELAND

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The casualties of Hollywood's economy drive, not mentioned until right here and now, are those dimpled darlings, the child stars.

I don't mean that Margaret O'Brien should start applying for social security. She and a handful of other current juvenile favorites are secure as long as their youth and charm hold out. But there are tough times ahead for kids who hope to follow in the golden footsteps of Jackie Coogan, Baby Peggy, Jackie Cooper, Mitzi Green, Baby Leroy, Shirley Temple and Jane Withers.

The blunt fact is that studios can't afford child stars.

You might argue that the upkeep should be simple for young performers—just some toy blocks and a jigger of pablum now and then. But it's not that easy.

Child acting is a specialized field and an expensive one to studios. The regulations regarding use of children in studios are involved enough to warm a bureaucrat's heart. This will give you an idea:

Children must have a permit to work. The permit must be renewed every six months and can be revoked any time. Children must pass a physical examination and keep up school grades to work. One welfare worker must be hired for every 20 youngsters. Every child under 12 must be accompanied by a guardian.

No child can be on a studio lot more than eight hours at a time. Lunch cannot be later than 12:30 or dinner later than 6:30. Of the eight-hour day, three hours must be spent in school and one in recreation.

This leaves four hours or less per day for a child star to be used on a movie set. When you consider that adult actors work eight hours daily or more, you can see how expensive film moppets can be to studios.

There are other problems, too. Other child actors do not always have the amazing memory of an O'Brien or a Temple. Directors can't bawl out kid stars because they don't know their lines or are stubborn or scared. It takes much time and patience.

And it's no small problem to find scripts for child actors. Most juvenile stories have been filmed again and again. As if you haven't noticed.

BUILDING PERMITS

Permission was granted to Mrs. Annie Allgood to add to a residence at 2614 Coolidge street, at a cost of $200. Day labor will be employed.

A permit was granted to Sherman Douglas to remodel an apartment at the rear of 1716 Grammont street, at a cost of $600. Day labor will be employed.

The little bow of string or ribbon on the sweatband of men's hats is believed by some to date from the time when men's hats were adjustable.

SUPERVISOR OF SCHOOLS VISITS

Statewide Primary Official Makes Short Stay In City

The primary teachers of Ouachita parish met in the Ouachita Parish Grammer School Wednesday, November 10, at 4 p. m. to meet, on her first official visit to the parish, Miss Mabel Collette, state primary supervisor.

Miss Collette, in company with Mrs. Chrissie H. Williams, supervisor of Ouachita Parish Schools, visited many classrooms during the day and enjoyed seeing children and teachers happily working together in wholesome learning situations. She commented on the "new look" given to the army buildings brought from Camp Livingston and appreciated what had been accomplished at Selman to make it such an attractive modern school plant. The new cafeterias at these schools, also, came in for most favorable comment.

The happy tone of the afternoon meeting was set by the presentation of several songs, some with rhythmic drawings, by the primary pupils of Ouachita Parish Grammar School under the direction of Miss Olive Gunby and Mrs. C. E. Buckley.

Miss Collette was then introduced and brought the teachers a message full of inspiration and practical suggestions for helping the primary child grow, develop, and progress as an individual while working in a group.

The last part of the hour was devoted to a discussion by the teachers of the philosophy and suggested program of instruction as given in a new book recently added to the professional library of each elementary school in the parish on the teaching of reading by Paul McKee, a recognized authority in this field.

This informal discussion to which Miss Collette contributed from time to time proved stimulating. The discussion centered around the necessity of pupils, very early in their school life, beginning to gain power in independent word recognition using the context, picture, and their phonetic knowledge in the process.

The group appreciated the author's view concerning teaching pupils to demand for themselves complete understanding of what some one says to them by means of the printed words. For too long, he thinks all of us have been satisfied by "surface" reading and have not taught pupils to "claw and scratch" until they unlock the true meaning.

This discussion will—no doubt—result in many private exchanges of views and further reading on this subject of vital importance to primary teachers.

ALTRUSA CLUB HOLDS LUNCHEON

The Altrusa Club of Monroe and Altrusa International, composed of business women who actively engage in an occupation in which she holds a responsible position of executive character, or who is the owner of her own business or practicing a profession, were hostesses on Thursday night to representatives of the five women's service clubs in Monroe at a dinner meeting at the La Casa Tea Room.

The purpose of the meeting was to make tentative plans for combining the efforts of all the clubs in conducting a United Nations program aiding the needy peoples of Europe in early February.

Mrs. Carr welcomed the guests and then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Helen Luckett who in entertaining manner explained in detail how different projects may be adopted. The representatives accepted the ideas with enthusiasm and will present them to their respective clubs for further consideration.

Mrs. Adrienne Carr, president of the Altrusa Club, was named general chairman and will begin working on plans at once.

Those representing the clubs were: Miss Nona Martin, president of the Pilot Club; Mrs. L. E. Mathis, president professional and Business Women's Club; Miss Eloise Helm, president of the Delta Rho Delta; Mrs. Taunton Veasey, Quota Club; Mrs. Adrienne Carr, president of Altrusa Club; Miss Emma Lee Short, Miss Bernice McCoy, Miss Mary Benoit, Miss Agatha Burkett, Miss Marguerite Kirkpatrick and Mrs. Helen Luckett, board of directors of Altrusa Club.

In The Air

Over Monroe

By Margaret Gambrell

Ever so often last week when the air show was mentioned you'd hear people say, "Oh air shows are all just alike. This one won't be any different."

Well, those who saw last Sunday's Trans-American air show at Selman Field know better. The show was the most successful air exhibit ever to be produced in Monroe and crowds estimated at over 4,500 witnessed the two hours of aerobatics.

As the show moved along, each act seemed to create more enthusiasm and excitement among air fans, until the last aerobatic act was finished.

Much credit is due the Junior Chamber of Commerce for sponsoring the unusual air show which was enjoyed by so many.

Air Reserve Flying

Word has been circulated in the past few weeks that air reserve flying may be cut out except in localities where active army air force flying schools are operated. Should such a bill be passed in congress hundreds of air reserve units throughout the country would be discontinued.

Members of the local air reserve have been requested to contact their congressmen and ask that the air reserve be maintained in order that the hundreds of reservists can continue their flying.

Reserve pilots at Selman Field have access to four planes at present and put in several hours flying time each month.

Airpark Gets New Field

The biggest airport news in several weeks came yesterday when Harry Prophit and Joe Joseph, owners of Monroe Airpark, announced that they had purchased interest in Service Aviation Company, which is located at Selman Field.

The Airpark purchased the interest of A. A. Annis and completed negotiations with the city for immediate operation of the airport. It will be operated under the name of Monroe Airport Service, Inc., and maintain the same policy toward service.

Both Joseph and Prophit are busy getting a complete repair and refabricating shop installed at Selman Field and all efforts are being made to secure a C. A. A. approved repair station.

This makes the fifth such airport in this area operated by Joseph and Prophit and here's wishing the best of luck with their latest business enterprise.

Though rain and uncertain weather conditions kept most pilots grounded during the week, C. F. Cumpton, of Rayville, completed his flying time and passed his examination for a private pilot's license.

Another student, J. W. Hogan, flew to Kilgore, Texas, in order to get in enough hours to qualify for his private license.

Fred E. Lindsey, of Monroe, flew to Alexandria where he visited a friend last Sunday.

Pilot J. W. Aubin took J. T. Guynes, of a local motor company, and two drivers to Chicago, Ill., where they picked up cars which they drove back to Monroe. The party left Wednesday morning and Guynes and the pilot returned at noon Thursday.

FATHER SWARTSFAGER

'BELL RINGERS' TO BE REVIEWED

Pilot Club Will Sponsor Author In His Book Presentation

The Pilot Club of Monroe is bringing Father Vern Swartsfager, curate of St. Mathews Episcopal Cathedral in Dallas, Texas, here on Wednesday, November 17, to review his book, "The Bell Ringers."

He was a newspaper man for 20 years before he put on the robe of the Episcopal church.

His book can in no way be considered a treatise on religion but is a one-man crusade for teen-agers, a study in the rehabilitation of the so-called bad youth.

He says there is no such thing as juvenile delinquency, that it is always parental in origin and that all boys and girls are worth fighting for.

Tickets for this review which will be at 8 p. m. on the Virginia roof garden are on sale at Ferd Levi Stationery Co., Goldsmith's Jewelry Shop and Mary's Flower Shop as well as by all members of the Pilot Club.

LONDON—(AP)—It wasn't one of her dog "Ricky's" teeth, Mrs. Peggy Palmer discovered. It was a rare white sapphire worth $200. "Ricky" spat it out after finding it in the middle of an Australian rabbit's liver bought at the local butcher's.

MANY BOYS ARE SCOUT MATERIAL

Large Numbers Are Enrolling States L. L. Price, 'Range Boss'

Large groups of boys are being brought into Scouting in all areas of the Ouachita Valley Scout Council, as many new Scout units are being activated in the council's round-up, and almost every troop and pack is being filled with new boys anxious to participate in this adventurous program. L. L. Price, "range boss" for the third annual Scout round-up, has announced that over a dozen units in the council have almost qualified for round-up awards within the first few days of the November round-up program.

Price reported yesterday that the following units had completely qualified to date as round-up units in the contest: Troop 92, Lake Providence, M. G. Perry, scoutmaster; Troop 24, Waterproof, W. E. Person, scoutmaster; Troop 17, Ferriday, Lloyd F. Love, scoutmaster; Troop 2, Bastrop, V. E. Prothro, scoutmaster; Troop 99, Winnfield, John Hubbard, scoutmaster; Troop 61, Monroe, William Cooper, scoutmaster; Pack 13, West Monroe, W. W. Brewer, cubmaster; Pack 31, Monroe, R. M. Troy, cubmaster; Pack 34, Monroe, A. C. Lea, cubmaster.

Based on the enthusiasm shown throughout the council, the round-up committee believes that almost every unit in the council will recruit the necessary five new members to qualify as round-up units during the contest.

Boys all over northeast Louisiana are now wearing big "Maverick" and "I Hoped One" buttons, indicating that they are new Scouts or that they have recruited new members. Scouts, Cubs, and leaders are also at work meeting necessary requirements for additional awards to be presented at the council round-up ceremony on December 11.

The round-up committee and the central district committee are developing plans to make the round-up ceremony on December 11 the largest Scouting event ever conducted in this area. The activities for this event will begin with a parade in the early afternoon and followed with the ceremony at Gentry's Rodeo Arena in West Monroe. Many outstanding Scout and Cub activities are to be performed in addition to recognition to units and Scouts for round-up achievements. Hundreds of Scouts and Cubs from the 15 parishes of the council are expected to take part in this unusual event.

In addition to the recruiting program going on at present in every Scout unit in the council, many new units will complete organization before the campaign is over. The following new troops and packs are in the process of organization at present: Scout troops in Dubach, Kelly, Hodge, Jonesboro, Calvin, Winnfield, Marion, Epps, Baskin, Vidalia, and Monroe; Cub packs in Monroe, Tallulah, Bastrop, Winnfield, Lake Providence; Sea Scout Ship, Monroe.

The round-up publicity committee, under the direction of Central District Commissioner T. Mickel, is keeping the recruiting campaign before Scouts, leaders, and the public through many different means. Bulletins are being sent to unit leaders, and the general public is kept informed through the newspapers and radio. Mr. Mickel requests that all Scouts, and others interested in the Scout program, check radio schedules for programs being presented during November.

Station KNOE will run a special Scout feature at 3:30 each afternoon for the next two weeks. These programs are special transcriptions on all phases of scouting and include stories on Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Air Scouts, Sea Scouts, and Explorer Scouts. Other Scout radio programs minute features: KMLB, Monday at 5:30 p. m.; KTRY, Wednesday at 4:15 p. m.; KRUS, Saturday at 11 a. m.

The current round-up recruiting program is expected to bring several hundred new boys into one of the three phases of Scouting, and provide Scouting's wholesome character building activities for many new boys who are in need of this program.

Boyle's Notebook

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Our menu for today is two short stories.

The friends who told them to me thought the stories were new and true. But a thing can be new and true to one person and old and false to another. How else can you explain love, hamburger and Santa Claus?

Personally, I have never heard the first story before. And it may be true. The second story—in one variation or another—has probably been told since the Greeks camped outside Troy.

But a restaurant can't change its whole bill of fare every day. And with that cautious preamble, let us go on to the stories:

A beautiful lady went into a fashionable Fifth avenue store to buy a new dress. There was a strangeness in her manner that caught the salesgirl's interest.

It was the lady's fixity of purpose. She seemed to know exactly what she wanted. When she had selected a dress, she went into another room to have it fitted.

"I want the sleeves here," she said, pointing to her arm. "And I want the skirt to fall exactly here." And she indicated the length.

The fitter looked up and objected politely:

"That isn't the way they are wearing them this year. It's out of fashion."

"I know," said the lady. "But I am going to San Francisco to meet my husband. He's been with the army overseas. Now he's coming home. And when I meet him I want to be dressed just as I was when I told him goodbye."

"Where has your husband been?" asked the fitter, pleasantly.

"Guadalcanal," replied the lady.

"All this time in Guadalcanal?" said the fitter.

"Yes."

And suddenly the fitter understood her mission. He bent to his task. He did not want to look up into the lady's eyes.

The locale of the other tale is Berlin.

A German family had been receiving gift packages from relatives in America to supplement their diet of potatoes, more potatoes—and still more potatoes.

In one box came a small package containing a mysterious powdery substance. There were no directions on the package on how to cook it, and the hausfrau was stumped.

"How shall I prepare it?" she asked. The family went into a huddle over the problem. It was an exciting problem—anything having to do with food is exciting in Germany.

Each member in turn examined the package.

"Perhaps," said the hausfrau doubtfully, "I should wait until I can write back and find out how it should be used."

This proposal was voted down immediately as a waste of time.

"The Americans eat so much dehydrated food," grumbled the husband. "It must be soup flavoring. Yes, that is it. Put it in the soup."

So into the soup pot it went. The family couldn't see that it added anything to the flavor, but they agreed it certainly was filling.

Two weeks later a letter from America arrived. It bore postmarks indicating it had been delayed en route.

The hausfrau—wives are well-trained in Germany—immediately brought the letter to her husband to open.

The letter said:

"It is with much sadness we inform you that dear Uncle Fritz has passed away. Because of his long desire to return again to the fatherland, we had him cremated.

"We are sending his ashes in the next parcel."

The council plans various campus activities, directs all student elections, and serves as a coordinating group between faculty and students in planning and effecting programs, athletic events and other affairs that are designed for the improvement of the college.

OFFICERS RETURN TWO TEXAS WOMEN

Two young Texas women were arrested in Shreveport late Friday and transferred back to Monroe by Sheriff Bailey Grant and Capt. Hugh Talbert, of the Monroe police department, after they were reportedly involved in a white slave case, officers said.

The women, Mrs. J. H. Williams, 22, and Mickey Stevens, 19, both of Orange, Tex., are being held in the parish jail for investigation of prostitution and violation of the white slave traffic act.

They were apprehended following the arrest of A. S. Gentry, 32, of Epps, and James L. King, 25, of Tullos, who are also being investigated by the F. B. I. for violation of the white slave law, according to investigating officers.

No bonds had been fixed late Saturday for their release.

Mr. Mickel requests that all Scouts, and others interested in the Scout program, check radio schedules for programs being presented during November.

Station KNOE will run a special Scout feature at 3:30 each afternoon for the next two weeks. These programs are special transcriptions on all phases of scouting and include stories on Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Air Scouts, Sea Scouts, and Explorer Scouts. Other Scout radio programs minute features: KMLB, Monday at 5:30 p. m.; KTRY, Wednesday at 4:15 p. m.; KRUS, Saturday at 11 a. m.

The current round-up recruiting program is expected to bring several hundred new boys into one of the three phases of Scouting, and provide Scouting's wholesome character building activities for many new boys who are in need of this program.

Boyle's Notebook

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Our menu for today is two short stories. The friends who told them to me thought the stories were new and true. But a thing can be new and true to one person and old and false to another. How else can you explain love, hamburger and Santa Claus?

Personally, I have never heard the first story before. And it may be true. The second story—in one variation or another—has probably been told since the Greeks camped outside Troy.

But a restaurant can't change its whole bill of fare every day. And with that cautious preamble, let us go on to the stories:

A beautiful lady went into a fashionable Fifth avenue store to buy a new dress. There was a strangeness in her manner that caught the salesgirl's interest.

It was the lady's fixity of purpose. She seemed to know exactly what she wanted. When she had selected a dress, she went into another room to have it fitted.

"I want the sleeves here," she said, pointing to her arm. "And I want the skirt to fall exactly here." And she indicated the length.

The fitter looked up and objected politely:

"That isn't the way they are wearing them this year. It's out of fashion."

"I know," said the lady. "But I am going to San Francisco to meet my husband. He's been with the army overseas. Now he's coming home. And when I meet him I want to be dressed just as I was when I told him goodbye."

"Where has your husband been?" asked the fitter, pleasantly.

"Guadalcanal," replied the lady.

"All this time in Guadalcanal?" said the fitter.

"Yes."

And suddenly the fitter understood her mission. He bent to his task. He did not want to look up into the lady's eyes.

The locale of the other tale is Berlin.

A German family had been receiving gift packages from relatives in America to supplement their diet of potatoes, more potatoes—and still more potatoes.

In one box came a small package containing a mysterious powdery substance. There were no directions on the package on how to cook it, and the hausfrau was stumped.

"How shall I prepare it?" she asked. The family went into a huddle over the problem. It was an exciting problem—anything having to do with food is exciting in Germany.

Each member in turn examined the package.

"Perhaps," said the hausfrau doubtfully, "I should wait until I can write back and find out how it should be used."

This proposal was voted down immediately as a waste of time.

"The Americans eat so much dehydrated food," grumbled the husband. "It must be soup flavoring. Yes, that is it. Put it in the soup."

So into the soup pot it went. The family couldn't see that it added anything to the flavor, but they agreed it certainly was filling.

Two weeks later a letter from America arrived. It bore postmarks indicating it had been delayed en route.

The hausfrau—wives are well-trained in Germany—immediately brought the letter to her husband to open.

The letter said:

"It is with much sadness we inform you that dear Uncle Fritz has passed away. Because of his long desire to return again to the fatherland, we had him cremated.

"We are sending his ashes in the next parcel."

ROBT. TODD TO HEAD COUNCIL

Bastrop Sophomore Elected To Honor At Junior College

Heading the student council of Northeast Junior College during the current school year is Robert Barr Todd, Bastrop sophomore who is majoring in agriculture. Other officers of the organization include the following sophomores: Charles "Red" Dillon, football player from Little Rock, Ark., vice-president; Ann Beavers, home economics major from Kilbourne, secretary; Carolyn Bagwell, West Monroe library science major, treasurer. Crawford "Terrapin" Bell, sophomore and member of the football squad from Arkansas, was elected from the student body at large.

Freshmen on the council who were elected by popular vote are: Beverly Martin, Monroe; Alice Perry, Perryville; Robert Germany Jones, Monroe; James Pilcher, Tullos.

This student governing body is chosen annually on the basis of four freshmen, four sophomores, and one member from the student body irrespective of classification. The last is chosen by the eight members elected to the group.

A. L. Tatum, assistant professor of social sciences, is faculty sponsor of the organization.

The council plans various campus activities, directs all student elections, and serves as a coordinating group between faculty and students in planning and effecting programs, athletic events and other affairs that are designed for the improvement of the college.

OFFICERS RETURN TWO TEXAS WOMEN

Two young Texas women were arrested in Shreveport late Friday and transferred back to Monroe by Sheriff Bailey Grant and Capt. Hugh Talbert, of the Monroe police department, after they were reportedly involved in a white slave case, officers said.

The women, Mrs. J. H. Williams, 22, and Mickey Stevens, 19, both of Orange, Tex., are being held in the parish jail for investigation of prostitution and violation of the white slave traffic act.

They were apprehended following the arrest of A. S. Gentry, 32, of Epps, and James L. King, 25, of Tullos, who are also being investigated by the F. B. I. for violation of the white slave law, according to investigating officers.

No bonds had been fixed late Saturday for their release.

THIS DOES IT! IF I EVER GET MY HANDS ON CHUM FUN, BOY HUMORIST, HE'LL DIE—LAUGHING OR NOT!

PLEASE, CHAZZ! HE COULDN'T HAVE REALIZED WE WERE SEARCHING FOR HIM. HE COULDN'T KNOW WE'D SEEN THE PAY-OFF ON THE CAT-DOWN-THE-BACK-OF-THE-NECK STUNT HE'D PLAYED ON THAT THUG OR THAT WE'D FOLLOWED THE MAN TO THIS ALLEY.

MAYBE, BUT AT LEAST HE COULD HAVE SHOOK HIS RATTLES BEFORE HE DROPPED THAT STRING OF FIRECRACKERS AND ROUSED HIS GUARDS—JUST AS CHOPS AND TERRY WERE TRYING TO LOCATE WHICH HOUSE HE WAS HELD IN.

CAN YOU SEE WHERE TERRY AND CHOPS ARE?

TARZAN

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

BEFORE HORTA'S DEATH-CRY HAD DIED IN HIS THROAT, THE APE-MAN BOUNDED TOWARD HIM.

"WITH THE SKIN OF HORTA BOUND TO OUR FEET," TARZAN EXPLAINED, "THE CHEETAH WILL LOSE OUR SCENT."

"WHAT MEAT WE DO NOT EAT," TARZAN SAID, "WE'LL FEED TO GIMLA, THE CROCODILE."

"IF THE TRICK WORKS," SOROS REMARKED DUBIOUSLY, "IT WILL BE THE FIRST TIME THE KING'S CHEETAHS WILL HAVE FAILED." BUT--- ---THERE WERE OTHER DANGERS---

AS GIMLA CAME CLOSE, TARZAN WHIRLED, AND, TREADING WATER, HURLED THE MEAT STRAIGHT INTO THE WIDE-OPEN JAWS.

CAPTAIN EASY

THEY GOT HER BODY OUT BEFORE THE PLACE WAS DESTROYED!

I GUESS THAT OUGHT TO CLEAR HER OF BLAME IN THE OTHER TWO FIRES!

WHAT HAPPENED? DID LIGHTNING STRIKE HESSY MATTERHORN'S HOUSE?

IT WAS MORE LIKE AN EXPLOSION, MA'AM! WHATEVER IT WAS KILLED THE OLD LADY!

T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

I DON'T THINK SO, EASY! MAYBE SHE DIDN'T SET FIRE TO HER PLACE ON PURPOSE, BUT THERE MIGHT HAVE BEEN AN ACCIDENT!

I'VE GOT ANOTHER EXPLANATION, MARIE!

HESSY WAS GOING TO TELL YOU HER STORY AND SOMEONE KILLED HER TO KEEP HER QUIET!

OH, YOU'RE JUST GUESSING! COME ON--LET'S DEVELOP THESE PICTURES!

LATER--

IT'S A GOOD SHOT OF THE EXPLOSION!

AND SOMETHING ELSE! LOOK IN THE BACKGROUND!

A BAT'S SHADOW! GOOD HEAVENS! MAYBE THERE'S SOMETHING IN THIS WITCHCRAFT ANGLE AFTER ALL! BUT--THERE COULDN'T BE!

THERE IS SOMETHING SINISTER GOING ON! LOOK AT OUR CLUES-- HESSY'S THREATS, THE SIMILARITY OF THE FIRES!
